"One piece of this read to set into the side of a mountain of selid rock for a distance of seven miles, and selid rock for a distance of seven miles, that were consumed. To begin with, there was shoulusely no foothold frees which a start could be made, but the only practical way of getting a road was by cetting abrough mountains. The going selected for the start was 500 or 600 feet below the top of the store cells, and men were let down in backets suspended by ropes, ask from such shaky stations they drilled holes in the rock and filled them with charges of powder. After more than a mouth of blasting a ledge was cred into the rock large enough for the men to work on, and a splendid road, 16 feet in width, was constructed along this precipitons ledge.

"The bed is solid rock and to need mostly by wagen trains and gibb animals, corrying even and supplies to and from the mining namps in the mountains. Railways to Erect Mations at Any Point Operating Eules of Ballways to be Intform Throughout the Bominion.

Ottawn, Jude 27 .- The bill to amend the Railway Act was taken up in the Railway Committee to-day.

The Minister of Railways explained the purpose of the bill at length. He said that the first clause made provision for a number of requirements that the committee had been in the labit of inserting in each railway bill that came before it. They were tesigned to protect the public, and had relation especially to the construction and operation of telegraph and telephone lines,

Another clause incorporated in general provision the usual regulations respecting the construction and opera-

It provided a penalty not exceeding two months' imprisonment for any injury to notions or other railway peroperty.

Sidney, C.R., June 27 .- The fire in the Calmionia mine at Glace Bay now under control. During the last low days there have been some heavy falls in the pit, and this, of course has made the work of the fire-fightersON EAST TERMS doubly dangerous, Undoubtedly, fire still exists under its debris, but will be gradually smuffed out. The mine is now saved; unless the fire The should break out in some other quarter, which is not considered probable.

• Assistant Monager Johnston and Superintensient Brown, with sixteen men, yesterday morning, travelled all over the mine except, of course, the part submerged and the fire district, and several times walked entirely around the fire some. Only three days ago the danger attentiant upon, working in the pit wasne great that but eight men were permitted in the mine one time, those being relieved every two hours, and explicit instructions were given each shift that for no reason and on no account should they go beyond a certain point, nor deviate from one certain pathway, and remain not more than two hours below the surface.

Inspectors Gilpin and Neville will make an examination of the mine on Thursday morning, and if they report the canger past mining will be resum-ed on Friday. All the coal cutting machines are in the affected part of the mine, but by working a double shift, all the pick men could be employed, thus admitting of a daily outout of from fifteen to eighteen bunared tone against two thousand to twentystwo hundred previously.

THE ORIGIN OF DIAMONDS.

The dispute among geologists as to the origin of the diamond seems to have been sattled by Prof. Bonney, in a paper read before the Royal Society yesterday afternoon. In the localities from which the previous supply had been drawn, both in India and Brazu, the gem of curred like a tebuse, in certain gravelly materials, but had not been traced back to any rock that give an indication of its genesis. But soon after the discovery of diamonds in river sands on the Crange and Vaul rivers in South Africa they were found in a peculiar material no. o. a uper wial character. At first exir may in oh rent, and o. a brownish butf co.or, it asumed, as the miners dug deeper, a quil cark greenish or bluish which they called 'yellow ground' and but ground, according to its color, lay the dismonds, together with several other minerals, such as garnets, various o her mineras, such as gainets, various iron ores, aivine, augits, and its allies. Digging was begun nearly thirty years abo, at tirst unsystematically; but from these early afforts, the great diamond-mining industry has been developed, and the excavations have been carried near fitmeetly, to a depth of more than fourteen hundred feet. Here the fock has become so much more solid that it as a first about as hard as ordinary lumestone. The "blue ground" is only found in limited areas, generally rather curvular in outline, which are father than a curvular in outline, which are is only found in limited areas, generally rather circular in outline, which are 'spolted' irregularly over the country, some of the most famous are several acres in extent, being in the immediate neighborhood of himberley. The rocks around them are of dark shides, banned with hard ramistones, in which sheets or dykes of baset of some material once mosten are occasionally found. The bine should rith a port of hare shart bine should rith a port of hare shart biue pround tills a sort of huge shart in these other rocks, and is tiself some-blue ground attis a sort or huge shatt in those other rocks, and is treat semetimes cut by regular dykes. Thus, it reminded geo ogists or necks or extinct volcanoes, and as may have been seen among the coast-bearing strats of the hidshire coast.

That the diamond was an inmate of the blue ground could not be doubted; but how dut it get there, and what was the true nature of the rock? On this point geo ogists adopted different views roome thinking that the gen had been produced where it now lay; others that it had been formed in rouse olden rock which had been abattered by volcanic (axplosions. Many of the minerals associated with it looked as if they had been thus derived, and it was sometimes troken. The blue ground frequently contained fragments of the adjacent "country rock"; but this did not quite clear up the mystery; for conetimes a notten material, in breaking through other rocks catches up bits of them, and, whatever was the origin of the matrix, as it is rather poyous, the diamond might have been subsequently produced in it by such an agent as not water.

The mystery has now been cleared up vater. The mystery has now been cleared up The mystery has now been cleared up by, a discovery at the Newlands Mines, West Griqualand, rather more ban forty miles from Kimberley. About two years ago. Mr. Trubenback, the company's manager, accidentally picked up a specimen in which small diamonds wars appearently imbedded in a garnet. His cariosity once aroused, everything remarkable was collected, and among these things carriain boulders containing garnets which now and then o curred in the "blue," even two or three hundred feet under ground. Afterwards one of these was found to above a diamond pro ecting from the surface. The beginder was broken, and was found to contain others. Afterwards a diamond was seen on a second specimen. The boulder was broken, and was found to contain others. Afterwards a diamond was seen on a second specimen. The rock is one which, though not very common, is well known to geologists, it bears in science the name of eclogists, and that from Newlands consists almost exclusively of a red garnet and a rather piculiar light green augue. The rock is correcty represents, in a molten condition, the diamond being one of its organial constituents. But this discovery also settles the true for acture of the base ground," and that was not the brute-piace of the diamond. These boulders are evidently waterworn, and must have been fashioned in a past geo ogical period from some much more ancient rock, now buried out of sight. They must have reposed for ages in an ancient gravel at the very bottom of the sedimentary rocks of the dustrict—rocks which are about as old as the red marks of the English Middands. Eventually, the overlying materials, and some of the shattered rocky floor, is which the diamonds are embedded, and of which these boulders are only samples, were sent flying by volumic exploitons. It was in this way that the diamond-bearing "blue ground" was formed.

A CURIOUS GLASS OWNED BY

WASHINGTON MAN

White all of us have heard in early childhood of the tales of magical mirrors, in which impossible heroes saw impossible heroines in danger, from which said heroes proceeded to rescue the fair maidens, yet such things have been relegated by most of us to the region of the imagination. We regard such things as being outside of the real world of today and belonging to the region of myth and fable. Yet, in spite of our presaic nineteenth century, it is nevertheless a fact that a Washington gentleman is the possessor of an article which might be classed as appropriately belong ing to the time of Aladdin and the wonderful lamp.

This strange acquisition is a mirror
which came from India, and in which one can see the events which the future will bring forth. That such is its power is attested by some of the best known gentimen of the city, who, for obvious reasons, do not wish their names to be mentioned.

This mirror came into the possession first of a Washington lady who was traveling in India, and, being interested in the religion of the country, took a trip to the famous temple of Alora, which lies in a rocky side of the foothills of the Himalaya mountains. This temple is now but a ruin of jagged rocks, jutting out harshly into rocky side of the foothills of the Himalaya mountains. This temple is now but a ruin of jagged rocks, jutting out harshly into the soft greenward that rolls smoothly down into the valley below. Above tower the rast mountains with their glittering caps of snow looking down on the peace-ful tropical scene where for ages the fol-lowers of Brahma have performed their reconstities.

came to India, is now diminished. But a small band of Brahman monks still kept the sacred secrets and oversmonies alive. Few Europeans ever penetrate this section of the monatains, but the Washington lady mounted and visited the monatery. While there are managed to secure possession of one of the mirrors made by the monks and seputed to possess wonderful properties.

The lady brought the mirror with her on her return to town, and at her death it came late the possession of Mr. Lowdermilk. From him it was bought by a gentleman who takes great interest in such matters, but who would not like the fact of the existence of the mirror in his bouse to be known, as it would attract thousands of seekers after the curious. After paying quite a large sum for the glass the mirror was brought home and put to the test.

The mirror is oval in shape, about a foot long and is surrounded by a wooden frame two inches in width and painted a dark green. The back of the glass is costed with asphaltum and them covered with dark linen, so that the whole has the appearance of a bestrous opai. The method of use is by sitting with the mirror in one's lap and holding the glass so that there is no reflection of other objects shining on the surface of the glass. If the test is a success, there will appear in about a quarter of an hour a thin, cloudy mist, which will about float over the surface, and then the images of future events will be mirrored in the seemingly fathomices depth of the dark glass.

The gentleman who owns the mirror has never been himself successful in seeing anything, but a friend of his, a prominent judge and a thirty-third degree Mason, had a remarkable experience. He placed the mirror in his lap, and, after haif an hour, a mist floated over the surface; then he saw reflected in the glass a picture of a coffin, within which was the still, white face of a dead man. At first glance the features seemed those of the gazer, but on looking closely it was seen that they represented another the placet which he she week afterward lost his brother, and in a short while his friend, whose face he had also seen, passed to another world.

A son of the owner was one evening looking into the mirror, when he saw within a picture of a house in flames. There were the servants leaping from the porches, then returning to drag out the furniture. The glare abone around on a vard which the scare recognized as that of porches, then returning to drag out the furniture. The glare abone around on a yard which the gaser recognized as that of many plotures in the mirros—pletures of events in his life which were afterward realized to the letter.

By a student of occultism the following directions were given in a treatize on that subject, which dealt with the methods employed in making such mirrors: The materials used are one glass, 6½ Inches by 6½ Inches free from flaws and concave in shape; a small amount of turpentine asphaltum, a pine of spirits of turpentine, a small hairbrush, a box in which to case the mirror, and a half a yard of new loth. The glass is placed in a clean, light and siry room, the materials washed perfectly clean; then the brush and the glass are wiped over with turpentine. Afterward the back of the glass is coated smoothly with a thin wareful of the subplatum and left to dry, the operation being repeated for the two following days. At the end of that time the mirror is magnetized by placing the hands above it and slowly waving them to and fro, so that the animal magnetic force may be well absorbed by the asphaltum. The asphaltum is the reason for its use. The test should be made also in a clean, siry chamber when alone and when the mind is composed, and by perseverance the inquirer is sure to be rewarded—so say the books on magic.—Washington Post

A French naturalist says that if the world were to become birdless man could not inhabit it after nine years' time. In spite of all the sprays and poisons that could be manufactured for the destruction of insects the bugs and sings would simply eat up orchards and crops.

CONSUMPTION.

VISIT OF THE VETERANS.

WELCOMED BY MAYOR DAVIS AND A. P. POUSSETTE Q. C.

The Parade—Addresses and Responses—sports Called off on account of the Rain
—An Excellent Concert.

The disagreeable weather yesterday interfered somewhat with the proceedings in connection with the welcoming and entertaining of Her Malouy's Imperial Army and Navy veterans of Torperial Army and Navy vecesars of Toronto, who came here for their annual outing. Yet in spite of the weather the event was a grand success, and although the sporta had to be called off, oher ways were found of making the day en oyable for the visitors.

The local Veterans, numbering about twenty-five, assembled in the drill shed yesterday morning, and with A. P.
Poussette, Q.C., president of the local tocisty, and Sergt.-Major Irwin, proceeded to the C.P.R. station to mee: the visitors from Toronto. The train arrived about eleven o'clock, and including the friends who accompanied the Veterans, there were about 250 pastengers aboard.
Besides the local Veterans there were present to welcome the visitors, Mayor their

Sengera aboard.

Bosides the local Veterans there were present to welcome the visitors, Mayor thavis and Aldermen Corkery, Langiord and McWilliams. Upon the arrival of the train three hearty cheers were given the visiting Veterans. A procession then formed up as follows: Sergt-Major Irwin, Drum Major Bowne, the Army and Navy Veterans Band, local Veterans, Toronto Veterans. The procession proceeded up tieurge St., to the Market Hall. Here Mayor Davis delivered an address of welcome. He said that the name of the Veterans' Association , is one shat arouses enthusiasm in every loyal heart. The flag of Britain waves in every coper of the world, and given freedom to so large a portion of the world's population, including ourselves, because the men, who carried that flag forward and defended it from every assentit were brave heroes who knew not fear or fatigue. The visitors expressed themselves highly pleased with the attention raceived at the Palace, and mid that should they come again they would hope to be quartered at this excellent hotel, where every effort was made for their cumfort and enjoyment.

Mr. John Nutt raniser of the Army and Navy Veteram' Association; was everywhere duving the day and eventure. He is a general favorite with everytody and without him the event would not have been considered by any means compiste.

The Veterane' band, under the able direction of Prof. Richardson, is a perfect organisation, and those who did not attend the concert last evening missed as event which was well worth going many miles to hear.

Mr. Alar. Jackston, of Prince Al-bart's Own Hussars, a member of the Victorans' Association, was among the visitors. Mr. Jackson is so' well known to our citisans that he is al-most regarded as one of cerestves. He assisted saterially is making the event are sujouble one for the victors. The bride was attired in a travelling suit of pearl cloth. She was assisted by Miss Civr anderson of Smith, while Mr. W. Cameron, of Norwood, assisted the groom.

A delicious repart followed the ceremony, after which the happy couple left on the 4.45 C.P.R. train for their future home in Franklin, Pa.

The bride received many costly gifts, one of which was a hardroome gold watch from the groom and an elegant ten set from the straff of Mr. C. W. Minire, George street.

Cities of Guiario.

The fifth report of the Ontario Boronau of Indirstry furnishes the following as the population of the cities of the Province—Toronto, 193,172; Octawa, 83,727; Hamilton, 50,085; London, 26,284; Windsor, 11,915; St. Thomas, 11,021; Guadph, 10,741; Stratford, 10,531; Helleville, 10,339; St. Catherines, 10,144. All the cities except Kingston and Brantford show a misricer increase. The population is the townships, villages and towns has increased slightly.

The strawberry crop is likely, to be short this season. Fruiters say that so long as the barries last they will he big and luscious, but they will mot last long and the crop will be less than a quarter of that of last year.

Another Counterfelt Cote.

Attention was retently directed by the Times to a counterfelt quarter of a dellay which is being circulated throughout the country. A new fifty-count pison him just been discovered. It is a fifty-cont Newfoundland coin and is a very empelsor imitation. It may be distinguished from the true coin by the fact that it is lighter, has a less full ring when/sounded and also a teather greasy touch when headled. The new counterfeit has in other respects all the features of the original, and it is very difficult to debect.

Washington, June 29.— Dr. Oscar Leew, one of the expert veger able pathologists of the Agricultural De pertment has developed to what he be lieven is a point of practical use a hem treatment for germ diseases which promises to supercede the serum treatnt now in use in diphtheria, fever and many other discases. The experiments have reached a stage where they can be tested in hospitals.

The treatment is similar in some respects to serum treatment, but de pands on a different principle, the basic idea being the presence of a class of ferments known as ensymes which are produced by the same bacteria that produce the disease. It is because of the production or rather overproduction of a fertain enzyme that a thomas such as typhoid will "run its course" and then die out of the system. The bacteria in this case, it is stated, are aimply killed out by the ferment they

Lee is, Eng., June 29 .- The third test exicket match between the visiting Australiane and an all-England eleven opened here to-day. The weather was bright, though the wicket was noft, after a night's rain, and favorable to the bowler. There were about 12,900 spectators present when the Australians went to the wickets. Very great interest is taken in the present match, owing to the poor showing made by the home team in the two previous matches, and the fact that the press and the cricksters of the whole country have been showering advice upon the Felection Committee regarding the choice of an eleven, with the resuit that considerable ill-feeling has been aroused among some of players who have thought themselves alighted. But the public clamor be led to the exclusion of some of the oldtime favorites. The Australian players are those who best the all-England sleven at Lords by ten wickets. The Australians at lunch time had scored 131 runs for six wickets down.

Australians were all out in their first innings fot 172 runs. At the close of play to-day sil-England had scored 119 runs for four wicinnings for 172 runs.

TESTIMONY OF AN EXPERT

L Lynn, M. E., Tells of the Wonderful Resources of the District.

Mice Found in Large Quantities-Forty Tons Recently said to an English Company-Exhibits Boat Noted Mines in South Carolina. The Accessity of Railway Connection With Our Town.

The Times has on various occasions pointed out the great need of connecting the morthern townships of this county with Peterborough. Time and again the people of those districts have complained of being abut off from the markets of the world on, account of having no means of shipping their products, consisting of timber, minerals, etc. The Peterborough peoole have everything to gain from such a gailway. This is the natural objective point of such a road, an't if we do not want some others place to sesure advantages which should be ours, we ought to take steps at once looking to the construction of a railway between our town and the northern

There can be no question whatever as to the great natural remurces of morth Peterborough. That they are unsqualled in the province is a fact supported by abundant avidence. The Times has just halfan interview on this subject with Capt. L! Lyan, M.E., who started work with thirty-six men about four months ago, in the region of the Bine Mountains, and who has met with results far esceeding his espactations, although he was well aware that the district was exceedingly rich in mineral resources. Capt. Lynn has made exhibits, which best the moted mines of Sout. Careline. A shuft has been sunk a into the solid rock to a dooth of dilty feet, and mice in feltreus has been obtained in large quantities. From this mice. is made pottery, and forty tone have beam sold to an English company at $8.00 a ton. In nine days 16,000 pounds were obtained ant sold at $7.50 ton. There is an extensive market for mica as it is used for stoves and ground up and made into bil, abestos, boiler parking, wall paper, dynamus, atc., etc. Dapt. Lynn unbesitatingly asserts that the statements which have for years been made as tof the wonderful resources of this district are by a means exaggerated but indeed fails? unarkable richness of the region.

Gold has been found at Cos Hill. Mr. George Cliff, of Kingston, is sinking there a sixty roos spaft in a thirty foot drift. Free gold, assaying about $30 upwards, was examined in Asatruther and operated largely. also bought mice mines in the same township, and these Capt. Lynn was specuting prior to taking up the

It would be at matter of deep regret if some other town would get shood of Paterbarough in this manter sail oceet up these wonderfully protinctive districts. The great resources of the region reader it shootutely impossible that the matters of gailway commetion can be long deforred, and the citizens of Peterborough should at once bestir theme and een that our town does not lose the benefits of such estimation. It is altogether probable that if the matter is preparly twenght before the estangement of the C.P.R. it would not be long before this desired railway would be in course of constructions

TO PROTECT THE FIREMEN.

Strinkent measures have been taken in Charleston, South Carolina, to protect firemen from the danger of contact with live electric wires. By the terms of an ordinance on the subject each company having the right to biring destric-wires must connect its station with the firealarm system, and on the pocusion of each fire-alarm must send as emergency wagon and one or more men, with necessary apparatus and tools, to the locality of the fire, where they must act under the die rection of the officers of the Fire Department. In addition, a special signal has been arranged, in obedience to which the electric companies must turn off the electric-current in the district of the fire. Heavy penalties are provided for neglect to comply with the ardinance, and they are cumulative for each day of neglect.

Flow MADMIT WITHIN FIRE LINES

An Extraordinary Notte For a Resporter's Functal Emblom.

In his story of "The Last of the Mulberry Street Barona." in The Century, Mr. Jacob A. Riis, author of "How the Other Haif Lives," tells a rather grewsome but very amusing anecdote of a fellow reporter attached to police headquarters in Mulberry street, New York.

I here had been a fend of long standing between the reporters in Mulberry street, and in consequence news was plentiful. There were mutual soores to be paid off, and we paid them off in the coin of the realm. The coin of Mulberry street was murder, fire and sudden death (we had passed the stage of boxing gloves and did not speak as we passed by), and it went a long way. I do not mean, of course, that we murdered or harned up one another, but these things were the staples of our daily work as police reporters, and when we were "out" the precinct returns received an extra sifting, with the result that many a grain of newspaper wheat that would otherwise have secaped was rescued from the dust bin.

We had our specialities in this contest of wits. One was distinguished as a sleuth. He fed on detective mysteries as a cast on a chicken bone. He thought them out by day and dreamed them out by night, to the great exasperation of the official detective, with whom their solution was a commercial, not in the least an intellectual, affair. They solved them on the plane of the proverbial lacking of honor among thieves, by the formula, "You scratch my back, and I'll scratch yours."

Another came out strong on fires. He know the history of every house in town back, and I'll scratch yours."

Another came out strong on fires. He know the history of every house in town that ran any risk of being burned, knew every fireman and could tell within $1,000, more or less, what was the value of the goods stored in any building in the dry goods stored in any building in the dry goods district and for how much they were insured. If he couldn's, he did anyhow, and his guesses eften came near the faces, as shown in the finat adjustment. He suiffed a firebug from safar and knew without asking how much salvage there was in a bale of cotton after being $4 hours in the fire. He is dead, poor fellow. In life he was fond of a joke, and in death the joke clung to him in a way wholly unforessen.

The firemen in the next block, with whom he made his headquarters when off duty, so that he might always be within duty, so that he might always be within hearing of the gong, wished to give some tangible evidence of their regard for the old reporter, but, being in a hurry, left it to the florist, who knew him well, to choose the design. He hit upon a floral fire bedge as the proper thing, and thus it was that when the company of mourances was assembled and the funeral service in progress there arrived and was set upon the coffin, in the view of all, that triumph of the florist's art, a shield of white roses, with this legend written across it in red immortelles: "Admit Within Fire Lines Only." It was shocking, but irrestatible. Is brought down even the house of moura-

A CURIOUS GLASS OWNED BY WASHINGTON MAN.

Several Well Known Persons Have Seen Portentown Pictures Reflected In Its Ovni Surface, Although It Will Not Work For All.

Will not work For All.

While all of us have heard in early childhood of the tales of magical mirrors, in which impossible heroes saw impossible heroines in danger, from which said beroes proceeded to rescue the fair maidens; yet such things have been relegated by most of us to the region of the imagination. We regard such things as being outside of the real world of today and belonging to the region of myth and fable. Yet, in spite of our pressic inheteenth century, it is nevertheless a fact that a Washingtop gentleman is the possessor of an article which might be classed as appropriately belonging to the time of Aladdin and the wonderful lamp.

This strange acquisition is a mirror

ing to the time of Aladdin and the wonderful lamp.

This strange acquisition is a mirror which came from India, and in which one can see the events which the future will bring forth. That such is its power is attasted by some of the best known gentlemen of the city, who, for obvious reasons, do not wish their names to be mentioned. This mirror came into the possession first of a Washington lady who was traveling in India, and, being interested in the religion of the country, took a trip to the famous temple of Alora, which lies in a rocky side of the foothills of the Himalays mountains. This temple is now but a ruin of jagged rock, jutting out harshly into the soft greensward that rolls smoothly down into the valley below. Above tower the vast mountains with their glittering caps of snow looking down on the peaceful tropical scene where for ages the followers of Brahma have performed their sacrod rites.

The ruins of the temple stand come to acred rites.

The ruins of the temple stand open to the ruins of the temple stand open to the weather, and its ancient glory, which shone in such splendor before the English came to India, is now diminished. But a small band of Brahuan monks still kep the sacred secrets and caremonies alive, Few Europeans ever penetrate this section of the mountains, but the Washington lady mounted and visited the monastery while there she mainged to secure possession of one of the mirrors made by the manks and reputed to possess wonderful properties

The lady brought the mirror with her The lady brought the mirror with her on her return to town, and at her death it came into the possession of Mr. Lowdermilk From him it was bought by a gentileman who takes great interest in such matters, but who would not like the fact of the existence of the mirror in his house to be known, as it would attract thousands of seekers after the curious. After paying quite a large sum for the glass the mirror was brought home and put to the test

The Government Secretly Guarding its Manufacture.

Whole Regiment General Miles and Other Frominent Military Men of the American Army Endorse M.

Warhington, D.C., June 28 .- A shell of terrific explosive power, wide rading nihilate by bursting fragments and a shock as effective as a streak of fightning, will be the feature of the fall campaign in the Philippine Islands.

Tests of the charge of this terrible engine of war are being made at Sandy Hook, the Government guarding close ly its secret of manufacture.

The desired feature of the shell are: First-That it may be discharged at ordinary artillery range. "
Second—That it will explode on s'rik-ing intrenchments or light structures. Third-That the envelope of the shell shall burst into hundreds of fragments and be projected in all directions as well as the contents of the shell.

Fourth-That the character of the explosion shall produce a fatal shock within a certain radius.

A shell of this nature charged with an explosive equal to melinite, or dynamite, failing near a battalion of the enemy would kill or cripple a very large percentage of the battalion. The chances of escape from this tremendous machine will be descreased 100 times, experts say, as compared with shrapnel discharged at the same objects.

General Miles favors this explosive, and his opin on is endorsed by other military experts.

Military men here my that the Enge lish beartened their Obdurman campaign by the use of teribly effective shells of this kund.

The execution of the shells was frightful. The Dervish columns were imated not only by the flying fragments, but numberless Derviahes were found untquehed by the shell, but killed by the shock as if by a stroke of light ning.

The servant who uses "Favorite Prescription" at a moderate price per bottle is much more likely to get well than her mistress who calls in an expensive, local physician. If she will write plainly to Dr. R. V. Pierce, at Buffalo, N. V., her case will have the attention of a physician who has cured more women than any one hundred other doctors and who has a record of over thirty years' successful practice. Her letter will be considered strictly confidential, will be promptly answered in a plain envelope, so that prying eyes of others may not get even a hint, and she will have the benefit of the very best medical skill without a cent of charge for it. Thousands of women have written and been cured. And by this method they have avoided the "examinations" and "local treatment" so invariably insisted upon by local practitioners and so abhorrent to every modest woman.

Remarkable Soap Shot. "The must remarkable map-shot picture in the world is owned by friend of mine in a town in Georgia," mid un enthusiastic amateur photo grapher. "Its story is extremely curious. It seems that he went one day to a blacksmith shop to get a shot at the men at the forge. The mith was engaged on a difficult piece of ironwork and had two helpers. Just behind them, on a shelf, was a flask of yellowish-white liquor, evident ly the corn whiskey, for which the native Georgian has a peculiar liking, As my friend was preparing to take his picture, one of the helpers caught sight of the bottle and communicated his discovery by dumb show to his companion. The smith's back was turned at the moment and the first man reached stealthily for the prise, while my triend, unnoticed in the corner, quickly aimed his camera. It was a comical scone, and in his mind he had already named the photo "The Stolen Drinkt' The helper uncorked his comrade enatched it and did like-Then for a brief, breathless instant they looked at each other, and as they did not their foolish grin gave horror as I never may before upon a then that the camera clicked and the picture is as clear as crystal. . The flask contained eigholic acid. Within an hour both men, were dead. When my friend took one print he broke the negative so as to make the photograph absolutely unique. It shows the forground is the awril, with the smith bending over his work. Hehind him are the two helpers, one still holding the flask, looking at the other."

Instant's Telegraph System.

In 1980, England nationalized the telegraph system Since then it has been operated as a hranch of the post-al murvice. The rates have been reduced, number of words in messages increased, none system abolished, and a uniform rate established throughout the United Kingdom, the rate of wages paid to employes have been largely increased and the hours of labor shortened. With all these improvements, government ownership has proved a great success, and the Government is now taking steps to set tomalize the belephone system. How long will Causda continue her present policy of allowing monopolistic holiers of franchises to dominate its affairs instead of operating the franchises for the people's besent.

THION BANK OF CAHADA

Is this issue we present the report of the proceedings of the 34th annual general meeting of the absreholders of the Union Hank of Canada, which year held at the banking-nouse in Quebec on Thursday, the 15th inst. The report shows that the past year has been one of prosperity for this

The net profits of the year, after deducting expenses of management, for interest and exchange, and making appropriations for bad and doubtful debts, amount to $222,945.76. Adding to this the balance at credit of provit and ions account, brought for ward from last year, $25,055.93, the amount reaches to $248,901.69. From this were paid two dividends at 3 per cent., amounting to $111,695.85, $4,-$100,000 transferred to Rest account, leaving $88,188.89 to be carried formard

TO AVOID LATER TROUBLES.

Walter T. Grat in, commercial agent o he United States at Limoges, reloyed is attracting the favorable atblomy in Great Britain, Germany, Norwiy and aweden.

The scheme," as it is described in brief, "consists in a cooperation of manufacturers and a workingmen to determine the actual cost of production and to fix the price at which goods can be sold without loss. The workmen are thus assured of their wages as a pro, ortion of the profit of the business, the manufacturar is assured of his profit and strikes and lockeyin are unknows." The thorough aratum of con-taking which has been introduced an emential to the working of the plan an essential to the working of the plan is said to have opened the eyes of many manufacturers and ifself has proved a great advantage.

The description given is hardly sufficient to enable one to form an intelligent, opinism as to the manner in which the system is made to work to the mutual satisfaction of employers and employed. Some points are left without a hist as to the manner in which they may be cleared up. For instance: How, does the ascertainment of the swarts and experimental elements of growth, and for this rescaled the swarts and his wages and the expert of the swarts and supplies.

In nearly all cases the male imparts the color. When white males are used all the chickens will be white.

Generally, ground bone is one of the best forms in which to give lime to the laying heas when they head it.

By using milk instead of water in mixing the not feed for fowls it serves both for moisture and nourishment in the plant of the white best forms in which to give lime to the laying heas when they head it.

One advantage.

Commend does no contain all the cases—that alements of growth, and for this reaches the swarts and all the color.

manufacturer of his profit ! It can hardly do this without assuring both that they will be able to get the price for the goods which must be had before either can be assured of getting a living share. How can the mere certainment of cost give assurance that the necessary price can be secured?

The method may assist in effecting an equitable arrangement between employer and employed; It may preserve wood understanding and tend to prevent contests, but it canno possibly aftect economic conditions in the manner suggested. Competition must still the ever-verying relations of supply and demand; for, even if it were toss ible, to control the supply, there would obviously be no possibility of anticipating the caprices of taste and tash on and there pre no possibility of anticipating demand. Therefore there can be no cer.minty in regard to price. And the exact ascertainment of cost cannot concribute materially to the control or prevision o. price. The new schema may serve good pur to es in improving the relations be tween employers and employed, but propably it is too much to say that where it is introduced strikes and lock outs will be entirely unknown. The a consummerion must devoutly to be wished by all except those who as walking delegates or in some other capacity thrive on labor wars. But it is to be reared than it will not be reached in the manner described by Mr. Gritten.

WANTED FIRE BELL CLOTHES. Just Made Cy Hie Mind to Kill That Town of St. Joe.

That Town of St. Jee.

"Ah'm come back home for some clothes, an Ah want 'em wahm," said a tail young negro to a Walnut street haberdasher one day last spring. "Ah'm jee' agoin to kill that town of St. Jee. Show me the heatedest clothes yo' got in the house."

He was not cool as to raiment to start with. His overcost was cream colored, overlaid with pearl buttons the size of those small butter plates still in use in restaurants. His trousars were green and ended in yallow shoes with brown shot sitk tops. His hat was light blue, mottled in brown; his gloves were red and his came heavily silvered.

"Can't no St. Joe nigger tell me Ah goes up to St. Joe to work, and the coons' there laugh at me and tell me Ah ain't from Kaneas City, because mah clothes is so inconspiculous, and Ah'm agoin back to kill the town. Now what I want is some underclothes and socks and shirts and things that are the wahmest you've got."

"How will these do?" asked the haberdasher, exposing some soariest hostery, banded with wide white stripes.

"That's it. That's the kind of clothes Ah want. They ain't nothin in St. Joe like that. Lemme look at them underwas."

He inspected some red underwear with like that Lemme look as them underwear."

He inepected some red underwear with white stripes, some of beby blue with pink stripes and others of green with blue, black and red stripes. He bought neck-coarts of every shade of red, blue and green and of the most bewildering patterns. His purchases included sebre collers and gale pink shirts, diamond scarfplus at 86 cents each; but with $85 of chine, and a brown waispons with sanries moons emblasoned on it.

"Ah've got 'em dead," he exclaimed when he had finished. "They've ceased to live. When Ah get back to that town of St. Joe they'll sak me if I come from Raytown, will they? Ah'm agoin to take back to that little ole burg such wahm clothes that they'll meet me with the flah department. That town's dead now, and Ah've killed it."

How Woulth In Carried.

"It is rather amusing," remarked the head of the biggest bureau de change in London to the writer, "to notice the varipus methods in which men of different hationalities carry their worldly wealth. The Englishman carries his all loose in his right hand trousers pocket—gold, allver and copper all mixed up together. He palls a handful of the mixture out of his pocket in a large, opulent way and selects the coins he has need of. The American carries his wad of bills in a peculiar long, narrow pockethook, in which the green-backs lie flas; the Frenchman makes use of a leather purse with no distinguishing characteristics, while the German uses one gayly embroidered in silks by the fair hands of some Lottchen or Mina.

"The half civilizat capitalist from some torrid South American city carries his dollars in a belt with cunningly devised pockets to haffle the gentlemen with the light fingers. Some of these belts are very expensive. The Italian of the poores classes ties up his little fortune in a gayly colored handkerchief soured with many knots, which he secretse in some myeterious manner about his clothes. A similar course has charms for the Spaniard, while the lower class Russian exhibits a preference for his boots ch, the lining of his clothes as a hiding plates for his savings."—London Answers.

HEIR TO THRONE OF CZAR.

Daily are the Russian people exp ing the arrival of the long promised bely to the throne of Russia, and it is possible that soon all the anxieties in con nection with the succession of the Russian crown will have been terminated by the birth to the emperor of a son, to whom the moribund Grand Duke George would of course, he obliged at once, to surrender his title and statues of ozers

There is no doubt, too, that if the am press gives birth to a boy it will not only vanily improve her position in ttumia, but wist likewise modity the entire policy of the government. In fact, the birth of a boy is regarded by many an destined to prove the inauguration of a new and more enlightened and progre-save era for Russia

Washington, June 28.—Replying to a cable from the War Department re mtuation in the Philippines, Gen. Otis mys that the insurports of the suffered great comes and are scattered, only about 4,000 holding together in Tarmo Province and Acothern Pampanage. The non-combatant population desire peace and American protection, and welcome the arrival of the American troops instead of fleeing from them as formerly. The American relidars have been worked to the limit of endurance. The volunteer regiments have been onlied in, and have been replaced by regulars. The sickness among the troops has increased lately, due mostly to the most arduous service and climatic influences. The regular regiments lately received are inadequadely officered, and those who served in Cuba break under a recurrence of the Cuban fever. mys that the insurgent armies have

THE COOKBOOK.

A nourishing dish may be made from cooked meet by stowing it very alowly in really good stock or gravy for 1% hours.

An Italian way to give the touch of garlle to the salad is to rub a piece of bread with it and put it in the salad dish, where it lends its davor through the dish as the salad is tossed.

Cook twice as much hominy as you want for a meal and pack what is left in a square dish. Next day out in alloes, fryin pork fat and serve with maple sirap. Rice is good fried in the same way, and oblydren are very fond of both.

For baking, the hanana should be green, but neither too green nor too ripe. It but neither too grown nor too ripe. It but neither too grown nor too ripe. It may be made most delictous by peeling and relling in brown sugar and baking in a buttered pan in a very bot oven. It should be served around blane mange.

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Consciousness, After Baving Soon s

Consciousness, After Having Soon a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, cheety and sasay about my puglilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Plerrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical stadents, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately.
I had a lot of athletic gear along with me —clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modsetly threw the hint out that I'd never yes met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amastur class. For a couple of nights running I letthen look at me in the act of punching a hag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an uneafe proposition to get addled up with in a scrap.

'One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't serten until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced ms to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him.

'I didn't quite understand what they class lip 'em on with me.'

'I li just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you wank. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him, 'they urged this man. 'He won's hurt you. You're had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go abead and give him a little executs.

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his cost on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gause undershirt, I couldn't help but look as the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest thest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were lively on his feet, so we went at it.

'Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven's you?' "'I've had 'em om a few times,' he re-plied quietly. 'Let's; have another short plied quietly.

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he eaught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the sir—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among sem—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out hence as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other follows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the oold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?"

"No, I didn't," said I "Who te he—John L. Sullivan?"

"Not exactly Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This, went on the young follow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. England's Telegraph System.

In 1869, England nationalized the telegraph system: Siwa then it has been operated as a branch of the post-al merica. The rates have been reduced, number of words is messages increased, none system abolished, and a uniform rate established throughout the United Kimpdom, the rate of wages paid to surployee have been largely increased and the bours of labor shortened: With all these improvements, government overbriship has proved a great success, and the Government is now taking steps to set togalize the telephone system. How long will Carada continue her present policy of allowing monopolistic holders of franchises to dominate its affairs instead of operating the franchises for the people's benefit;

paper Publisher to Do.

What Uncle Bill Wanted the Newspaper Publisher to De.

A number of newspaper men were exchanging reminiscences a few days ago in a Court street inn. One of them, by the way, was an ex-publisher—that it to say, he once owned and edited a paper in the upper section of the state. One of his subscribers was William Makepeace Thackersy Willington, whose neighbors called him "Uncle Bill" to save time and labor. "One day Uncle Bill walked into my office," said the former publisher. "He placed his whip in a corner and removed his hat. He asked if I was the editor. I pleaded guilty. 'Shake,' said he. 'I am glad to know ye. When I was a young faller, I used to do some writin myself." "Uncle Bill lapsed into stlence and did some solid thinking for several minutes. Then he resumed the conversation. He said he liked the appearance of The Banner of Freedom mighty well and hoped it was not only bringing me fame, but money also. Naturally my bosom swelled with pride. The old man mid he had only a few minutes to spare, and, before leaving, he wished to ask a faror. I supposed that he was about to spring a little poem which he had dashed off all by himself, but that wasn't the case. Uncle Bill said: "'My son, I want to ask yon a special favor. My eyes are not as strong as they were, and I would like to have you print my copy of the paper in a type two or three sizes larger than you use in the requiar edition. Now, mind, I don't want you to do this for nothin. I'm willin to pay for it. Here's the money, and if that im's enough let me know when my subscription is due again and I'll pay what's owin."

"The old man dove his right hand into his pocket, fished out a silver half dollar and planked it on my table, saying: 'There's the money. If that ien't enough it cover the extree expense, let me know when I call in next spring, and I'll make it good. I'm willin to pay for any little favors.' Before I could explain the impossibility of his scheme he jumped into his buggy and started off Tor Deep Hollow."

Edison Endeavoring to Make Automobiles Light and Cheap.

CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS.

Edison, the inventor, is working on plans to make automobile vehicles light or how the Edison motor carriages are to my, but that he will succeed in turning out acmething better than anything just acmething better than anything just acmething better than anything just placed on the market he is confident. He laughs at the French idea of motor tricycles, and declares that he will turn out a tricycle which can be sold at a low price and which will run 150 miles with sur being recharged. He is looking for simplicity, and he mys he will not be satisfied with anything that a child: cannot safely operate, and that will not be entirely noiseless.

"Come up have some day, into few weeks," said Mr. Edison ."and, you'll see us running all around these park roads and drives."

On the subject of automobiles in general Mr. Edison is enthusiastic. He declared it will be a faster of only a few years when horses will be curiosities. When the automobile is perfected, Mr. Edison asys, the price of a buggyt or two-seated carriage will be less than that of a goom team of horses, and it will cost only on-fifth as much for maintenance.

Speaking of the proposed international automobile race between Charron the French inventor, and Winton, the American manufacturer, Mr. Edison declared that the Erenchman would not be baard of at the finish.

"Charron's machine," said Mr. Edison, 'was built for the roads in his own country, where they have billiard tables to ride on. When he gets over here he will stick in the mud and Winton was ahead of the American, but in to my, but that he will succeed in turn ing out something better than any

THE COOKBOOK.

A nourishing dish may be made from socked meat by stewing it very slowly in really good stock or gravy for 1% hours. An Italian way to give the touch of garlie to the salad is to rub a piece of bread with it and put it in the salad dish, where it lends its flavor through the dish as the salad is tossed.

come curious examples of depravity among wild beasts.

The best story is that of the Mew May lean wolf who led a band that killed a cow a day for five years. Finally the ranchers effered $1,000 for this wolf's pait. He was antily distinguished. His track was an inch wider than that of other wolves.

A professional wolf hunter tried to earn the bounty, but the wolves killed his dogs, and he gave it up. Then Mr. Thompson took the cass. He melter there in the fast of a helfer in a china dish cut it into lumps with a bone knife to avoid the taint of metal and put in strychnine and cylandic in odor proof capsules. He wors gloves steeped in cow's blood and avoided breathing on the halts.

The halts were picked up. He followed the track and found that the wolf had laid all four together and scattered dirt over them.

The wolves then took to killing sheep. Traps were set to the number of 180 in different parts of the ranch. The trails of the big wolf and of the pack were traced up to one set of traps. An of the doings of the leader were marked in the dust.

He had stopped the rest, warned by roant, and extracted around the trap till be found the buried chain and picket. On another part of the ranch he entered an H-shaped series of traps and detected the danger. The trail showed that he had clowly backed out on his swn track, putting each paw down backward until out of the dangerons ground. He had then sprung some of the traps by sorrateing clods and stones backward as them with danger. The trail showed that he had slowly backed out on his wan track, putting each paw down backward until cost of the dangerous ground. He had then sprung some of the traps by scratching clods and stones backward as them with his hind feet.

He was as last caught by dragging over the traps the body of a female wolf, the stens of which he fellowed.

No more skillful criminal than this welf was ever known. Old liph, a lame grissly, which in two years reised half the hog raisers in the Sacramento valley by his wasteful love of pork, was a close second. A bobtalled wolf kept the whole ofty of Paris in terror for ten years at the heignning of the fourteenth contury, and the Lechner penthier, in India, killed 300 human beings in less than two years.

A famous rogue dog of Darbyshire was conspicuous by its faithful care of thesp in the daytime, but was swape-and ugly toward mea strangers. It shept in the hears worrying took place to the farme near.

At heat it was tracked in the snow from a fold where 30 sheep had been killed to the farm where it lived, the dog having forgother that the track would about, though its took partial means to conoual if by running along the top of a some wall

E. Seton Thompson, naturalist to the overnment of Manisoba, gives in his ook, "Wild Animals I Have Known." ome curious examples of depravity among thd beasts.

A Superstition of the Sea Semetime Met With on Land.

The toiling of a spectral bell is one of the familiar superstitions of the sea, and aspecially is the illusion common along this section of the gulf coast. What causes it nobody has ever learned, but there is hardly a luggerman from Mobile to the passes who has not, at one time or another, heard the sound. They describe the note as extraordinarily sweet and clear, rising and falling in solemn cadence and always seemingly close at hand. It is critically different, they say, from any other noise of the coesn, and they soout the theory that it could possibly be produced by wares.

noise of the cosan, and they scout the theory that it could possibly be produced by waves.

"It isn't water," said an old scafaring man the other night, "and, for that matter, it's sometimes heard on land. I know, because I've listened to it myself. Back in 1877, if you care to hear the story, I quit saliorising for awhile and went out west and tried mining. I had a partner named Whicher, and, away up in the Sierra Madre range, in north New Mexico, we found an outcropping of rotten quarts that showed gold. It looked so good that we started to sink a shaft, although it was the most God foreaken spot you ever laid eyes on. It was in a little canyon, a thousand miles from nowhers, ugly black peaks all around us, and lonely—well, lonely is no name for it.

"One day, while Whicher was in the hole and me at the windless he heard the bell. It was clear as my voice and scenned right over a mountain spur, where we knew there was no living being for three days' travel. It rang awhile and then stopped. Next day it rang again, slow, solemn and plainer than ever. It was broad daylight, and that made the thing all the worse, which sounds funny, but is true. We scood it four times, and then Whicher climbed out of the hole and said, 'Lot's go.' I was willing. I believe we had a good thing, but that bell—at was too many for us. It makes my flesh crawl to think about it even now."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The expression "crocodile tears" can be found in almost every European language, but it is doubtful if one in a thousand of those who use it have an idea of its origin.

We are told in the Bestiary of Guillaume le Clerc that when the crocodile finds an unwary traveler it devours him, but after ward weeps over him all the rest of its life. This is very evidently the allusion in "Othello," "Each drop she falls would prove a crocodile" (1, 957).

There is another version of the fable, however, which is more often referred to in literature, and according to which the traveler to destruction. Shakespeare alludes to this in the passage where he tells how the most reful crocodile.

MILITARY PARADE.

An Able Sermon to the Soldiers by Rev. [3. C. Bavidson Sunday Afternoon.

On Sunday afternoon the annual church parade of the 57th Battalion was held. The members assembled at the drill shed about 3.30 o'clock, and accompanied by the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, marched to St. John's church. The battation was in command of Lt. Col. Bell, while Lt.-Col. H. C. Rogers was in charge of the Dragoons. They made a fine appearance and the parade was witnessed by a large number of on at St. John's church by The sermon at St. John's church' by Chaplain Davidson was an able and impressive discourse from the text, "They stood every man in his place." He emphasized the necessity of obeliance and discipline in military circles, and said that quality is betfar than quanaity, a small army of obedient well disciplined soldiers than a large army of men upon whom; depandengs cannot be placed.

After the service the brigade returned to the drill shed where Lt-Col. Bell dismissed them for the season, drill to be resumed again in September.

Brought us more Business than any other month since opening in Peterborough.

The old wav of retailing was to rest after May and June trade till fall business got brisk in September. The new way is to crowd down prices and pick up new and desirable lives at very low figures during the-e months, and turn them over quickly on small margins, thereby keeping up the volume of trade the year round. We start the month with these quotations, all worth investigating.

Simia, Hindostan, July 4 .-- Fuller de ails of the disturbances in the Tinne velly district. Madras, are now at hand. According to these, one town, compris-ing 200 houses, of the Shanars was burnt to the ground. Over two hundred murders are said to have been committed, the people being backed to pieces and thrown into the flames of the burning houses. Altogether fifty ourned to the ground.

The Scientific American mays that the nestion of good roads is of even mormi ortance to the farmer than to the wheelmen seeing that the condition of the roads makes a serious difference one way or the other in his yearly profits As the result of an inquiry made, in 1895 Agriculture, replies were received from many countries giving the cost of hauling crops in the various parts of the farm districts. In order to compare the oads of the United States with those o Europe the bureau through its consol a made careful inquiry on the subject ocost of fauling, in England, France Germany, Heigium, Italy and Switzeriand The average cost of hauling one ton one mile was found to be in England 10 cents in Germany 81-2 cents, in Helgium 91-2 cents, in Italy 71-2 cents, and in Switzerland from 6108 cents while in America the cost is 25 cents. More than one tause may enter into this determination of cost, but that the great cost in America is due to poorly made roads is proved by the fact that while over the augustivoids of Europe a farmer will haul three or four tons at a load, our farmers are able to haul only a ton orless thanks ton over the "plow and scraper" ridge of soil which even at this late day is dignified by the name of road in many parts of the country. VINEGAR, THEN LEAD

"I think my most exciting official experience," said Captain J. E. Stone, formerly United States postal inspector, "was at the town of Carbonville Colo, in 1879. It was a star route post, and there was much complaint about the non-receipt of mail, so I went over to investigate.

"The postmaster was a man named Wilson, who kept a general store, and the postoffice consisted of a sesp box on the end of his counter. When mail arrived, it was dumped in, and every fellow helped himself, an arrangement that worked well enough until a chap known as Black Hills Pete came to town. Pete disturbed the entire system. When he didn't get a letter himself, he would near up several others on the principle that misery loves company, and, being a notorious desperado, nobody dared interfere. I got the facts, and as the mail came in that evening I took a seat in the corner and awaited developments first ordering the box re-The postmaster was a man named Wiled developments; first ordering the box re

It was All the Same to the Man Whe Was Treatles.

Individuality is lost sight of in the cities. It is swallowed up, as it were, in the mob. In a village it stands out with surprising distinctness. The odd characters of the place are known to everybody, and their queer sayings and doings are told from mouth to mouth.

In accertain little town not a great ways from Citeceland there are probably as many of these peculiar people as any place of its size can boast. One of them is an ancient man who longs for the good old times that followed the war and is a firm believer in the criminal weakness of the present financial system. He is a man of considerable property, but nevertheless is economical to an extreme degree. In fact, he was never known to spend a penny that didn't go for some actual necessity.

There is another character in the town who keeps the village general store. He is a good hearted fellow, who, after a long course of bachelorhood, finally married. In this little town it is the custom for the happy bridegroon; to set up the cigars for all the congratulating males who drop in Campaigning With a Fiddle.

When a young man, the late ex Governor Oglesby worked in the old Macon tayers. There he uset the lawyers riding the circuit and formed the acquaintance of Judge Robbins of Springfield, with whom he studied law two years. Returning to Iberstur, he began practicing in a town of 400 inhabitants. He soon became popular as a speaker. On one occasion he was making a Whig speech on one side of the square, while a Democrat was making an opposition speech on the other side. The Democrat was fast getting the crowd when Mr. Oglesby, who was an old fashioned fiddler and played as well as he spoke, borrowed a fiddle from a man in the crowd and began to play. That broke up the opposition meeting, and the Democrat, left without an antilence, came over and joined the crowd that was dancing to Oglesby's music. Campaigning With a Fiddle.

UNCLE JOHN'S MODEL WIFE WAS EQUAL TO THE OCCASION.

An Exciting Race That Was Grandly Jast Because This Clever Woman "Seen Her Duty, and She Dono It."

imy wife is one ur them women the Lord only makes a few ur, and them mighty scatterin She's jist ar good natured and happy now as she wus when I courted her. but Mandy ain's eil mush and spoon victuals, and there's times when ahe has to be handled with keer er somethin will be spiled. She's got temper a-plenty, and she ain's afsered uv the old serpent himself. I mind one thing she done once thas I'll never fergit of I live to be older than the parson's wife's bonnet.

"In them days Mandy weighed a hunderd and eighty-seven pounds in her stockin fest, and I wux only a scant hunderd and forty. We had on the farm all tha time seven er eight head uv fine horses, and one winter we had a pair uv 4-year-olds that we prided ourselves perfectee on, fer they had been takin premiums at the fair-very, year since her wux yearlin's. They had speed, too, and we thought they couldn't be beat by anything in that neck uv woods, but a neighbor uv ours named Hall—everybody knowed Jim Hall, jies like they knowed me—had a pair he had bought in the next county that he offered to bet a cow and calf could beat ours hands down. He used to let men the point pay the first force yet. The single yet of the hand had any we'd show him something when the goin got good.

"You see, it was along in November then, and the roads hadn't frose yet. The first jim wow come in December with a mighty cold goal per seed to be a cow and fine sleight, and one afternoon Mandy and in about a week er sen days we had fine sleight, and we said fre me, and I had the team to the cutter and out at the gate waitin fer the ledy in less than no time.

"The team wux feelin as frisky as kitman to the cutter and out at the gate waitin for the ledy in less than to time. The team wur feelin as frisky as kitman to the cutter and out at the gate waitin fer the ledy in less than the time the bean of the pay the Jim wont abeed with a yell that made my sers stand out like windmill flappers.

"I was that daxed fer a minute at Mandy that I couldn't do a lick, and, descon though I wus, I'm afcerd I'd a-used language that wouldn't have sounded exactly right in Sunday school, but before I had a chance to make a more Mandy made a flyin leap over the side uv the sleigh and lit in the deep snow. Then I was dazeder than ever and had some kind uv an idee that we'd been struck by an earthquake or something and Mandy wus killed, and I must go back after her and dig her out. But the team had their senses with them, and when they felt they had nigh two hunderd pounds less load to haul than before Mandy jumped they didn't stop to see what had happened, but let theselves out on a spurt that wus chuck full uv chain lightnin, and out uv the snowdrift I could hear Mandy scream. 'Go it, John; you're all right now.'

"And so I wus, and so was Mandy, fer before Jim knowed that anything had happened I was up with him, alongside, neck and nuck, nose and nose, ahead and past, and when I pulled up at the toil gate he wus ten lengths behind and too much surprised to even cuss." Mandy wus in the middle sw the road bruishin the snow out uv her clothes and waitin fer me as I come hack, and when I and I' di give her a new silk dress fer that she said it wus only what any wife ought to do fur her husband, but she couldn't prove it by showin me where any other wife had ever done it, and I made her take the dress in spite uv herself. Than's the kind uff a heroine my wife is," and Uncle John went down into his inside pocket and finded out a quaint, old fashioned daguerrootype in a brand new gitt frame.— Chicago Inter Ocean.

POLITICAL QUIPS.

E. Seton Thompson, naturalise to the government of Manitobe, gives in his book, "Wild Animals I Have Known," some curious examples of depravity among some curious examples of depravity among wild beasts.

The best story is that of the Mew Mex lean wolf-who led a band that killed a cow a day for five years. Finally the ranchers offered $1,000 for this wolf's pelt. He was easily distinguished. His 'track was an inch wider than that of other wolves.

A professional wolf hunter tried to earn the bounty, but the wolves killed his dogs, and he gave it up. Then Mr. Thompson took the casa. He melted there in the fast of a helfer in a china dash, cut it into iumps with a bone knife to avoid the taint of metal and put in strychnine and cyanide in odor proof capsules. He wore gioves steeped in cow's blood and avoided breathing on the baits.

The baits were picked up. He followed the track and found that the wolf had laid all four together and scattered dirt over them.

the track and found that the wolf had laid all four together and scattered dirt over them.

The wolves then took to killing sheep. Traps were set to the number of 130 in different parts of the ranch. The trails of the big wolf and of the pack were traced up to one set of traps, and the doings of the big wolf and of the pack were traced up to one set of traps, and the doings of the leader were marked in the dust.

He had stopped the rest, warned by seens, and soratched around the trap till he found the buried chain and picket. On another part of the ranch he entered as H-shaped series of traps and detected the danger. The trail showed that he had slowly backed out on his own track, putting each paw down backward until out of the dangerous ground. He had then sprung some of the traps by scratching clods and stones backward at them with his hind feet.

He was at last caught by dragging over the traps the body of a female wolf, the seems of which he followed.

No more skillful criminal than this wolf was ever known. Old Eph, a lame grissly, which in two years ruined half the bog ralsers is the Sacramento valley by his wasteful love of pork, was a close second. A bobtailed wolf kept the whole city of Paris in terror for ten years at the beginning of the fourteenth century, and the Lochnee panther, in India, killed 300 human beings in less than two years.

A famous rogue dog of Derbyshire was conspicuous by its faithful care of sheep in the doubt man beings in less than two years.

A famous rogue dog of Derbyshire was conspicuous by its faithful care of sheep in the daytime, but was savage and ugly toward men strangers. It slept in the house and was never suspected, though sheep worrying took place on the farms bear.

At last it was tracked in the snow from a fold where 30 sheep had been killed to the farm where it lived, the dog having forgotten that the track would show, though it took partial means to conceal it by running along the top of a stone wall

"Next to the art of living justly and kindly with our fallows comes the art of maintaining a life of happiness and twanguillity," writes the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis of "The Secrets of a Happy Life" in The Ladies' Home Journal, "for the soul was made for Joy and good sheer. Life is a school; labor and sorrow, victory and defeat toll together as teachers, but happiness is life's aim and graduating print. Next to the duty of self desirable to the art of the lark, what culture and reflement are to the intellect, that happiness is to the soul. As vulgarity and ignorance betoken a neglected mind, so unhappiness and missery proposite the neglected heart.

"The normal nature will keep strong and fresh the chords that vibrate Joy. Depression and worry take the nerve out of man's arm, take the keep edge from his mind, rob life of its victory, for unhappiness wins no battles, gloom invents ne tool.

mind, rob life of its victory, for unbap-piness wins no battles, gloom invents no tool, wretchedness writes no drams. Earth's great achievements represent those whose hearts song over the tasks. To nose storm with calm, defeat with faith, in-gratitude with charity, is not an easy thing Nothing requires so much wisdom, practice and skill as learning how to live habitually above the distemperatures of life.

The presidential bees have gathered bery little honey thus far in the campaign.

Scone-He Doclares His Condet

London, July3.—The correspondent of the Daily Telegraph at Brest says -"Drayfus was guarded on board the Blaz. Ilbu a wild beast. He was isolatof like a cholers-stricken patient. If have gone to his grave believing that Gen. de Boisdefere was his courageous friend and champion, and altomether ignorant that such a man as Colonel Ploquert' exists."

Ronnes, France, July 3.-Maitres Labori sufi Damhaga, counsel for Drayfus, who had a long conference with Madame Drayfus restorday, vis-Ited Dreyfus in the military prison this mornistr.

On entering the room, M. Damange and Dreyfus threw themselves into each other's arms. The scene was most touching. Neither was able to utter a word, but warmly embraced. M. Demangs then presented M. La-horf, who had been s atlent spectator. Dreyfusi classed 'Labori's hamd and, do a voice choked by emotion, expressed the despect gratitude for the splandid in which M. Labori had chamnlowed his cause.

Ris composure is the theme of all tongues. It seems that is the train one of the officers began to read a newspaper, but although Drayfus had not seen a newspaper since he left Frames, he did not display the slight-

He is credited on good authority with the following utterance — "My condemnation and sentence were the symbol of anti-Jewish odium. 1 My judges were involuntarily deceived. May my undeserved explation put amends to all recial or religious feeds in the army and in Shat France which I have passionately loved and derved."

We read in a London newspaper than Mr. Swinburne goes in swimming after he has finished a pount, and some one observes that he has to do thit in order to upl off, but the literary journals that are always printing stories of the methods and resentations of distinguished authors have overlooked one author, who sums up and sends in his schedule as follows:

"I rise at 10. Then I take a stroll of ten miles for ensuries. Then I breakfast on ten rolls—when I can get them. That does, I write a posen for $10 and get is back in ten days. Before 10 e'clock at night ten hill collectors have called on me. I receive ten lectors daily. I have ten in my family.

THE SPECTRAL BELL

A Superstition of the Son Semetimes Met With on Land.

The tolling of a spectral bell is one of the familiar superstitions of the see, and sepecially is the illusion common along this section of the gulf coast. What causes it nobody has ever learned, but there is hardly a luggerman from Mobile to the passes who has not, at one time or another, heard the sound. They describe the note as extraordinarily sweet and clear, rising and falling in solemn cadence and always seemingly close at hand. It is entirely different, they say, from any other noise of the ocean, and they soout the theory that it could possibly be produced by waves.

"It isn't water," said an old seafaring

ory that it could possibly be produced by waves.

"It isn't water," said an old seafaring man the other night, "and, for that matter, it's sometimes heard on land. I know, because I've listened to it myself. Back in 1877, if you care to hear the story, I quit sailorising for awhile and went out west and tried mining. I had a partner named Whicher, and, away up in the Sierra Madre range, in north New Mexico, we found an outcropping of rotten quarts that showed gold. It looked so good that we started to sink a shaft, although it was the most God formker spot you ever laid eyes on. It was in a little canyon, a thousand miles from nowhere, ugly black peaks all around us, and lonely—well, lonely is no name for it.

"One day, while Whicher was in the hole and me at the windlass he heard the bell. It was clear as my voice and seemed hole and me at the windlass he heard the bell. It was clear as my voice and seemed right over a mountain spur, where we knew there was no living being for three days' travel. It rang awhile and then stopped. Next day it rang again, slow, solemn and plainer than ever. It was broad daylight, and that made the thing all the worse, which sounds funny, but is true. We shood it four times, and them whicher climbed out of the hole and said, 'Lee's go.' I was willing. I believe we had a good thing, but that bell—it was too many for us. It makes my flesh crawl to think about it even now."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

When he is sulling a 50 cent article, he says vase in the ordinary way, with the long sound of the 'a,' but when he comes to a big piece of cloisonne it is varse, with the broad 'a' every time. That is according to rule. Over $10 in price you find a varse, but under that nothing but an ordinary, everyday vase."—New York Times.

Creecedile Tears.

Crocodile Tears.

The expression "crocodile tears" can be found in almost every European language, but it is doubtful if one in a thousand of those who use it have an idea of its origin. We are told in the Bestiary of Guillaume le Clerc that when the crocodile finds an unwary traveler it devours him, but afterward weeps over him all the rest of its life. This is very evidently the allusion in "Othello," "Each drop she falls would prove a crocodile" (1, 257). There is another version of the fable, however, which is more often referred to in literature, and according to which the crocodile sheds tears in order to allure the traveler to destruction. Shakespears alludes to this in the passage where he tells how

DENSEST FOREST ON EARTH.

Redwood Enough to Last 300 Years at Present Rate of Cutting.

Redweed Energh to Last 300 Years at Present Rate of Cutting.

The habitat of the redwood is peculiar. It is found only in a narrow strip, closely hugging the Pacific coast, stretching from the southern boundary—for there are perhaps 1,000 acres of redwood in Oregon—southward through northern California, nearly to the bay of San Francisco.

The closest and finest growth is in Humbold toounty, near the northern end. That portion in Mendocino and Sonoma counties is not as heavy or continuous, nor are the trees as valuable for lumber, as they branch lower down. The wood is, however, of allower growth, is denser and harder and perhaps more durable. The best lumber and the baviest growth are verywhere in the valleys and on the flats. On the billiddee the trees are smaller and not so close. Nowhere is there any young growth. The youngest trees, which are found only in the northern perition of the belt, are several hundred years of age.

This is probably the densest forest on earth, as measured by the amount of timber per acre smitable for the same of the size of the gray things, but it is the great number of trees, the closeness of their stand. In a redwood forest the sun never shines—it is always twilight. You are, as it were, under the care of area of the redwood belt has been carefully mapped and is, as nearly as can be estimated, 3,000 square miles, or 1,280,000 acres. The stand of timber on this area is not so easy to ascertain, but may be computed thus:

·	Foot.
Del Norte county	4,000,000,000
Enmboldt county	42,000,000,000
Mendocino county	28,100,000,000
Sonoma county, my
Total	75,160,000,000
The annual cut by the mills	is $50,000,-
000 f-st AA Abs

The annual cut by the mills is $60,000,000 feet. At the present rate of cutting, therefore, the supply will last $00 years. In the Mendecino county there is nearly nine times as much timber on an acre as in the southern pineries. In Humboldt county, upon 96,448 acres, the average stand is $4,000 feet per sore, nearly 17 times as great as in the southern states. There is one cause of destruction from which this tree is entirely exampt; that is firs. Containing no pitch, but, on the other hand, a large amount of water, is will not burn when green. No fire can run in a redwood forest. It is the only one of our coniferous lumber trees which is thus exampt.

Redwood is in almost universal use on the California coast. In the construction of houses little other timber is used, even as far south as Los Angeles and San Diego. It is exported as far south as Valparaiso and westward to Japan and Australia. Indeed, considering its cheapness, $14 per 1,000 feet in Eureka for the best, it seems strange that it has not found its way in quantity to the Atlantic coast. Certain it is that before many years redwood will supplant the now vanishing white pine in essern markets.—National Geographic Magazine.

Finnator Lodge responded with a most patriotic expression of the determination of the American people to carry on self carry/one'the war in the Philippines, "not selfishly, but fog the civiliustion of that geople."

Marky Twain also responsed to the same sentiment, keeping the company mostgot the time in heals of laughter, but closing with this pathetic reference to the alliance—(Wannewar one soldier finds himself beneath the shelten of the other's flag; he known he is not a him, but a kinsmen of the blood and at home."

"Cardinal Vaughen responded to "the community of English-spenking mations," saying that the destiny of the new century depended on the question whather the despotio power now koming in North Asia or the Biberty-lawing Anghe-chanon was to control the great, uncivilined easts.

A CROWD IN A PANIC.

Ypstianti, Mich., July 5.-There was Testianti. Mich., July 5.—There was a amost tragic end to the Four h of July celebration here. About 12 000 had assembled to witness the fireworks last night, and when a stray spark ignited almost half of them and rockets began to pour onto the crowd there was a frensied rash for affety. In the crush a great many were bruised and trampled on, but fortunately no one was killed. An infant may die.

a Hunter flaved by His Knewledge of the Hennet's Habigs.

Only these familiar with the "mannens and customs" of the elephant have any idea what a nimble creature it really is. Massive and alow footed as it looks, it is capable, when roused, of feets that would be difficult for much fleeter animals. He postally is this the ones with African elephants, which, though taller, are generally lighter than their Asiatic brethren. Hereover, accustomed for ages to lead a will life and often depanding on their alectness and speed of foot for their very entenness, they have acquired a skill in gymnastes which has occasionally taken even old elephant hunters by surpriss.

In illustration of this fact we are reminded of a steey told by one of the sportunen in Africa. He was "out after elephants" and had just fired at and wounded a magnificent specimen. Unfortunately for him, he had only succeeded in elightly wounding it, when, infuriated by the attack, it turned and charged him. It was a terrifying sight. With its ensemous are spread out like sails and emitting swither from the ground like a runnway locumotive. The hunter fired another shot, but the first proud of rags, it came thundering over the ground like a sune a thundering swith the climbing powers of the elephant, he thought his pursuer might be haffled by the steepness of the accent.

It was a terrible disappointment to find that the elephant could citimb a hill just an quickly as the hunter, nimble runner as he was. The fugitive, indeed, would have soon been overtaken M he had not thought of a really ingendous runs. He knew that elephants never run, or even walk, down a steep inolian, but always cround down, gather their feet tagether, less well hack and side down. Just as the farectous animal had got within a few yards of him, therefore, the willy hunter suddenly doubled and run down the hill again.

The lumber had just time to spring out of the way as the great busst came "toboggasting" after him, smashing before it like an avalancie. Then ence more the lumber dashed to the top of the hill, while the elegismi, unable to stop itself, went carsering down to the very foot, where, apparently fielding very now and disappointed, it sope and walked wearily back to its settly words.—Chums.

In an English coal mine a few years age a callons youth victously pricked a pony with his peakuits. The wounded animal kicked out furiously, overturning and breaking several safety lamps. it Was All the Same to the Man Who Was Treating.

Individuality is lost sight of in the cities. It is swallowed up, as it were, in the mob. In a village it stands out with surprising distinctness. The odd characters of the place are known to everybody, and their queer sayings and doings are told from mouth to mouth.

In a certain little town not a great ways from Cleveland there are probably as many of these peculiar people as any place of its size can boast. One of them is an ancient man who longs for the good old times that followed the war and is a firm believer in the criminal weakness of the present financial system. He is a man of considerable property, but nevertheless is economical to an extreme degree. In fact, he was never known to spend a penny that didn't go for some actual necessity.

There is another character in the town who keeps the village general store. He is a good hearted fellow, who, after a long course of backelorhood, finally married in this little town it is the sustom for the happy bridegroony to set up the cigars for all the congratulating males who drop in to wish him joy. So the bridegroom in this instance had a box on the counter, and most of his patrons were regaled from it.

The storekeeper slightly blushed.
"Been gettin married."
"Who? You?"
"Yep. Ma."
"An you're standin treat, ch?"
"Yep," said the storekeeper.
The old man ploked up a cigar.
"How much did these seegars cost ye.
Ab?" he inquired.
"Oh," replied the storekeeper, "they sost me 'hout 4 cents. They're nickel sigars."
The old man dropped the cigar back in the box. Then his gase wandered around the store.
"Well, Ab," he slowly drawled, "cf it'e all the same to you, I'll take a pound o' nails."

And he got them.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

James Wyllis, the "Herd Laddis," on a very wet and tempestuous day, many years ago, turned into a little roadside inn near Lookmaben. Soon afterward he was joined by a couple of strangers, the younger of whom, a burly farmer, began to boast about his predicioncy on the "dambrod," as the draught board is called in Rootland. He was at once challenged by the Herd Laddie to play and consented, while the game was attentively watched by the third man, a person of rugged aspect. Time after time Wyllie swept the board, while the vanquished farmer fumed, swore and fairly lost his temper.

Suddenly the third party broke silence with the following warning to his companion:

London, July 4 .- An authentic account has been received of the mass nere of the French expedition under Captain Caremajou, at Zinder, on the Western borders of the Bornu country, and reveals one of the blackest atories of treachery ever practiced by Arab Cat-tain Casemajou was on his way to Lake Chard, and called, at Zinder on the way, being apparently well received by the Emir. The captain was accompanied by an Arab interpreter and an escort of thirty-three Senegless of the Emir was hypocritical, and greparations were even then being made to entrap the French officer.

A deep pit was dug in the centre of a but, and the mouth of it covered over with rushes. The Emir and his attendants thereupon proceeded this hut, and ranged themselves at the back of the but behind the pit which faced toward the openingmessage was then sent to the French tefficer requesting his presence at a royall pelaver.

Suspecting no evil, Captain Casemajou and his interpreter, accompan ied by tun soldiers and a sergeant, made his way to the appointed rendesvous. The soldiers were requested to re-Captain Casemajou and the Arab went

Captain Casemajou and the Arab went in. Hardly had they got inside, when they were either pushed or fell into the pit. A native who was there at the rime, and who subsequently, communicated these facts to the British authorities in Upper Nigeria, affirms that the victims were thereupon buried allies, the pit being filled up over their bodies and stamped down. Masswrhile the except outside the Emile's hut was attached on all aidea. The ouslaught was totally unserpected, and only three out of the ten men someoning the ascort managed to except the alasm. Fix men, isoluting the surgeaut, were taken prisoners, thugged to the principal gate of the town and there decapitated.

ESCORT ATTACKED.

The French camp itself was then attacked by thousands of natives, but the gallant hantful of conegalese auccorded, after a despirate fight, which hasted all day, in testing off the Emmir's people, motwithstanting their wumbers. Rhuning about of ammueition the small party shardoned the camp, twenty of them subsequently reaching Carimams on the Niger, all more or less wounded? The gallant defence of the French Sengulars was very favorably commented upon by the British military authorities in Nigeria. A French force numbering 600 rifles is now on its way to Zinder to avence the death of, the unfortunate Campanious the companions. The supposition that Campanious was on, his way to Rabah, the Arab Napoleon against whom the Emir of Zinder in revolt, is failed to have played an important part in exciting the suspicious of the Emir, and in bringling about the growness regeles.

The dresses are magnificent, as bewilderingly ourious as any stage manager of home ever conceived. All the talking is in strained falsette, and there are yelling and posturing and wailing and contrasion. Suddenly the band breaks in with an awful crack—such a marvalous band, five drums and ten pairs of cymbule—such a deadening emestring and hunging! With hoarse consume doness of imps, green faced and yellow eyed and horned, rash on the catego and gyrate and flout banners and draw up in lines and swing partners and cast to plates. An octive faced, villadness chief demon, a heap of fantasticalment, twirls like a treatoum, and there is more hanging and jumping and swinging and mad pandemonium, and the cymbule and the drums rend the air. It is terrific. At it again, with mighty clatter and heavings, spinning, flag waving, centor-tooning—it is the accumulated uproars of the world all pressed into one Chinese theater.

Type Prevenence of Appendictus, There one and the surgeons admit that 75 per cent of all cases of appendictits will recover without operation, but claim that 96 per cent could be saved by operating promptly on every case as soon as discovered. This discloses a debate of great significance, for physicians are disincilized to turn all cases to the surgeon. Morris has estimated that there are 200,000 new cases of appendicits discovered each year in the United States. If this is true and the surgeons are right, 46,000 of them would be ruthlessly sacrificed under medical treatment. But physicians assert (and I wish I knew whether tried on not) that autopudes upon subjects that have died from other diseases than appendicitis show old infiammatory processes about the appendix in one-third of the cases, just as old subsculous cleatrices are found in the lungs where tuberculosis has never been suspected. In other words, one-third of all coming to the autopy table and by inference a large proportion of the population have got well spontaneously from an unsuspected trouble which would have subjected them to a life endangering operation had they fallen into the hands of a surgeon of sufficient skill to make the diagnosis in doubtful cases, physicians retort that these are the cases in which diagnosis would better not be made. Obviously the subject has not crystallized and is in process of evolution, but even the laity clamor for an operation when there is recognized tumor and poisoning frem pus absorption.

In repairing an old house in Dartford, England, not long ago the workmen found several ancient death warrants, bearing the signature of the Duke of Portland, minister of King George III. atight Unpleasantness.

Chicago, July 6 .- Photographing any ariment which has hitherto be an attended with so many failures as to cause it to be considered almost among the impossibilities, has been seccessful-ly performed in this city. The inner walls of the stomach of James C. Fos-ter, a wealthy lumberman of Cleveland, O., were successfully photographed, with the result that a large tumor was discovered to have formed in the organ, which, according to the physiciams in attendance would have caus ed his death in a short sime. Mr. For ter has left for Cleveland, taking the photograph with him, and with as a guide he will be operated on in a Cleveland hospital. The anthod used in taking as a galob me will as operated on an a Cleveland hospital.

The fighted used in taking the shotograph is the investion of Wi C. Fuchs of the Roantgen X-ray laboratory in the Schiller building, and the storograph was taken by him with the amistance of several physicians who were interested in the outcome. The invention is a simple one, and can be used without artra appliances with the dordinary X-ray apparatum.

Mr. Fuch's invention consists of a fubber tube one-eight of an inch in diameter and about three feet long. At the end of the tube is rubber bulb, the walls of which are as thin as it is possible to make them, giving the bulb when inflated the appearance sof a toy balloon. The interior of the bulb when inflated the appearance sof a toy balloon. The interior of the bulb is conted with a shotographic sensulator and acts as the slate on which the picture is taken. The patient is made to awallow the bulb, which is then inflated by means of air thown into the tube until the bulb entirely fills the actomach, its flexible aides confirming to the wells of the stomach. The Ei-ray axyouure is then tunded, the tube is withdrawn and the picture on the thin rubber bulb is developed as in critionry X-ray photographe.

The patient was placed in the typeriting table and swallowed the tube without taking an anesthatio: The bulb was inflated and the Crooks kube pisced slight minutes. Mr. Fostel wild afterward that the only unpleasant feature of the operation was a chobing essention while the tube was belieg passed down his thrust, but that aftert a shirt time this was gone and has suffered no inconvenience.

Thus marriest to a success to any former attempts to photograph the stomach was made caveral weeks aged by filling the patient's estimath with blumuch and then making the X-raylexpours. This was accompanied by every illness and it is build the mathed and no used successfully in but few cases.

BERMAN WATERWAY PLAY.

When Russia gets her Trans-Siberian When Russia gets are Trans-secrian railroad and her waterway from the Baltio to the Black See done she will be greatly improved. A writer in the current imme of the Fortnightly Review ameria that the waterway will make Russia practically unassailable in its ows waters, and thus greatly increase its formidable equipment for offense or defense. The waterway, as at present planned, is to be a navigable channel running from Dunamunde, on the Gulf of Riga, to Kharson, on the estuary of the Baltin. It will traverse a comparatively populous section of Russia and sect such important and prosperous cities as Kiev, Kremchuz and Ekaterinoslav with the ports at both termins. Trade with St. Petersburg can be conducted more cheaply by this route than by rail, and the increase in facili-ties for commerce should be of great benefit to business interests. It is as a naval enterprise, however, that the waterway will be of most importance. If Russia to concentrate its army with the waterway will make it possible for the government to move its warships speedily and it will from the Baitic to the Black Sea. The waterway, being entirely within Russian boundaries. could be made almost impregnable.

Chrongbout the whole distance of 994 miles no foreign power could hope to interfere with operations on the water-way save at the cost of actual invasion. Moreover, as the writer in the Fortmightly paints out, in case of threatened fregrare the nation rough mobiles and man its entire fleet at one or the other of the termini points before the other power had realized its object.

that the Czar's peace conference will detract much more the war value of his great railroad and great waterway.

DIAMENDA IN A TOLCASO

An interesting discovery from a view-joint has latterly made in the Witries Hock Mountains in Natal. On the summit of an extinc volcano, near the edge of a lake, filling the former crater, soundings have established the presence of a sand layer containing small diamonds.

would be instructive to know whether these diamonds were there ac cidentily, or whether the find is con-nected with a diamond field, for the said nown to be dismantiferous. Consider ing the latter supposition, the presence of precious atones in the crater of a volcano will doubtless throw some light in pature.

Persons complain that shoppiris do not jump actively to wait upon them when they enter a store. Why not? The other day I saw a girl apprunch a respectably dressed woman of middle age—that's 30—and leard low ask, ever the counter, "What would you like, ma'am ?"

To this polite attention I was shocked to keep the woman reply: "I've what up! Don't you talk to me! I can ask for what I want, and I den't want any imposeme from clerks?"

A few weinfile from such creatures are quite enough to coal the arder of any shoppirit.

Toronto, July 5 .-

Introferebre to a report in a morning paper that Prumier Hardy would retire within a week, to be succeeded by Hon. Mr. Ross, Mr. Hardy to-day made the following statement.

As you know the Mail is not my organ, and if I had any such mantions it would hardly be likely to be the first paper to raceive notice, of them. I gave a flat contradiction a few months ago to a similar statement. I am not in search of a judicial office. The whole article is an invention pure and simple.

LONG DISCUSSION.

Trush Agreement EMIOttawa, July 5.—The Concervative Senators fast for ourous this afternoon and flisteness for two hours aged a half the Grand Trunk agreement bill. No definite decision was reached when the mosting adjournal.

The meeting, however, was opposed to permitting the bill to pass in its greenest shape, and there was also strong opposition in accepting the amendment, doing away with the 90 year term of agreement, and making it end with one year's notice from the Minister of Bailways.

The idea was expressed that it would be advisable to wait and see what the Government was going folio about it.

Revelution Threatens Spatu.

Madrid, July 5.—Throughout the position in the sign. The progress of events may be allower than one would expert, but she progress is decisive. The monka and the Javuits are sure somer or later to be est upon and torn by the thousands who hate clericalism. Payment of taxes may be enforced! at the camon's mouth, but the Government will perish in the struggle.

The monarchy is alive to its danger and is sessing to prevent a united front, but the Church is divided, Some of the priests are Carlista, others are Republicans.

The army is still faithful to the dynasty, but the Others are furious against their officers, and discipline is respidly disappearing. The women of the lower classes are growing restimate.

Manery plays queer antics at times. As our ideas of things develop and make progress the relation to curselves, as we were of a remembered place or incident, keeps pass with the advance. When we were in youth, we thought the house in which we lived in those days a veritable mansion and the yard was as large and commodities as a park new sesses to us. Our memory seeps them thus, although we have long enagrows our little salves.

But when we again visit the hearies of the early years we find that the mansion has diminiched to a cottage and the yard casses minurably small. We have outgrown them. There exents to be a self adjusting less that, as we fare farther from the scenes and surroundings we come knew well, keeps magnifying them as that they are always the same to us.

And it must be no of incidents and people as well. Memory is kind and throws a mantle of softening mist over whatever comes into her realm. And when we go back and find the old neighborhood or assagnin our long remembered friends we must not put all the blame of changing upon them. It is we who have changed, perhaps far more than have they, exty we do not stop to realize the fact.—Embanges.

Minutee and Seconds.

At least 26 conturies R. C. the Subylominus used a sungestmal system of notation, consisting of sari and somi, of which we have vestiges when we reaken 60 minutes to the hour end 60 seconds to the minute, or 8,600 seconds—that is, a sarce of some—to the hour. That we count 12 inches to the fact, 50 hours to the day, 500 degrees of longitude around the equator, 50 degrees of latitude from the equator to the poles and 60 miles to a degree may also be treoud to the same duodecimal Babylonian system of numeration, which smorrowead system of numeration, which certifically reckened 60 shokels to the mina and 60 minas to the talent. All these numbers are factors or multiples of the sarcs, or 60. Our measures of time, money, of linear and angular space, are all derived from the Greeks, who obtained them from the Babyloniana, probably through the Pharphrine.

Vacity Different.

As will be seen, it makes a great difference how one uses the measurer resources at one's command.

A member of an athletic club, after swimming the length of the large tank in the beasurers of the treattation, came out puffing and blowing, apparently exhausted.

"You don't manage your breathing right," said the swimming instructor. "It ought not to tire you so. As to the uppur part of your body, including your arms, you use exactly the same muscles, and in very much the same way, in swimming as in sawing wood."

"No, str!" gaspet the swimmer, "When it comes to sawing wood, I use the muscles of some other man."—Youth's Companion.

"So they finally from Johnson the company, did they?"
"Yes. And I never saw a hote in all my life."

The religion of a Bedouin tribe seems to be to "move onward." Having once begun the nomedic life, it becomes almost necessary for them to keep it up. In the fire place, they don't want to estile down, and they wouldn't have any place to stop if they wanted to. Sometimes it becomes expedignt that they make great haste in these long journeys. Wandering around over the plains are other tribus whose only cocupation is "moving on." There is frequently enmity between two of these Arabian families, and should one pursue the other it behooves the pursued to hasten onward with all the speed their animals are capable of. Or it may be that the springs of water are so widely separated that hard travel is necessary to make the distance from one to the other in a day.

When either of these contingencies arises, they don't eat much. Two or three dinners such as American boys and girls are used to every day and something artra for Sundays and company are supposed not to agree with Bedouin children's stomachs. When on the road, bread is their chief food. This is baked while riding. PETERBOROUGH, JULY 140

The causes of the extensive rioting in Spain are not very well defined. The dimatisfaction, it is true, is connected with the budget. That measure, , no with the budget. That measure, no doubt, was prepared with a aincere desire to meet the unfortunate condition of the country in a spirit of refoim. Attempts were made to reduce expenses, but the Minister of Finance succeeded in that time only to the extent of about $1,200,000. This was a small sum, and it was more thus wiped out by the demands of the departments for increases in appropriations in other directions to the amount of the increase in appropriations in other directions to the amount of the increase in appropriations in other proposals for accuring, the needed revenue. Increased tames were imposed principally upon mining, sugar manufacturing, wines and inheritances, while an income tax was placed upon dividends of banks and corporations and receipts from other securities. The Prevalence of Appendiction.
Surgeons admit that 75 per cent of all asset of appendicitie will recover without peration, but claim that 69 per cent could be appended to a court on every Surgeons admit that 75 per cent of all cases of appendicitie will recover without operation, but claim that 98 per cent could be saved by operating promptly on every case as soon as discovered. This discloses a debate of great significance, for physicians are disinclined to turn all cases to the surgeon. Morris has estimated that there are 900,000 new cases of appendicitis discovered each year in the United States. If this is true and the surgeons are right, 46,000 of them would be ruthlessly sacrificed under medical treatment. But physicians assert (and I wish I knew whether truly or not) that autoptes upon subjects that have died from other discases than appendicitis show old inflammatory processes about the appendix in one third of the cases, just as old tuberculous cleatrices are found in the lungs where tuberculosis has never been suspected. In other words, one-third of all coming to the autopsy table and by inference a large proportion of the population have got well spontaneously from an unsuspected trouble which would have subjected them to a life endancering operation had they fallen into the hands of a surgeon of sufficient skill to make the diagnosis.

When surgeons extol the skill necessary to make diagnosis in doubtful cases, physicians retort that these are the cases in which diagnosis would better not be made. Obviously the subject has not crystallized and is in process of evolution, but even the laity clame for an operation when there is recognized tumor and poisoning from pus absorption.

several ancient death warmuts, bearing the signature of the Duke of Portland, minister of king George III. One of them, dated June. 1798, gives an idea of what legal hanging and quartering were like in those days. It runs:

"Whereas, James O'Coigley, having been attained of high treason and had sentence passed upon him to be drawn upon a hurdle to the place of execution and to be there hanged by the neck, but not until be is dead, but that, being alive, he shall be taken down and his bowels taken out and burned before his free, that his bread shall be severed from his body and his body divided into four parts, and that his head and body shall be disposed of me we think fit, and whereas we think fit to remit that part of the sentence directing the burning of his bowels and dividing the lody into four parts, our will and pleasure is that he shall be drawn and hanged and have his head severed from his body."

How He Misunderstood.

There were loud cries from a man in the back of the hall, and the cornetist went at it again.

There were more cries from other parts of the hall, but, with that one still ringing in his sure, the cornelist kept it up. "What are you trying to do?" cried the manager "That's no encore."

what are you trying to do?" oried the manager "That's no encore."
"No encore?" arciaimed the cornetist when he had been induced to break off, "Didn't that man herk there yell. "Took man!" four or five times?"
"Not any," answered the manager.

"Presid of Him.

When he was 50, he returned to his native town "just te less how the old place looked." He found it unchanged. The old store, where as a lad he had clerked it and sold calico and greeries to the old farmers, was just the same. He contrasted the sleepy old place with himself and felt a glow of satisfaction when he thought how much those 80 years had done for him. "They ought to be proud of me," he said to himself.

Presently he met one of the old inhabitants.

*Waal, I declare, is it reelly you Hank?" said the old man incredulously "We've beerd you've been prospering fust rate sence you went west They've made you a railroad president or suthin of the sort, ain't they? I heard so, but I couldn't believe it. It's reelly true, is it? Waal, all I've got to say is they must be purty hard up for railroad presidents out there. He took the next train for the west.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Mis Desperate Reselve.

"She is only amusing berself with me?" enclaimed young Throggins hitterly. "She is all affection one day and all sneers and coldness the next day. I'm good enough to take her to theaters or other places where she wants to go and have a good time, but when I call on her to spend an evening she looks bored and yawns and makes me do all the talking. If I wann't so clean gone on her, I'd drop her right now. I know one thing! If ever I get her off my mind, b'gosh, I'll never fall in love with another girl—never, b'gosh, and you can bet on It!."

They Keep Meving. His Desperate Resolve.

for with another girl-never, 0 goan, and you can bet on it?"
They Keep Meving.

The religion of a Bedouin tribe seems be be to "move onward." Having once begun the nomadic life, it becomes almost necessary for them to keep it up. In the first place, they don't want to settle down, and they wouldn's have any place to stop if they wanted to. Bometimes it becomes appedient that they make great haste in these long journeys. Wandering around over the plains are other tribes whose only occupation is "moving on." There is frequently enmity between two of these Arabian families, and should one pursue the other it behooves the jursued to hasten on ward with all the speed their animals are capable of. Or it may be that the springs of water are so widely separated that hard travel is necessary to make the distance from one to the other in a day.

When either of these contingencies arises, they cook and eat while on the march. They don's eat much. Two or three dinners such as American boys and girls are used to every day and something extra for Sundays and company are supposed not to agree with Bedouin children's stomachs. When on the road, bread is their chief food. This is baked while riding. One woman will mix the coarse flour which is carried in a suck on the back of her camel, another will roll and ahape the dough, which is brought to her in small quantities, and a third will make a fire in an earthen vessel and attend to the baking. Women or boys on foot run along from one cook to the other and earry the material, and when the feast is ready they distribute it among the various membans, of the tribe.

The Creisp Lettuce Leaves.

To Crisp Lettuce Leaves.

Do you know how to crisp lettuce leaves? A most simple process, but one rarely adopted judging by the wilted stuff we generally see served. A gentleman of the old school was my tascher, and while yet a mere maid I was promoted to the proud dignity of crisping the lettuce.

and waite yet a mere maid I was promoted to the prend dignity of crisping the lettree.

First carefully separate the leaves from the stalk, discarding discolored and imperfect ones and leaving untouched the tiny hearts; lay them all in cool, clear water for awhile, all morning if you choose; pick them over a couple of times before serving; wash one by one and lay in a wire basket if you have one; if not, a clean, soft towel will answer; gather the ends and sides leosely in your hand and lightly shake the lettuce; then put the leaves in a colander, which you set in the refrigerator, but not on the los. Leave until needed, when you will find the lettuce delictiously cool and crisp enough to crack. Never cut the leaves. If very large, divide with the fingers into smaller pieces.—What to Eat.

the mines there during his journey, says that he was much astonished at seeing the men who carry the ore come out of the mins, each with one eye shut.

The foreman, seeing his surprise, explained the matter. He said the candles belonging to the tarateros (who drill and blast) do not give sufficient light in the drifts, where it is consequently quite dark, but where, nevertheless, the tarateros see well enough not to run their heads against the rocks, but, on emerging into daylight, they would be blinded did they not take precautionary measures

For this reason, as they approach the mouth of the shaft, at the point where they catch the first glimpes of light they drop the syelid of one eye and keep this down while they are discharging their own and until they have redescended the shaft.

When they are again in the dark, they open the eye keep thitherto in reserve and at once see everything distinctly, while the other eye, previously open and somewhat blinded by the daylight, perceives nothing at all.

A Big Sale of Republic Stocks

THE FAIRFAX CO., OF REPUBLIC, J. J. Brown, Proc., Willis Mamaine, Trees, after securing the Jim. Hill claim ajoising it so the north, sampled the ladge and W. H. Stowell reports on this cropping $1500 in gold, immediately upon the result becoming known in Republic, a Mining Supe, through our agent there, Texas Angel, negotiated the purchase of $1,000 worth of Treasurer's cook, the company has authorized me to place a small amount of this stock at 25cts. Remember the Fairfax and Jim. Hill are less than 800 feet from the Mountain Lion, which is now $1.00 per share, and is an investment at that. The Fairfax at $1 cts., is a speculation. Work is to be pushed.

ad in these columns to the action of Milerman Neill in sending two contractors to Toronto at the public expense to figure on the cost of a building for the Toronto Rubber Shoe Co. It seemed strange that a single means re med strange that a single member he Council could on his own rea onaibility have the public money ex-tended in the way be did. But the most startling part of the affair that the amount of the bill put in to the Council by Mr Neill and paid is greatly in excess of the actual expenses connection with the trip. Mr. Adam Dawron, one of the contractors, states that his antire expenses on the occasion amounted to but $4.40. The railroad fare was $3.85c., and 55 cents were spent for two plates of oysters. What Mr. James Montgomery, the other contractor who was sent on the mission referred to spent in connection with the affair, we are unable to secertain but the amount should not be greater than that expended by Mr. Dawrort The question therefore to be nested isbalance of the money received for by the Council for the trip being somewhat over twenty dollarsf

A CLEVER RUBL

The Auctioneer Was Quick Witted and Finally Made a Sale.

An auctioneer on East Washington street—one of those redoubtable individuals commonly termed "alick"—was the cause of a farcical scene recently that would have done credit to a burlesque show. He had been talking industriously for a long-time to a crowd of interested but enthusiantic listeners.

The affable auctioneer conscientionaly went through his repertory from beginning to end, but somehow the crowd did not "warm up to him—to quote his own language. Finally, with a dark look that bordered on despair, he grabbed up a well known pasteboard hatbox containing arount 50 spools of silk thread of different colors. With the grace of a conjurer he extracted five of the spools, and, arraying them in a tempting semicircle on the counter, announced that they were "to go at any price."

But the audience, while admitting with node of approval that they were good

The man of the red flag added three more spools to the semicircle. "All for 10 cause." species to the semicircle. "All for 10 cents," he declared. But thread stock was far below par. The auctioneer caught up all the spools from the counter and flung them into the box with an impressive gesture. The light of inspiration flashed from his eyes. "The whole blamed box for 10 cents?"

apiration massed from his eyes.

"The whole blamed box for 10 centa?" he cried.

"I'll take it," was the prompt response, and a little man in a washed out overcoat and wearer of red chin whiskers stepped out from the crowd with a dirty 10 cent piece in his upraised hand. The auctioneer clutched the money feverishly, and, turning the box upside down sethat all the spools dropped into a basket on the counter, he handed the worthless piece of ancient pasteboard to the anxious customer. A roar of hilarious customer. A roar of hilarious customer from the crowd that was heard throughout that neighborhood.

"I don't want your blamed old box!" wailed the unfortunate purchaser.

"You said you'd take it," replied the auctioneer. "I'll leave it to the crowd—didn't he?" The whole blamed box for 10 cents!

The Builder

The Buildeg.

To the uninitiated an affection for a building seems a perversion of tasts, for the building is not symmetrical, is not graceful and sometimes appears to leak intelligence, however, there is more than eas opinion. About his affection and his loyalty there can be no doubt whatever. His affection knews neither horitation, wavering or change, and he is loyal to the death. Then, again, he is a rare commed. He is not notey, he is not nervous, and he is not given to demonstration. He fills the requirements that Emerson formulated as to perfect companionship. He does not need to speak to show his sympathy. He can tell you what he wishes to say with his little eyes, and he can be eloquent with the waggings of his stumpy tail.

HIS HAIR TURNED WHITE.

Possiine Experience of the Man Who Dealt in High Explosives.

"Nitroglycerin. air; high explosives ac-complished it." said a well dressed man with a youthful face and snow white hair to a chance acquaintance at the Gress

"But your face is not scarred? It would seem that an explosion"—
"An impending explosion it was. Two years ago I was the most successful well shooter in America. I could make the oil loosen up where others had failed. The secret lay in the explosives I employed. I made them myself and had the business down fine. At that time I went to New York to figure on a big blasting ocatract that would have made me a pile. I failed to make the arrangement, and the very day the negotiations fall through I started suddenly for England on a similar mission.

suddenly for England on a similar mission.

"Is there such a thing as high explosives ripening?" asked the Englishman I was accompanying on the second day of our voyage.

"The question brought me to my feet and caused an exclamation of horror to escape from my lips. Many explosives undergo a ripening process, which adds greatly to their destructive power, at the same time decidedly increasing the danger of handling them. That made by me was af this character. Indeed 25 days after it was compounded it was almost certain to explode of its own volition, so to speak. Now, on the upper shelf of the checkroom of my New York hotel I had left a large grip containing a 30 pound can of this

Now, on the upper shelf of the checkroom of my New York hote! I had left a large grip containing a 30 pound can of this compound, the ripening of which meant destruction and death.

"For an hour I was almost in a state of frenzy, freely denouncing myself as a multimurderer. In vain I drew an awful ploture of the devastation that would overwhelm a certain New York hote! in exactly 17 days and called upon the captain to put his ship about. He promised to transfer me to a west bound steamer if an opportunity presented itself, but fortune talled me, and I was obliged to cross the coean. On the morning of the twenty-fifth day of the life of my ripening high explosive I sprang from a carriage and rushed into the hote!

"No reprieved murderer ever experienced greater joy than I did as I saw the last of the terrible fluid disappear in a catch basin. Ten minutes later I started back from the mirror of the hotel bar, where I had gone for a bracer,' in absolute disnay. My jet black hair had turned white as snow."

VETERANS UNDER FIRE.

The Reason They Don't Stoop When the Bullets Are Flying.

The Beasen They Den't Steep When the Bullets Are Flying.

"The temphation to stoop when under fire is almost irrestatible," said a veteran, "and that accounts for so many of the wounds received by raw troops. You sea, when a man happens to be hit in a stooping posture the chances are that the bullet plows right through his body from end to end. On the other hand, if he is standing erect, the probabilities are in favor of the wound being slight, anyhow not morial. Old soldiers are well aware of this, and white they will drop flat and hunt cover every chance they get they never stoop.

"After a coldier has been in a few engagements he learns such tricks, and, as far as the rest of it is concerned, he becomes simply a fatalist. There is nothing strange about it, for almost all his arperiseness appear to lend color to that doctrins. For instance, he never dodges, because he has seen men dodge and get killed when it really seemed as if they had remoked for the bullet. In fact, the strangest things are continually happening, all apparently the pure whim of chance.

"I remember near Putersburg a comrade ing, all apparently use pure while to chance.

"I remember near Petersburg a comrede of mine, as brave a fellow as ever lived, took refage behind a little hut. He was wornout under fire and wanted to get a moment's breathing space. Twenty feet in the rear and a little to one side was a pile of crossites full of wrought iron nails. A bullet came along, splintered a tie and drove out one of the nails as right angles. The jaggest iron struck my chum in the side, penetrated his kidneys and killed him.

side, penetrated his kidneys and killed him.

"That's the blind chance of war, and after getting a few such object lessons a follow is apt to acquire a sort of anag froid that is immensely impressive to a rewrit. It isn's because he has a contempt for dangue; he has merely learned the folly of trying to evade it."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGIL-

He Didn't Knew the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Scen m

When I was much younger," said the portly government official, 'I was a husky young fellow, chesty and sasay about my puglilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been aparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic guar along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor matres of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight thas could put the gloves on with me in the amsteur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my ruom, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get addled up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't strike me as being a vary cheerful chap, and I rather Ignored him. Well, all got to taking on my favorite.

The four doctors and needed a trained modest was my done particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight thas could put the glove on with me in the acts of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my ruom, and they all graft the modest was my own particular graft, and I think I mode and the manufacture of the distress of a refined modest woman and medical students and listled to give a read a "When I was much younger,"

but he didn't strike, me as being a vary cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"I'll won't hurt you, you know,' said I. I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just allp 'em on with me.'

"I'didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise."

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fallows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his game and shoulders were stupty knotted and twisted with musoles. He was as quiest spoken a duck as ever I may, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went as it.

"Well, any that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we aquared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and their laws like six lead qlokels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was giong to jobt me next—and in grower he was giong to jobt me next—and in grower he was giong to jobt me next—and in grower he was giong to jobt me next—and in grower he was giong to jobt me next—and in grower he was gooned and at lil haking whacks all over my go."Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he cought me one with his left flet right under the around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'sm—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boner as ever happened in a prise ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a survenough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the gang and said to me:

"'No, I didn't, said I 'Who is he—John L. Suilivan?'

"No exactly Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athlete games. He fields the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right."

"Yes," said I. "I think he ls—even if

"Yes, said I. 'I think he le-even if "Yes, 'said I. 'I taing so in your less he is a party to this awful job on me, 'and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, stey let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

The Wint That Failed.

The landlady looked colemnly in the direction of the delinquent one.

"It's a rule in this house to pay as you go," said she.

The delinquent one smiled.

"It's a good plan." said he. "You get it all in a bunch then or nothing."—Gyracuse Herald.

Trial Trip on Saturday Results Success fully-Thought by some to be the Pastesi

London, July 10.—The Times, describ ing and commenting upon the spin of the Shamrook, the America Cup chal-ianger, on Saturday says: "When she "was running back through the Cowes ands to Hythe, the breeze freshened considerably; there was plenty of power in the wind and some idea of the yacht's speed could be obtained. It is generweather craft ever seen in the Solent. She went steadily and seems very easy on the heim, coming up to expectations. Her canvas fitted well and the trial was extremely satisfactory in every way."

A correspondant writes to The Times:
"The general impression is of a ressel of great power, with considerable free board, in that respect somewhat dwarfing the Meteor and the Satinsus. Saturday's breeze, although light, was somewhat unsteady both in force and in direction; but the stronger puffs seemed to have little kneeling effect on the vessel, despite her enormous charma.

on the vessel, the pite has conven-cenven.

"Her gear is all of the finest wire and tooks marvulously like spidars' webs when viewed in the company of the crowd of cruising vessels here. It is to be hoped that' Fife has not unduly reduced the scantling of the gear with the intent of saving weight; but the acident lest Thursday, when the bossulit treaswork proved inadequately strong, gives ground for some nervousness on this point."

FLOWER OF NEW YORK

The late Roswell P. Flower of New York and to tell some amusing stories his congressional experiences.

The house of representatives is the only place where I ever got into where money didn't count," he remarked the last time I saw him, two months or more before his death. "A rich men is actually handicapped there. In the first place a country member is naturally prejudiced against the representatives from the city, particularly those from New York city. They seem to think that New Yorker are a lot of highwaymen. You find the same spirit in metional conventions and state legislaturns, and the fact that, a city deleration wants some hing, is a good reason why a countryman should vote against why a countryman should vote against it. The easiest way to kill a bill in congress is to have the New York Chamber of Commerce send in a memorial asking its passage. Then every countryman will voe against it sure.

"When the city member is rich that make i him all the worse. During the first assain I was in congress I spent more than $10.000 trying to convince may fillow-members of the house of representatives that I was a good fellow. I gave them dinners and wine and picnical and set it up for tham every chance I go, and, while they enjoyed it as much as anyboty, it only made them suspicious. They could not understand why I should agand my money entertaining them without some base motive behind it. I was a city man representating a country district. In o her words, I was a wolf in sheep's clothing, and was a wolf in sheep's clothing, and they were very shy of me. I didn't sak anything o' anyboty. I only wanted to be topular and give the boys a good time, but the more I spent on them the worse they got."

them the worse they got."

Towards the close of the first seession," con inted Mr. Flower, after eviery to be the buse has accepted my ho pitality and drank my wine and sates my terrapia. I tried to go. a bill passed—a bill giving a pension of $12 a month to a poor old woman up in my district, who a husband and son had disal during the war. The cost of one of my dinner would have paid for that pension all the rest of her life. Some-blow I couldn't, gast that bill up for a long time, and when I did ged it upperty near averylody on the democratic side voted against it. I swent even to be dark were reported sufficiently and it said. Joe, why in a loss it district, and it was desovered that has do not life it was the standard that was vitiated, the itwel it is good it is to be dark that the democratic members of that house were such confounded fools as to suspect me of trying to play them for alcekers, and I said. Here, Joe you take that bill and see if you can see it through. Darned if by you can see it through. Darned if be didn't call it up the next day during the morn ng hour and the passed without objection but if they had known it was my bill it wouldn't have got a vote. This is ling wors off after a while. They found out this I wasm't a highwayman or a conspirator, but pust an ordinary good fellow."

Mr. Flower was in advance seamt of froe perity and an expansionatit like McKinlay, and it was worth a long journey of hier one morning and began to croak about everything, particularly about the trusts. Mr. Flower lissened awhile good naturedly; then he walked over te h.m and said.

"But your face is not scarred? It would seem that an explosion?"—

"An impending explosion it was. Two fears ago I was the most successful well shooter in America. I could make the oil loosen up where others had failed. The secret lay in the explosives I employed. I made them myself and had the business down fine. At that time I went to New York to figure on a high blasting contract that would have made me a pile. I failed to make the arrangement, and the very day the negotiations fell through I started suddenly for England on a similar mission.

"The question brunght me to my feet and caused an exclamation of horror to escape from my lips. Many-explosives undergo a ripening process, which adds greatly to their destructive power, at the same time decidedly increasing the danger of handling them. That made by me was of this character. Indeed 25 days after it was compounded it was almost certain to explode of its own volition, so to speak. Now, on the upper shelf of the checkroom of my New York hotel I had left a large grip containing a 20 pound can of this compound, the ripening of which means destruction and death.

"For an hour I was almost in a state of frenzy, freely demouncing myself as a multimurderer. In wain I drew an awful picture of the devastation that would overwhelm a certain New York hotel in exactly 17 days and called upon the captain to put his ship about. He promised to transfer me to a west bound steamer if an opportunity presented itself, but fortune falled me, and I was obliged to cross the secan. On the morning of the twenty-fifth day of the life of my ripening high arplosive I sprang frem a carriage and realed into the hotel.

"No repreved murderer ever experienced greater joy than I did as I saw the last of the terrible fitth disappear in a seatch beain. Ten minutes later I started back from the mirror of the hotel har, where I had gone for a bracer, 'In absolute dismay. My jet black hair had turned white as snow."

BRAZIL AND GRRWAST.

There is said to be great excitement of a demand by the colonial party; in Germany that the lander of the Ham matic Colonization Company of Hamburg and Bremes be made a German colony under the German flag. The Hammatic company harreceived large grants of land in Brazil and many Surman colonists have been settled the idea should exist im Germany that would be advantageous to brime these lands and their settlers under the German flag. There seems reason to auppose, however, that the idea has persed the stage ofteners sugtained by 11" lerman Government Novertheles appears greatly to have alors the Brazilians. There lies the goal danger of Brazil. If instead of avencing hostility to the German so there and making their presome aw excuss for internal turmoil, they facilitated German maturalisation and strove to attach the settlers to the Government, they might laugh at any suggestion of the German colony passing under the Serman flag, as the people of the United States would at any such buggestion regarding their citizens of German birth. By tuking the opposite course, the Braziians are if tanger of giving considerable ancuss for the paril they fear.

The matter had hardly reached: the point that would make it of immediate interest to the United States, though it may secome one of the most serious problems in the future of that cointry. There could be no plainer directed of the Mouros Dectrime than the transfer of a portion of Brazilian territory to Garmany. The U.S. peo-ple would be abandoning the Mouros bottime for all time if they tolerated such a stup. But it would in prema-ture to threatest Germany with the Mouroe Destrine while there is ne-thing but visionary Ralk to indicate that Germany had over contemplated its wholetom its violation. . "The California of 1856 was a terrible place." began Mr. Kellogg, at case with his pipe. "You see, it was like this: The men who rushed to the goldfields in the sarly days never expected to remain in the western country. Their purpose was to make their pile and get out. They came to Californ 1, acrambled for gold and paid no attention to law and order. It was a paradise for ganublars, thieves and cut-throate. The worst element, it scoma, came to Frison, where they were soon in possession of the city government and ordered millions and millions of dollars werth of improvements that were sever made. But the contracts were let, in order to give bondlers a chance. Vice flausished like a grown bay two. It was a law-less, violent land, where life wasn's worth a gluch of mnff.

Exciting Baco That Was Grandly Russias Trans-Siberian Railway is One of Vast Importance

The Original Purpose of Russia was to make the Route for Military Porposes-The

Washington, July 10 .- Mr. Herbert

H. D. Pierce, first secretary the United States Embany to Rusma, who is in Washington, speaking the United States Embassy to Russia, who is in Washington, spaaking of the trans-Siberian railway, said:

"People outside of Russia hardly realize how, searly complete the trans-Siberian Railway is. I was told recently by Prince Hilkoff, Minister of Ways of Communication, who has charge of this great work that he superted to make a trip around the world in forty days during the coming Paris expessition, going by way of the trans-Siberian routs.
"Even now the route is almost continuous frum Moscow to the Amser River and thence to Viadivo, stock on the Pacific Coast, with the exception of a comparatively short stratch which was to be covered by post horses. Once open, this marks almost a commarcial revolution, giving a highway from western Europe to the Pacific, and from our Paicfic Coast into that far east, and thence to eastern Europe.

"The original purpose of Russia was to make the route one for military and strategic purpose, but now commerce and travel over the rout has quits overshindowed the strategic purpose and Russia finds that she has pened a highway which is to be one of the great channels of the world's fraffic. In time possibly the route will be diverted southward through Chinese Manchuri to permit a terminus at Russia's new and important lessehold at Port Arthur."

Mr. Pierce mys the recent reports of widespread famine in Russia are greatly exagerated.

RUSSIA NOT ALARMED.

St. Petersburg, July 10. — The Russian newspapers, generally, devote much attention to the telegrams exchanged between Emperce William of Garmany and President Loubst.

The Novoe Vremys mys: "It is a noteworthy occurrence and President Loubst may rejoice at something like a fortuitous Kronstadt having taken place during his Government."

The paper adds that the Russian diplomacy has by no means been taken unaware, but had made no slight offert to bring about such a meeting. The Herald mys the matter is the subject of sincers congratulation.

A remedy for all the diseases which, if neglected or badly treated, lead up to consumption, is found in

Dr. Pierce's GoldenMedical Discovery.

It builds up the weak places and fortifies the system against the onalaughts of disease. It helps the appetite, assists digestion, is an aid to the proper assimilation of food, and cleaness the blood of all its impurities. It is a strictly temperance medicine, containing not an atom of whisky or alcohol in any form. atom of whisky or alcohol in any form.

and while yet a mere maid I was promoted to the proud dignity of crieping the lettuce.

First carefully separate the leaves from the stalk, discarding discolered and imperfect oses and leaving untouched the tiny hearts; lay them all in cool, clear water for awhile, all morning if yes echoose; pick them over a couple of times before serving; wash one by one and lay in a wire leaket if you have one; if not, a clean, not towel will answer; gather the ends and sides loosely in year hand and lightly shake the lettuce; then put the leaves in a colander, which you set in the refrigerator, but not on the ica. Leave until needed, when you will find the lettuce deliciously cool and criep enough to crack. Never cut the leaves. If very large, divide with the fingers into smaller piecos.—What to Est.

THE SPECTRAL BELL

Met With ex Land.

The toiling of a spectral bell is one of the familiar superstitions of the sea, and repocially is the illusion common along this section of the gulf coast. What causes it nobody has ever learned, but there is hardly a luggerman from Mobile to the pause who has not, at one time or another, heard the sound. They describe the note as extraordinarily sweet and clear, rising and falling in colemn cadence and always seemingly close at hand. It is entirely different, they say, from any other noise of the ocean, and they sount the theory that it could possibly be produced by waves.

"It isn't water," said an old seafaring

ory that it could possibly be produced by waves.

"It isn't water," eaid an old seafaring man the other night, "and, for that matter, it sometimes heard on land I know, because I've ligtened to it myself. Back in 1877, if you care to hear the story. I quit eslibrising for awhile and went out west and tried mining. I had a partner named Whicher, and, away up in the Sierrn Madre range, in north New Mexico, we found an outcrupping of rotten quarts that showed gold. It looked so good that we started to sink is shaft, although it was the most God foresten spot you ever laid eyes on. It was in a little canyon, a thousand miles from nowhere, ugly black peaks all around us, and lonely—well, lonely is no name for it.

"One day, while Whicher was in the hole and me at the windlass he heard the bell. It was clear as my voice and scenned right over a mountain spur, where we knew there was no living being for three days' travel. It rang awhile and then stopped. Next day it rang again, slow, solernn and plainer than ever. It was shown and plainer than ever. It was shown and plainer than ever. It was shown and then stopped. Next day it rang again, slow, solernn and plainer than ever. It was the four times, and then then the plainer than ever. It was the store the four times, and then then the plainer than ever. It was the first the vorce, which sounds funny, but is true. We show it four times, and then broad daylight, and that made the thing all the viorse, which sounds funny, but is true. We stood it four times, and then Whicher climbed out of the hole and said, 'Lat's go.' I was willing. I believe we had a good thing, but that bell—it was too many for us. It makes my flesh crawl to think about it even now."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Alleged Stolen Votes.

Mr. Borden, of Halifax, briefly outlined the evidence he had with respect to the West. Huron case. It was that at poll No. 4, Colborns, with Bosald Cummings as deputy esturning officer, only 30 bullots were found in the balet box for the Conservative candidate, while 43 electors had sworn they had voted at this poll for him. At poll No. 8, Goderich, the Conservative candidate was credited with 40 votes while telescope had caut Conservative votes at this poll. James Farr was deputy returning offices;

James Farr was deputy from;
Evidence was alsofts hand; that at Farr's poll a ballot marked; for the Compervative candidate, and initialed by the deputy, was found on the floor by the Comservative constitueer, R₂(W. Clarke. Farr took the ballot from Clarke, and torait up. The pieces were preserved, and pasted together, and would be problemed.

16 Was All the Same to the Man Who Was Treating.

Individuality is lost sight of in the cities. It is swallowed up, as it were, in the mob. In a village it stands out with surprising distinctness. The odd characters of the place are known to everybody, and their queer sayings and doings are told from mouth.

In a certain little town not a great ways from Cleveland there are probably as many of these pseuliar people as any place of its size can beast. One of them is an ancient man who longs for the good old times that followed the war and is a firm believer in the criminal weakness of the present financial system. He is a man of considerable property, but nevertheless is conomical to an extreme degree. In fact, he was never known to spend a pasny that didn't go for some actual necessity. There is another character in the town who keeps the village general store. He is a good hearted fellow, who, after a long course of bachelorhood, finally married. In this little town is in the custom for the happy bridegroom to set up the cigars for all the congratulating males who drop in to what him joy. So the bridegroom in this instance had a box on the counter, and most of his patrons were regaled from it.

Pretty soon the ancient gentleman first

Pretty soon the ancient gentleman first referred to lounged in. The storekeeper, who felt friendly to all the world just then, pushed the box toward the new-

Uncle Jim looked at the box and looked of the storekeeper.

"What's this for?" he asked.
The storekeeper alightly blushed.

"Been gettin married."

"Who? You?"

"Yep. Ma."

"An won're standin treat. sh?"

"Yep. Ma."

"An you're standin treat, ch?"

"Yep," and the storekeeper.
The old man picked up a cigar.

"How much did these seegars case ya.

HE VOTED FOR STONE.

And For One of the Most Ren his Reasons on Record.

Theodore Bolton of Henry county tells this good story. "I was a strong Stone man," said Bolton, "when the ax-governor was a candidate for governor. One day while the campaign was at its hottest a Democrat from an outlying township same to see ms. He called me out from my store and took me into a back alley. I thought he wanted to borrow $8$ or sek me to go on his note. Finally, when he got to a selected place, away from the crowd, the old fellow laid down his cob pipe and said: pipe and said:
"'Say, Bolton, I can't vote for your man, Stone."

"" Why, Uncle Billy? I inquired.
""Well, they tell me, The, that Bill lone bests his wife, bests her twice a you?"

"Whenever she needs it, Uncle Billy."
"Well, I didn's think that of you, The.
The, I like you, but I can't vote for your man, Stone.
"So we parted, and Uncle Billy went back to his home in the back township.
"Three weeks later the county convention to esteed delegates to the state monitoning convention to all the state monitaring convention met in Clinton. The first man I met on the streets was Unele Billy.

Campaigming With a Piddle,
When a young man, the late or Governor Oglesby worked in the old Macon tavern. There he not the lawyers riding the circuit and formed the sequaintance of Judge Robbins of Springfield, with whom he studied law two years. Returning to Docatur, he began practicing in a town of 600 inhabitants. He soon become popular as a speaker. On one occasion he was making a Whig speech on one cide of the square, while a Democrat was making an opposition speech on the other side. The Democrat was fast getting the crowd when Mr. Oglesby, who was an old fashioned fiddler and played as well as he spoke, borrowed a fiddle from a man in the crowd and began to play. That broke up the opposition meeting, and the Democrat, left without an audience, came over and joined the crowd that was dancing to Oglesby's music.

"And how do you stand on the Stone question now?"

"'Well, I tell you. The. I have been thinking about what you told me, and it's all right. I'me married man myself, and I am going to vote for Stone."

"And he did," added Bolton, "and to this day believes Stone beat his wife twice in the Henry county convention."—Kan-eng City Journal

According to M. I. Schooling of Brusrealf, there is a very easy way of calculating the age to which a human being may reasonably expect to live, but it is only applicable if his preyear age lies between twelve and eight-six years. The method is really an old one, and was originally discovared by the mathematician Benog tre, who is 1965 emigrated from France to England, and theomes member of the Royal society. The rule is this—Subtract your present age from eightysix, divide the remainder by two, and the result will give the number of vears which you may expect to live.
The rule may be approximately correct for some ages, and represents, perhaps the nearest solution of an iscoluble problem attached we can arrive.

How They Used to Etill.

In repairing an old house in Dartford, England, not long ago the workmen found evenual ancient death warrants, bearing the signature of the Duke of Portland, minister of King George III. One of them, dated June, 1798, gives an idea of what legal hanging and quartering were like in these days. It runs:

"Whereas, James O'Coigley, having been attained of high treasum and had estable passed upon him to be drawn augon a hundle to the place of execution and to be there hanged by the nesk, but not until he is dead, but then, being alive, he shall be taken down and he kowels taken out and burned before his face, that his head and body shall be disposed of sewe think fit, and whereas we think fit to remit that part of the sentence directing she burning of his bowels and dividing the body into four parts, our will and pleasum is that he shall be drawn and hanged and have his head severed from his body."

Now the Mistanderstood. There were loud cries from a man in the ok of the hall, and the cornettet went at back of the hall, and the connected word at the spain.

There were more cries from other parts of the hall, but, with that one still ringing in his ears, the cornected kept it up.

"What are you trying to do?" exied the manager. "That's no scoors."

"No except?" exclaimed the cornected when he had been induced to break off.
"Didn's that man back there yell, "Took, man!" four or five times?"

"Not any," answered the manager.
"He's a Sootohuman, and what he said was, "Hook, men!"

THE SPECTRAL BELL

A Superstition of the Sea Sometimes Not With on Land.

The tolling of a spectral bell is one of the familiar superstitions of the sea, and aspecially is the illusion common along this section of the gulf coast. What causes it nobody has ever learned, but there is hardly a luggerman from Mobils to the passes who has not, at one time or another, heard the sound. They describe the note as extraordinarily sweet and clear, rising and falling in solemn cadence and always seemingly close at hand. It is ontirely different, they say, from any other noise of the ocean, and they soul the theory that it could possibly be produced by waves.

"I suppose you made your meney through your holdings in stock."
"Well," said the financier, "they had supported to with it, but the really important considerations weren't my holdings so much as my let goings."— Washington Star.

"You need to go to school with Coppens, the new millionaire, didn't you?"
"I did. Fact is, I gave him his first that in life."

Back in 1877, if you care to hear the story. I quit sailorizing for awhile and went out west and tried mining. I had a partner named Whicher, and, away up in the Sherra Madre range, in north New Mexico, we found an outcropping of rotten quarts that showed gold. It looked so good that we started to sink a shaft, although is was the most God forsaken spot you ever laid eyes on. It was in little canyon, a thousand miles from nowhere, ugly black peaks all around us, and lonely—well, lonely is no name for it.

"One day, white Whicher was in the hole and me at the windlass he heard the bell. It was clear as my voice and seemed righs over a mountain spir, where we knew there was no living being for three days' travel. It rang awhile and then stopped. Next day it rang again, alow, soleinn and plainer than ever. It was broad daylight, and that made the thing all the vorse, which sounds funny, but is true. We stood it four times, and then two stood and seemed righs over a mountain spir, where we have a long the story in the bell the story in the story. Manila, July 13 .- The volunteers are emitly debilitated in consequence of beir hard compaigning through three menths of tropical weather. Since the middle of May no volunteer regiment has had a sick list of less than 20 per rent. Most of them at present have 25 per cent. ill, and a few of the regi-ments have less than one-third of their number on duty. The Nebraska regiment has suffered the worst. It came from San Fernandino a few days ago with less than two hundred men in the ranks. The South Dakota followed yesterday with $75 men on Juty. The Mentage and Ransas regiments at San Fernandino bave pot more than 280 available men each. The morning after the Washington troops took Morong a week ago, only 263 men respondad to roll call.

I vastigated the information before sailion and everything seems to point to lis genuineness. A large amount of Government debt in the form of bonds issued by the Government of Gustemals is held by English and Ger-man interests. These bonds have been practically repudiated, at least the honds have sunk/ to nothing and the German and English holders have protested vigorously to their Governments. Four warships are said to have been ordered to Guatemals waters, two German and two English.

Protectorate Necessary.

"The point that most interests the United States is that if the seisure of the custom houses should result in a long holding of those parts in order that the amounts bould be collected it would be necessary for a protectorate to be established over the Republic of Guatemala while this was going In that case, the unturni course of sffairs would be to turn to either Mex-ico or the Veited States for that pro-tertorate. The first proposition would hardly be probable because of the bad feeling existing between Gente-mala and the Republic of Mexico over the boundary disputs,"

Subtle Power of Happiness.

"Next to the art of living justly and kindly with our fellows comes the art of maintaining a life of happiness and tranquillity," writes the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis of "The Secrets of a Happy Life" in The Ladies' Home Journal, "for the soul was made for Joy and good sheer. Life is a school; labor and sorrow, victory and defeat toil together as teachers, but happiness is life's aim and graduating point. Next to the duty of self denial comes the duty of delight. What ripeness is to an orange, what song is to the lark, what culture and refinement are to the intellect, that happiness is to the soul. As vulgarity and ignorance betoken a neglected mind, so unhappiness and misery proclaim the neglected heart.

"The normal nature will keep strong and fresh the chords that vibrate joy. Depression and worry take the nerve out of man's arm, take the keen edge from his mind, rob life of its victory, for unhappiness wins no battles, gloom invents me tool, wretchedness writes no drama. Earth's great achievements represent those whose hearts sang over the tasks. To meet storm with calm, defeat with faith, ingratitude with charty, is not an easy thing. Nothing requires on much wisdom, practice and skill as learning how to live inhibitually above the distemperatures of life."

A GREAT POKER GAME

IT MIGHT HAVE BROUGHT ABOUT AN INTERNATIONAL ROW.

Malieton and the Victor an Ameriean Naval Officer - The Jack Pot That Caused the Trouble.

"There was a stiff game of noker player Malieton several years ago. I guesa this was about the healthiest game ever in dulged in by a foreigner. Malietoa had heard of the great games played by Kal-akaua, king of Hawaii, and the Samoan thought be'd like to take a little brush on this line. Well, Malieton's opportunity to test his belief came one day when an ene—sailed into the harbor at Apia. If is determination to take the thirty-second degree in the mysteries of the great American game was satisfied to the fullest extent. Among the officers aboard the man-of-war were a paymaster, a lieutenant and an asistant engineer, who had burned the midnight lamp studying poker at Annapolis and had prosecuted the study in season and out of season ever since they left that place. In a word, they were all three just about as smooth poker players as you could find in a month's travel.

"There was a trader among the white

In a month's travel.

"There was a trader among the white residents of Apia who was known to come to the front with a pretty stiff game, and Malietoa soon arranged through him a game with the officers. By invitation and appointment the king and his friends met the officers in the private parlors of a European, and before the evening was half gone Malietoa requested that the limit, a small one, be taken off. The old codger had won, several pretty fair jack pots and felt his importance and ability to clean up the eral pretty fair jack pots and felt his importance and ability to clean up the whole crowd. Off the limit came, and for several hours Malieton had almost phenomenal luck, whoning jack pot after jack pot. The more he won the more reckless he became, and when something was said about closing down he entered as large and emphatic protest. The game proceeded, and the healthiest jack pot of the night was on the table.

"Several hands had been dealt around without any one having expressed his without any one having expressed his ability to open the pot, when the king, with a look of surprise and a smile of pleasure and triumph combined, and sounced that he would open it $20 worth.

Every player staid. The paymaster drew three cards, the lieutenant the same number, the assistant engineer took two and the trader one. Malleton showed his blood by standing out and putting $10 more into the pot. The paymaster saw this and raised him $25, while the others staid. Then the king raised again, and the paymaster threw in $25 more. It was becoming too interesting for the other players, and they dropped ont. After the king's last raise the paymaster hesitated a moment, put his cigar to one side and shoved $50 to the middle of the mahogmany. three cards, the lieutenant the same num

"The king put up the equivaient in Chilean silver dollars, the currency of the islands, and, drawing a small sack from his pocket, emptied its contents before him and excitedly placed in the pot the funds of the royal treasury of Samos, amounting to $79 in silver. The paymaster's face grew serious, and be looked at his royal opponent in a hesitating, pousled sort of way. Could this be a Samoan Ah bin he had run against? Had this hingly copper colored son of a gun learned the art of poker playing from visiting traders years before and had he been playing possum all the evuling? Having six or seven months' pay in his inside pocket, the paymaster decided to chance some of it in finding out. "After a few moments of undecision he drew $579 in gold and silver from his pocket and added it to the pot, which now covered the table. Malieton gave a gasp and called for a glass of kava to steady his serves. This he gulped down and announced that he was out of funds, requesting at the same time that the paymaster take his word for $500, but there was nary a take, the paymaster only amiline and looking fixedly at the pot-master take his word for $500, but there was nary a take, the paymaster only smiling and looking fixedly at the pot. Then the excited monarch offered to put up the island of Manono, one of the finest in the Bamoan group, against the $509. To this the paymaster consented, and a transfer deed of the property, duly signed, attested by the trader, who was a notary public, and witnessed by the other two officers, was put in the pot. Then the hing called the paymaster, who slowly laid down four acce and a five spot.

to sit right down and reason out the position.

Sometimes a business man gets up at the usual hour, breakfasts, kisses his wife and starts for the office. He has for sometimes seen signs that he was off the trail of health. To-day the signs multiply. His brain is dull and dizzy, his heart does not beat right, his breathing is difficult, his limbs feel tremulous. He is acared. He realizes that he's far away from the trail of health, and suddenly like a panther from a tree, the thought leaps on him, "You are a lost man." The first impulse is to run for help, though the way is honey-combed with pitfalls of quackery. But the rational man faces the facts, sits down and thinks over the position and its probabilities.

WHY IS ACTION NOT TAKEN?

Editor of the Time Fir.-I have noticed that the article which recently appeared in the Times relative to the great matural resource of the back townships of this county, has been quoted by the Campbellford Herild and other papers in neighborine places. The facts presented in that article show that there districts cannot be excelled in Ontario for their mineral products, and the great need of the construction of a railroad to open up connection between those town-bips and some place from which the products would go to the markets Why some action has not too taken by our Town Council in the matter, we'ms stronge. The time must come and very soon when some town will we to the opening up of those town chips to the world's marke's, and if we do not de ire to miss one of the greatest chances for the advancement of our town, we will to tir ourselves and we that the opportunity prevental is not lost, and some other to secure the advantages which by right belong to Peterborough.

A Combination of the Most Parliament Opens Powerful of American and English Capitalists

the G vernment of Great Britain

New York, July 14.-- A business als iance of American and English capitals ists has been recently formed, which is of unusual interest and importance be cause of the leading positions held by there men on both sides of the Atlantic because of the many millions of dollars nwolved in it, because the United States Government is about to be sked to give the compact official sanca tion and moral support; because England has already formally approved it and because the field of its operations is beyond the jurisdiction of both now seen made by F. . W. Whitridge, of the firm of Carey & Whitridge, who now fills the place left cacant by the death of e-Sephtor Calvin S. Brice, as the chairman of the Executive Committee of the American China Developement Company. The company is one party British and Chinese corporation.

Biggest in the World. This makes a combination of the most cowerful capitalists in the world. The field of their activities is China. The Concessions.

The concessions which ex-Cenator Brice secured from the Chinese Govern. ment for the American J. Jana Develope ment Company, consist of the right to construct a railroad 750 miles long from Canton to Hankow, exceedingly Ther industrial franchises of individual but great aggregate value The British Company had a contract to build an eighty-mile railroad from Canton to Kowtoon on the sea coast. The two resolved to pool their undertaking and their profit.

Salisbury Backs It.

Mr. Whiteridge amerts that Lord Salisbury has already instructed the British Ambassador in China to treat the contract secured by the American Company and shared with the Enga tich Company as if it were a British contract, and urge the Chinese Govern ment to fulfill its terms. The Amer's can Company has sent Mr. Parsons to Washington to make a formal request that the Government of the United States take a similar stand. Such a demand on the United States Government is probably unprecedented.

To Bestray Wild Sustand." Wild mustard is easily the king of all noxious weeds and how to destroy it has long been a vexed questions. The mystery has at last been solved. Prof. Doberty, of the Cutario Agricultural Doher, y, of the Chario Agricultural College, a few days ago made an experiment, theology a plot of a quarter of an acre budly infested with the mustard. This he sprayed with a two par cent rolution sulphate of copper. The result was entirely astisfactory. The mustard was killed and the cropy and at all injured. Being an annual the mustard destroyed forever. It is estimated that ten tents worth of this chemical will agray an acre. If this tent indicates an easy and effective method for the eradiention of wild mustard, Prof. Doherty has certainly accomplished great things for the farms ag community.

AN INTERESTING PRETENDER.

Next to Don Carlos of Spain-or wh would like to be of Spain, but isn'tthat interesting young pretender, Henry of Orleans, probably contributes more generously to the garety of nations than any of the princes out of a job. Having been hustled out of Belgium with more celerity than dignity, his royal highness has recovered his breath long enough to announce that he will bow to the decision of the Rennes court-martial in the Dreyfas case!" This is truly royal conde scansion. Seeing that his royal high sess himself would be run out France by the maps of the neck and the slack of his trousers if he were to renture upon French soil, it is singularly kind of him to renounce his prerogative of disapproving the finding of the Rennes court-martial in cas that tribunal should rehabilitate Dreyfus. The fatal defect in all these pretenters is their total lack of a sens of humor.

Samples of cement used in the antique water conduits about Ephesus chemical analysis, and the results have proved interesting from the archaeolo gical as well as the engineering point of view. (While the different samples: were from water-works dated from mayeral centuries before Christ to 300 yours after, yet it was found that the general composition of all quite similar. The chief constituent was carbonate of lime, but mixed with it was from 2 to 8 per cent. of organic material. This was ascertained to consist of a mixture of fatty soids, and it is believed that the cement was the oil cement which Pliny and Vitravius menti a in their works. Experiments were made with a cement consisting of burned Jime and plive or linesed oil, but it was got found to be permanent. On the other hank a mixture of two-thirds air-slaked lime, and enerthird office oil hardened readily, and possessed great endurance, loading to the well of that this was the composition of the ancient cements, which were analyzed.

"The postmaster was a man named Wilson, who kept a general store, and the postoffice consisted of a scap box on the end of his counter. When mail arrived, it was dumped in, and overy fellow helped himself, an arrangement that worked well enough until a chap known as Black Hills Pete came to town. Pete disturbed the entire system. When he didn't get a letter him elf, he would tear up several others on the principle that misery loves company, and, being a notorious desperado, noboly dared interfere I get the facts, and as the mail came in that evening I took a seat in the corner and awaited developments, first ordering the box removed.

"A little after dark the miners from own began to assemble, and presently in came Black Hills Pets. He was a high brute of a fellow, and I may at once there was going to be trouble. Where's that letter box?' be demanded of Wilson. 'I've ordered him not to use it any more.' I said, getting up. 'Who the blank blank are you?' roared Peter. 'I'm the inspector,' I replied. 'Well, you get me that box quick,' he retorted, and, seeing him reach toward his pocket, I made a grab for my gun; but, as bad luck would have it, the confounded thing caught in the holster. "That's the true story of the strangest fight that ever occurred in the west. Pete recovered, but before he could be arrested was aprirted away by friends to New Mexico. His right name was Luther Coleman, and there is a warrant now standing against him for destroying United States mail matter. After the episode I have narrated there was no further trouble at the Carbonville postoffice."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A GREAT POKER GAME

IT MIGHT HAVE BROUGHT ABOUT AN INTERNATIONAL ROW

Malieton and the Victor an American Naval Officer -- The Jack Pot That Cansed the Trouble.

"There was a stiff game of poker played by a paymaster in the navy with King Malietoa several years ago. I guess this was about the healthiest game ever in-dulged in by a foreigner. Malietoa had heard of the great games played by Kalheard of the great games played by Kal-akawa, king of Hawaii, and the Samoan thought he'd like to take a little brush on this line. Well, Malietoa's opportunity to test his belief came one day when an American man-of-war-never mind which one-sailed into the harbor at Apia. His determination to take the thirty-second degree in the mysteries of the great American game was satisfied to the full-set extent. Among the officers aboard degree in the mysteries of the great American game was satisfied to the full-test extent. Among the officers aboard the man-of-war were a paymaster, a lieutenant and an asistant conjucer, who had burned the midnight lamp studying poker at Annapolis and had prosecuted the study in season and out of season ever since they left that place. In a word, they were all three just about as smooth poker players as you could find in a month's travel.

"There was a trader among the white residents of Apia who was known to come to the front with a pretty stiff game, and Maletoa soon arranged through him a game with the officers. By invitation and appointment the king and his friends met the officers in the private parlors of a European, and before the evening was half gone Malletoa requested that the limit; a small one, be taken off. The old codger had won several pretty fair jack pot and felt his importance and ability to clean up the whole crowd. Off the limit came, and for weveral hours Malleton had almost phenomenal luck, whuning jack pot after jack pot. The more he won the more recaless he became, and when something was said about closing down he entered a large and emphatic protest. The game proceeded, and the healthlest jack pot of the night was on the table.

"Several hands had been dealt around

STEAMER SPARTAN ON A SHOAL

Her Journey from Montreal to Toronto

Cornwall, July 13.-The Richelieu & Cornwall, July 12.—The Richelieu & Omtario steamer Spartan, bound from Montreal to Toronto, ran asthore last night on a whost at Thempson's Island, four miles east of Summerstown. Stemmon lies in three feet of water, and it will require a austaber of powerful tugs to release her. She is half a mile out of her course, and it is thought the pitots mistook fishermen's lights for the Hamilton Island lightship. The thurst is due at 6 o'clock te-morrow morning, in Toronto, but will probably be delayed by the accident. Captain Grange is in command.

The Spartan is a side-whooler like the rest of the Richelieu and Ontario bons, and is a popular vessel among the tourist parties who annually take in the river frip. This spring sha was fitted at a considerable expanse to the come say. She has been running between Toronto and Mostreal for several years, and was due here to morning. Applications had been received by Manager Bolan for berthan in nearly all the staterooms, but it is experted another best may have to be cent up from Montreal to take the trip.

DENSEST FOREST ON EARTH.

Redweed Enough to Last 800 Years at Freeent Rate of Outting.

The habitat of the radwood is result... It is found only in a narrow strip, closely hugging the Pacific coast, stretching from the southern boundary—for there are perhaps 1,000 acres of redwood in Oregon—southward through northern California, nearly to the bay of San Francisco.

The elecent and finest growth is in Humbolds county, near the northern end. That portion in Mendocino and Sonoma counties it not as heavy or continuous, nor are the trees as valuable for lumber, as they branch lower down. The wood is, however, of slower growth, is denser and harder and perhaps more durable. The best lumber and the heaviest growth are carry here in the valleys and on the flain. On the hillsides the trees are smaller and mos so close. Now here is there any young growth. The youngest trees, which are fauld only in the northern parties of the narth, as measured by the amount of timber per acre suitable for the sawmill. It is not the size of the trees alone which produces this, although they are exceptionally large, even in this state of large things, but it is the great number of trees, the closeness of their stand. In a redwood forest the sun never shines—it is always utilight. You are, as it were, under the roof of a vast temple, a roof of foliage, supported by great tree columns.

The area of the redwood belt has been arefully mapped and is, as nearly as on the estimated, 2,000 on quare miles, or 1,300,000 acres. The stand of timber on this area is not so easy to accertain, but may be computed thes:

The annual cut by the mills is $50,000,-

The annual cut by the mills is 800,000,The annual cut by the mills is 800,000,000 foot. At the present rate of cutting, therefore, the supply will last 800 years. In the Mendocino county there is nearly nine times as much timber on an acre as in the southern pineries. In Humboldt sounty, upon 96,445 acres, the average stand is 84,000 feet per acre, nearly 17 times as grees as in the southern status.

There is one cause of destruction from which this tree is entirely arempt; that is fire. Containing no pitch, but, on the other hand, a large amount of water, it will not burn when green. No fire can run in a redwood fencet. It is the only one of our coniferous humber trees which is thus exempt.

Redwood is in almost universal use on the California coast. In the construction of houses little other timber is used, even as far south as Los Angeles and San Diego. It is exported as far south as Valparaiso and westward to Japan and Australia. Indeed, considering its cheapness, $14 per 1,000 feet in Eureka for the best, it seems strange that it has not found its way in quantity to the Atlantic coast. Certain it is that before many years redwood will supplant the now vanishing white pine in essern markets.—National Geographic Magazine.

DENSEST FOREST ON EARTH.

DENSEST FOREST ON EARTH.

Redweed Enough to Last 200 Years at Present Rate of Outting.

The habitat of the redwood is jeculiar. It is found only in a narrow strip, closely hugging the Pacific coast, stretching from the southern boundary of Oregon—outs across the houndary—for there are perhaps 1,000 acros of redwood in Oregon—outhward through northern California, nearly to the bay of San Francisco.

The closest and finest growth is in Humbolds county, near the northern end. That portion in Mendocino and Sonoma counties is not as heavy or continuous, nor are the trees as valuable for lumber, as they branch lower down. The wood is, however, of slower growth, is denser and harder and perhaps more durable. The best lumber and the heaviest growth are esserwhere in the valleys and on the flats. On the hillisides the trees are smaller and not so close. Now here is there any young growth. The youngest trees, which are found only in the northern parties of the belt, are several hundred years of age.

This is probably the densest forest on earth, as measured by the amount of timber per acre suitable for the samount of timber per acre suitable for the samount of timber per acre suitable for the sum of the trees alone which produces this, although they are exceptionally large, even in this state of large things, but it is the great number of trees, the closeness of their stand. In a redwood forest the sum never shines—it is always twilight. You are, as it were, under the roof of a vast temple, a roof of foliaga, supported by great tree columns.

The area of the redwood belt has been executing the redwood belt has been executing the redwood belt has been executing the redwood belt has been executed to the sum acre as it were, in the redwood belt has been executed to the sum acre as the redwood belt has been executed to the redwood belt has been executed to the redwood belt has been executed to the sum of the redwood belt has been executed to the redwood belt has been executed to the redwood belt has been executed to the redw one of our coniferous lumber trees which is thus exempt.

Redwood is in almost universal use on the California coast. In the construction of houses little other timber is used, even as far south as Los Angeles and San Diego. It is exported as far south as Valparaise and westward to Japan and Australia. Indeed, ecusidering its cheapness, $14 per 1,000 feet in Eureka for the best, it seems stranges that it has not found its way in quantity to the Atlantic coast. Cartain it is that before many years redwood will supplant the now vanishing white pine in easern markets.—National Geographic Magazine.

what Uncle Bill wanted the Rewspaper Publisher to De.

A number of newspaper men were exchanging reminiscences a few days ago in a Court street inn. One of them, by the way, was an expublisher—that is to any, he once owned and edited a paper in the upper section of the stata. One of his rubscribers was William Makepeace Thacksery Willington, whose neighbors called him "Uncle Bill" to asve time and labor. "One day Uncle Bill walked into my effice," said the former publisher. "He placed his whip in a corper and removed his hat. He asked if I was the editor. I pleaded guilty. "Shake," said he. "I am glad to know ye. When I was a young faller, I used to do some writin myself." "Uncle Bill laped into silesce and did some solid thinking for several minutes. Then he resumed the conversation. MANDY'S QUICK WIT

UNCLE JOHN'S MODEL WIFE WAS EQUAL TO THE OCCASION.

An Exciting Race That Was Grandly Won When It Seemed Surely Lost Just Because This Clever Woman "Seen Her Duty, and She Done It."

"My wife," remarked Uncle John Al-gus with an air of pride and proprieter-ship, somewhat more prevalent an ong young husbands in their honeymoons than young husbands in their honeymoons than among old ones who have been married for 50 years or more, as Uncle John was—"my wife is one uv them women the Lord only makes a few uv, and them mighty scatterin. She's jist ex good natured and happy now as she wux when I courted her, but Mandy sin't all mush and spoom victuals, and there's times when ale has to be handled with keer er somethin will be sp'lled. She's got temper a-plenty, and she ain't afterred uv the old expent himself. I mind one thing she done once that I'll never fergit of I live to be older than the parson's wife's bonnet.

self I mind one thing she done once that I'll never fergit of 1 live to be older than the parson's wife's bonnet.

"In them days Mandy weighed-a hunderd and eighty-seven pounds in her stockin feet, and I wuz-only a scant hunderd and forty. We had on the farm all the time seven er eight head uv fine borses, and one winter we had a pair uv é-year-olds that we prided ourselves pertickeler on, fer they had been takin premiums at the fair every year since they wuz yearlin's. They had speed, too, and we thought they couldn's be best by anything in that neck uv woods, but a neighbor uv ours named Hall—everybody knowed Jim Hall, jist like they knowed me—had a pair he had bought in the next county that he offered to bet a cow and calf could beat ours hands down. He used to let 'em out past our place to kind uv tantalise us, and I tell you they wurn's a funeral percession by a long ways, but Mandy used to laugh and say we'd show him something when the goin got good.

"You see, it was along in November then, and the roads hadn't froze yet. The first snow oome in December with a mighty cold spell followin and hangin on, and in about a week er ten days we had fine steighin, and one afternoon Mandy eaid she guessed we ought to hitch up the bays and go out for some air and exercise. That was enough fer me, and I had the team to the outter and out at the gate waitin fer the lady in less than no time.

"The team wuz feelin as frisky as kit-team to the cutter and out at the gate waitin fer the lady in less than no time. The team wux feelin as frisky as kittens, and the way they along the snow and spun over the road would stir the blood in a wooden man. When we got to the turnpike, where the folks usually let their teams out, I guess there wux a dozen er more movin up and down at a clippin gait, and we sailed right in among em, and in shout seven minutes we passed symptoms on the west.

The Toronto World announces that copper ore of almost incredible extent and richus a, throwing into the shade any other copper deposit yet discovered, has teen found within two miles of any other copper deposit yet discovered, has teen found within two milest of Parry Sound and within a mile of the Ottawa and Parry Sound Railway. It had been known for years that copper stiested there, but not till reachtly, and then only by notidest, was it discovered that the gre was of the great value, and extent it is now known to be. An American min agreer named F. Forban was the first to discover this fact. After examining almost every claim of value he formed a number of St. Paul associates and commenced operations. Within two weeks they quarried ore to this value of $300,000, and smelter returns from New York for the first six car leads taken from the quarry gave a clear profit of $7000 over and above all fraight and smelter charges. Another company has now been formed composed of St. Paul and Canadian capitalisms, which has jurchased all the claims not hald by the first company, and it is gradieted that the district as a gesult of the operations of these two companies, will prove to be almost, if not quite, as rich as the great Anaconda itself.

Mr. Blair in explanation said that be purchased twenty Haldwin engines in the United States. They cost | $9,800 each and the same engines supplied from the Kingston works would cost $14,000. He was, however, anxious to give the wirk to the Kingston works were they able to turn it out for the Government, but these engines were wanted in a hurry, and the Kingston works could not turn them out in time. The Government got the engines in thirty days. They were first-class in every , respect. Kingston works he did not think would make any complaint against the Government for not getting the patronage. Some elecping care were also bought in the United States. All the engines and cars were in use and it cost the company $50,000 for (the use of other company's cars when generally the amount was only $10,000. The engines weighed 77 tone.

The items were all passed and the Galops Camal was reached when the House adjourned.

These are sure signs of potenting.

From what poisons?

From potents that are always found in constipated bowels.

If the contents of the bowels are not removed from the body each day, as nature intended, these poisonous substances are sure to be absorbed into the blood, always causing suffering and frequently causing severe disease.

They daily insure an easy and flatural movement of the bowels.

DE J. C. ATER.

"Next to the art of living justly and kindly with our fallows comes the art of maintaining a life of happiness and tranquillity," writes the Rev. Dr. Newall Dwight Hillis of "The Secreta of a Happy Life" in The Ladies' Home Journal, "for the soul was made for joy and good chase. Life is a school; labor and sorrow, victory and defeast toil together as teachers, but happiness is life's aim and graduating point. Next to the duty of self denial comes the duty of delight. What ripeness is to an orange, what song is to the lark, what culture and refinement are to the intellect, that happiness is to the soul. As vulgarity and ignorance betoken a neglected mind, so unhappiness and mesery proclaim the neglected heart.

"The normal nature will keep strong and fresh the chords that vibrate joy. Depression and worry take the nerve out of man's arm, take the keen edge from his mind, rob life of its victory, for unhappiness wins no battles, gloom invents ne tool, wretchedness writes no drama. Earth's great achievements represent those whose hearts sang over the tasks. To meet stoom with calm, defeat with faith, ingratitude with charity, is not an easy thing. Nothing requires so much wisdom, practice and skill as learning bow to live habitually above the distamperatures of life."

Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official," I was a husky young fellow, chesty and sasay about my puglistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnastium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding bouse on Plerrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this bearding bouse. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical studants, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately
I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—cluba, dumbbella, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em
my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the oriling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition
to get addled up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor
was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got bask, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the tima, but he didn't strike me as being a very
cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him.
Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows introduced me to him. I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glance and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in been away since my advent in the bouse and whom I had just met.

"Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you.' You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise."

"All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his cost on, and I felt that he would be deed easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gause undershirt, I couldn's help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with nuceles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I maw, though, and he didn's look to be lively on his feet, so we went as it.

"Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man There was nothing to it but him. From the very ninute that we squared off I could see by the way he bandled his duices.

It will be interesting to watch Mr. Carange of the benefactions, the territory he will solect as the chief access of his above and there could be benefactions, the territory he will solect as the chief access of his labore and their effect upon him and she communities.

Arnoda Abould be More Inspiring.

The following is from the current of St. Luke's, Ashburnham:-

The annual meeting of the synod was not particularly interesting this year. The business was more than ordinarily of a routine character, and our best e enkers, such as Mr. S. H. Blake, Dr. Parkin, and Prof. Clarke, were conrhicuous by their absence or silence of the business of the Church, buti it reems a great pity that no means can he deviced to render it somewhat more encouraging and inspiring, seeing that it is the only occasion when the clergy and representative laymen of the dio core asremble. Mr. E. A. Peck was elected a member of the most import-ant committee of the Synod next to the Executive, viz., that of the Mission Board, and Mr. Symonds was elected to the following committees, Church to the following committees, Church extension. The increase of the Episconsts, Religious Instruction in the Public Schools, The Church Congress Committee, and the Committee to con-sider the formation of a Provincial Hynod of Ontario.

A Highly Successful Society.

High Chief Ranger soll, of the Canadian Order of Foresters, has returned home after visiting the local courts. He says that the growth of the order is eminently estinfactory: In 1885 there were than 5000 members; today there are 32,000 names eprolicit. This increase has not been the result of any boon or any one year's extraordinary inerense, but a steady forward movem sich year-a mark forward was set and efforts were made to reach that point Last year 5,686 members were initiatthe present average age of all the 32,years—a grand showing. puly-Speaker will Take his Place

Ottawa, July 17 .- Sta Wilfrid Laurer left for Montreal to see Hom, At C. Geoffrion, who is dying. The Premier is expected to return this after noon, but it is doubtful if he will be in time to give cotics of the Senate reform resolutions today.

The redistribution bill comes up in the Senate today. The general opinion is that it will be thrown out. Sir Mackenzia Bowell's remark wheat it was read the first time that the second reading should be deferred until after the next general elections has been taken at an indicator that the bill will not be passed.

Air James Edgar Veeds & Best.

Attawa, July 17.-The prolonged see sion has told somewhat on the health of the Speaked of the Commons and he has been advised by his medical attendants, Dr. Bowell and Dr. Ruddick, to go away for a complete frest. While there is nothing alarming about the rondition of Sir James Edgar's bealth, atill the strain of four mouths' continuous work auth responsibility has not given him a fair opportunity of complete recovery. It is understood complete recovery. It is unnerstood that he is anffering from spisutetic anemia, a complaint which can be beet cured by complete rest and open air. He leaves this evening for the West and will probably spend part of the cummer with his family at Rosobe's Point, on Lake Simcos. Deputy Product will act as Sunther. Point, on Lake Simon. Der deur will act as Spanker.

San Francisco, Cal., July 17.-Lisutanent Sutton of comment G. First Omegon volunteers, one of the officers In the returned regiment, today stated that to his opinion it will to make very before real peace is established in the Philippines.

"Aguinaldo is not half as hig a man among the Filipinos as he was three menths ago," said Lieut. Sutton. Even if his was out of the way this rigandage war would go on just the same. At least 100 000 men needed to conquer and hold the island of Luzon alone. Every taken must be garrisoned and held. The Oregon regiment occupied. the own of Sau Rafael and other places no less than three times. Each time hey were most thoroughly evacuated by the Filipinon. The satives simply went off into rendezvous in jungles, changed clothes, hid their guns and reappeared among the Am ericans as pacificos. Many a poor fellow was caught by these traitorous gangs and chopped to pieces. They are cunning and cruel by nature and 300 years of Spanish training only whetted their natural traits.

"If those Filipinos were left alone for three months they would annihilate one another. Most of the leaders are well educated men, with some tor of title, and ambitious to run i th whole works. A GREAT POKER GAME

IT MIGHT HAVE BROUGHT ABOUT 'AN INTERNATIONAL ROW.

The Victim Was the Samean King Malleton and the Victor on Ameriran Naval Officer - The Jack Pet

"There was a stiff game of poker played by a paymaster in the navy with King Mulietoa several years ago. I guess this was about the healthiest game ever in-dulged in by a foreigner. Malietoa had heard of the great games played by Kal-akaua, king of Hawaii, and the Samoan thought he'd like to take a little brush on this line. Well, Malietoa's opportunity to test his bellef came one day when an American man-of-war-never mind which one-sailed into the harbor at Apia. His one—salled into the harbor at Apia. His determination to take the thirty-second degree in the mysteries of the great American game was satisfied to the fullest extent. Among the officers aboard the man-of-war were a paymaster, a lieutenant and an asistant engineer, who had burned the midnight lamp studying poker at Annapolia and had prosecuted the study in season and out or season ever since they left that place. In a word, they were all three just about as smooth poker players as you could find in a month's travel.

as smooth poker players as you could find in a month's travel.

"There was a trader among the white residents of Apia who was known to come to the front with a pretty stiff game, and Malectoa soon arranged through him a game with the officera. By invitation and appointment the king and his friends met the officers in the private parlors of a European, and before the evening was half gone Maliecoa requested that the limit, a small one, be quested that the limit, a small one, taken off. The old codger had won s quested that the limit, a small one, be taken off. The old codger had won several pretty fair jack pots and felt his importance and ability to clean up the whole crowd. Off the limit came, and for several hours Maileton had almost phenomenal luck, winning jack pot after jack pot. The more he won the more reckless he became, and when something was said about closing down he entered a large and emphatic protest. The game proceeded, and the healthiest jack pot of the night was on the table. tue night was on the table.

The night was on the table.

"Several bands had been dealt around without any one having expressed his ability to open the pot, when the king, with a look of surprise and a smile of pleasure and triumph combined, and inced that he would open it $20 words. nounced that he would open it $20 work. Every player staid. The paymaster drew three cards, the lieutenant the same number, the assistant engineer took two and the trader one. Malletoa showed his bood by standing out and putting $10 more into the pot. The paymaster saw this and raised him $25, while the others staid. Then the king raised again, and the paymaster threw in $25 more. It was becoming too interesting for the other players, and they dropped out. After the king's last raise the paymaster hesitated a mement, put his crear to one side and shoved $50 to the middle of the mahog-

The king put up the equivalent in Chileson silver dollars, the currency of the islands, and, drawing a small sack Chilean silver dollars, the currency of the bilands, and, drawing a small sack from his pocket, emptied its contents before him and excitedly placed in the pot the funds of the royal treasury of Namos's arounding to $79 in silver. The paymanter's face grew serious, and he looked at his royal opponent in a hesitating, puzzled sort of way. Cook this be a Namosan Ah bin he had run against? Had this kingly copper colored son of a gun learned the art of poker playing from visiting traders years before and had he been playing possum all the evening? Having six or seven months' pay in his inside pocket, the paymaster decided to chance some of it in finding out. "After a few moments of undecision he drew $779 in gold and silver from his pocket and added it to the pot, which now covered the table. Malietoa gare a gasp and called for a glass of kaya to wher two officers, was put in the pot.

Then the king called the paymaster, who slowly laid down four aces and a five apot.

"With a look of horrer and a flamoan wail of despair, his majesty exposed to view three kings, an eight spot and a deuga. Then he fell off his chair in a faint, the excitement having been too much for his nerves. Kava in copious quantities brought him around sufficiently to enable his removal to his own, cabit. The paymaster shoveled his money into a sack and placed it in the trader's from safe, but the deed for the island he carefully placed in his pocket.

"Next morning the details of the big poker game were known to nearly every inhabitant of the place, and the German and English consuls sent official communications to the American consul protesting in most emphatic terms against the action of the king in disposing of the island of Mannon to an American or to any one else, and warning the consul that unless the paymaster returned the deed for the island to the king at ence they would direct the attention of their respective governments to the case.

"Here was a pretty state of affaira. The officer had, no doubt, won the island fairly, and the king's action was binding, but in the tension in which flamons affairs were at that time the German and English governments week on its consult analey in a disastrous way to American interests.

"The facts were fully explained to the remain and the tone and other flamoan articles of value the deed was returned to the king and destroyed. By mutual consent of the consults and others interested the afair was hushed up in every way and was thus allowed to die out. Malieton took an eath that he would never again play poker."

Reciprocal.

"Tes, sir," remarked the amishle man,
"I look to see an Englishman come over here and drop his h's once in awhile."
"Yes," asswered the man who has been to Epsom downs, "and he likes to see us go over there and drop our X's and V'a."

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official. "I was a husky young follow, chesty and saasy about my puglitate ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with follows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boxrding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical stu dents, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a capegrare lot, and I got so quainted with most of them immediately I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'emmy boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never years mot an anof my weight that could put the glove on with me in the amakeur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think,

London, July 15 .- Miss Kussner, , the oung American who has achieved high reputation in Europe and America as a miniature painter, recently reurned here from Russia, where she had most interesting experiences. She went to St. Petersburg to paint miniature of the Grand Puchess Viadimir and had only been there a few days when she was summoned to the winter palace to paint a likeness of the Czariga. Before she had finished the Czar ordered a miniature of himmelf.

Miss Kusaner speags with enthusiasm of the kindness and conaideration with which abewas treated by the Imperial couple and of the simplicity and unaffectedness of their life. While the pataces bristled with soldiers and police, both the Emperor and Empress almost daily drove out unattended even by a footman. Both of their Majesties are immensely popular with the people.

SPAIN BITTER TOWARDS U. S. A private letter from Madrid says he feeling there against Americans is growing very bitter on account of the Philippine prisoners and the position of Americans at Madrid is very unpleasant. When Mrs. Ballamy Storer, wife of the United States Minister, recently saw the Queen Regent, the latter, with tears in her eyes, said- "!What is past is past and we can bear that, but the Americans can bear that, but the Americans ought to help us liberate our people who are held primogers. The uncertainty as to their, fate and sufferings is torturing their relatives and my whole unhappy country."

All classes are now taking the matter up. Some letters from the prisoners have reached Madrid saying they number 7,000 and are in the most miserable condition, without sufficient clothing and food. National subscriptions are being organized to help them.

The Spaniards say the Americans would not allow them to remain in the islands and rescue the prisoners and that the Americans do not or cannot liberate them.

London, July 15 .- News than been re-

London, July 15.—News gas been re-ceived by the military authorities of Upper Nigeria of heavy later-tribal fighting upon the Binue, between Has-man, the Fulani Emir of Muri (Muri is as important Mohammedan State on the right bank of the Binus, tributary to Sokote), and his brother Urems Mafandi, assisted by the King of Wurio, also of the Fulant race. The trouble was due to the disputed succession of the kingdom of Muri. The Emir of Sukpto, supreme over-lord of there regions, declared the claims of Haman to be valid. Pending the judgment Hassan had retired to Jalinga on the west bank of the Binue.

United Forces.

The two other can ildates, however, Urema Mafendi and the King of Wurio, had meanwhile betaken themselves to Muri, the capital of the kingdom When the message arrived from the Emir of Sokoto andorsing Hassan's claume they made joint cause against him. Hessan, apprised of the action of his rivals, got together a powerful army of several thousand men and prepared to attack the allies. | The latter, thinking Haman would eron the Binus at a place called Wuzo, had made agrangements to give him warm reception. The wily nowaver, crossed at a spot higher ap the river, and falling upon his oppon-onts from the rear defeated them with heavy slaughter. A large, num-ner of prisoners fell into the hands of the victors.

Shopgirl's Hard Let.

Persons complain that shopgirls do not jump actively to wait upon them when they enter a store. Why not? The other day I saw a girl approach a respectably dressed woman of middle age—that's 33—and heard her ask, over the counter, "What would you like, ma'sun?"

To this polite attention I was shocked to hear the woman reply: "You shut up! Don't you talk to me! I can ask for what I want, and I don't want any impudence from clerks?"

A few rebuffs from such creatures are quite enough to cool the arder of any shopgirl.

The habitat of the redwood is justility. It is found only in a narrow strip, closely hugging the Pacific coses, stretching from the southern boundary of Oregon or just across the boundary of Oregon or just areas the boundary of Oregon or just areas and the surface of the transparent California, nearly to the bay of San Francisco.

The classest and finest growth is in Humboldt county, near the northern end. That portion in Mendecline and Sonoma, nor are the trees as valuable for lumber, as they branch lower down. The wood is however, of slower growth, is denser and harder and perhaps more durable. The best lumber and the heaviest growth are everywhere in the valleys and on the flats. On the hillsides the trees are smaller and set co close. Nowhere is there any young growth. The youngest trees, which are found only in the northern pertion of the balt, are several hundred years of age.

This is probably the densest forest on earth, as measured by the amount of timber on the per acre suitable for the sawmill. It is not the cine of the trees alone which produces this, aithough they are exceptionally large, even in this stake of large things, but it is the great number of trees, the closeness of their stand. In a redwood forest the sum never shines—it is always willight. You are, as it were, under the roof of a vast temple, a roof of follages supported by great tree columns.

The area of the redwood belt has been arefully mapped and is, as nearly as can be estimated, $,000 square miles, or 1,890,000.00

Cartyle and the Checker Player.

James Wyllie, the "Herd Laddie," on a very wet and tempestuous day, many years ago, turned into a little residued in near Luchmahen. Soon afterward he was joined by a couple of strangers, the younger of whom, a burly farmer, began to hoast about his proficiency on the "dambord," as the draught board is called in Scotland. He was at once challenged by the third man, a person of rugged aspect. Time after time Wyllie swept the board, while the vanquished farmer funel, swore and fairly lost his temper Suddenly the third party broke silence with the following warning to his companion:

"Stop, stop! Leave off, man! Can't you."

be mirrored in the seemingly fashonics depth of the dark glass.

The gentleman who owns the mirror has never been himself successful in seeing anything, but a friended his, a prominent judge and a thirty-third degree hisson, had a remarkable experience life placed the mirror in his lap, and, after haif an hour, a miss floated over the surface, then he saw reflected in the glass a picture of a coffin, within which was the still, white face of a dead man. At first glance the features seemed those of the gaser, but on looking closely it was seen that they represented exactly the brother of the gentleman—a man then in perfect health. In a second the picture shifted and another face—that of a friend—ap peared within the sides of the coffin. The gentleman in two weeks afterward lost his brother, and in a short while his friend, whose face he had also seen, passed to another world.

A son of the owner was one evening looking into the mirror, when he saw within a picture of a house in finner. There were the servants leaping from the porches, then returning to drag out the furniture. The glass shows around on a within a picture of a house in names. There were the servants leaping from the porches, then returning to drag out the furniture. The glare shone around on a yard which the gaser recognized as that of his own farmhouse down the Potomac By the mail twe days afterward he received from his housekeeper an account of a fire which had destroyed his home, and the description tallied exactly with the picture seen in the mirror.

Another man, a gentleman employed in the bureau of ethnology and well known as a scientist and linguist, has also seen many pictures in the mirror—pictures of events in his life which were afterward realized to the letter.

By a student of occultism the following directions were given in a treatise on that subject, which dealt with the methods employed in making such mirrors: The materials used are one glass, 6½ inches by 8½ inches, free from flaws and concave in slaps; a small amount of turpentine as phalitum, a pint of spirits of turpentine, a small hairbrush, a box in which to case the mirror, and a half a yard of new cloth. The glass is placed in a clean, light and airy room, the materials washed perfectly clean; then the thush and the glass are wiped over with turpeatine. Afterward the back of the glass is noested smoothly with a this varish of the asphaltum and heft to dry, the operation being repeated for the two following days. As the end of that time the fairror is magnetized by placing the hands above it and slowly waving these to and fro, so that the animal magnetic force may be well absorbed by the asphaltum. The asphaltum is the back nown masterial for absorpting of the master of the burnan body, and this is the master of the burnan body, and this is the season for its use. The test should be rasie also in a clean, arry chamber when alone and when the mind is composed, and by parserverance the inquirer is sure to be rewarded—so say the books on magic.—

A French naturalist says that if the world were to become birdless man could not inhabit it after nine years' time. In spite of all the sprays and poisons that could be manufactured for the destruction of insects the bugs and slugs would simply est up orchards and crops

DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION

And Sick Women Well

And Sick Women Well.

For over thirty years this celebrated remedy has been making women's lives happier-nealther-mater.

Many thousands of women have testified to its wonderful effect.

It is the one medicine that can be depended upon when there is any derangement of the distinctly feminine organism. It purifies, heals, soothes, builds up. It is needed when backaches make life miserable—when a sickening, dragging, bearing-down feeling makes work a weary agony and play impossible—when disagreeable drains give proof of burning in-mammation—when sick headache, servessirability, loss of energy and appetite are the reminder of unhealthful irregularity or painful periods.

"I had female trouble for eight years," writes Mrx. L. J. Dennis, of 8st Rask College Street, Jacksonville, Ill. "I was so bad I would lie from day to day and long for death to come and relieve my suffering. I had internal inflammation, a disagreeable drain, bearing-down pains in the lower part of my bowels, and such distress every mouth, but now I never have a pain—do all my own work and am a strong and healthy woman. Thanks to your medicine. In ever forget to recommend it to all suffering women. I consider myself a living testimonia of the benefits of your 'Favorite Prescription."

The summer arbod continues on its paceful way. The mornings are spent in lectures during which the members of the cloth become boys again and sit at the ink stained deaks, taking notes for all they are worth, while the profession for the time being, gives instruction from the deak. The afternoises are spent in much less scholastic fashion, or shall we say in equally scholastic fashion, for do not the after-said "horse" pheeve them in true school soly fashion, swimming, bleyeling, fishing and other forms of recreation? Every evening there is a solemn service in the chapel where the hearty singing and responding of some many men is ment inspiring. There is also a service in the morning chapel lectures of a less formal sort are given and to most of these the public are admitted; then, till eleven o'clock the brethers amuse themselves with college scags in the grading groom. Ottawa, July 18-In the West Huron lection enquiry this morning befor the House Elections and Privileges Com mittee, William Stanly, of Holnesville wore that he saw the ballots counted Before the rolling there were 157, the manifest was 150, and the seven con requently was burned at witness' re-

James McWhinney, of Colhorne worn, said ha voted at the election a o. 4 poll. The question put by, Borden, how he marked his ballot, was objected to by Dr. Russell at this stage of the proceedings. It was not in the public interest that the secrecy of the ballot should be unnecessarily invaded Without doing so they might be able the other as to whether there were in regularities or not, or at least they regularities or not, or at least they should try. If they proceed to ask every voter how he voted, some of them might later turns out to have voted illianally. First let them find out from each voter reservitely whether he was duly qualified, and proceed with regularity, step by step. Judge Strong had decided it to be a matter of public rolley that a witness should not be oblined to state in an election case how he had voted.

Mr. Powell raid he was sorry Mr Russell did not mean to apply the prac-tica in a legal case to an enquiry be-fore a rarilmentary committee. Mr. Russell, at rome length. contend-ed he did.

Mr. Borden had examined a number of the Manttoba cases and found wit-ness after witness was asked the direct out-ston how he voted. He read from the record showing it.

Sorrey Did Not Apply.

Each witness in this West Huron ears had already made a declartion how he voted, so the argument of secrety of ballot did not apply. There is also a matter of public policy affecting the purity of a returning officer, and this is a main question at issue, and when he had put the case before the House he did so distinctly on the around of these declarations, in which the decoments atted they had voted for the Conservative candidate, McLasa. Why was this question not raised in the House? He proposed to proceed with the case before the committee on the lines stated before the House in his own way.

Mr. Britton objected exhaustively to Mr. Borden's proposed mode of procedure. Mr. Russell read Judge Strong's remarks in the Haldimand election case broady referred to.

Hon John Haggart asked whether this was a judgment.

Mr. Russell was not prepared to asy, but the indress dictum was distinctly. Secreey Did Not Apply.

Hon John Hargart asked whether this was a judgment.

Mr. Russell was not prepared to say, but the judge's dictum was distinctly against the secrety of the ballot, even with the convent of the witness.

Mr. Be'court, Liberal, considered the only cour e was to investigate the denuty returning officers. The quest on how the witness wo'ed was irrelevant. A thousand reasons might be given for the discrevancy in the ballot. Theremith have been a hole in the ballot box, for instance. Laughter!

THE FE THE "ROTALISTS"

Wrippet up in the Droyfus case and very intim 'e'y connected with all its details, is . royalist conspiracy which has for its object the overturning of the French rejublic. It is impossible to entertain a very high feeling of espect for a republic which is practicelly overshadowed by the ermy and which, in the nature of things, depende largely on the army for its existence. It would be unjust, of course, to conme the republic or to deride it on this account. It only partially represents the aspirations of the French people. Their environment is such people. Their environment is such that they commot, carry out the ideas of such men as Lafayette and Thiera.

The army, as matters stand, is a nec amery evil. It is made necessary by the conditions which surround France. the conditions which surround France. The officers of this same army are responsible for the unspeakable orimes respectively against Dreyfus. That story, in a nutabell, is that some of the officers high in communit were furn shing Esterbusy with information which he sold to foreign military standard for round sums. This money was given profit to all opnorance, but consistence was round sum. This money can it may profit to all concerned, but the commerce in secret information reached a point where the discovery pt. its axistence was made by one of the officers of the general staff, Colonel Pioquart.

IT MIGHT HAVE BROUGHT ABOUT AN INTERNATIONAL ROW.

The Victim Was the Samoan King Malleton and the Victor an American Navat Officer - The Jack Pot That Caused the Trouble.

"There was a stiff game of poker played by a paymanter in the navy with King Malieton several years ago. I guess this Malleton several years ago. I guess this was about the healthiest game ever in dulged in by a foreigner. Malieton had heard of the great games played by Kai akaua, king of Hawaii, and the Samoan thought he'd like to take a little brush on this line: Well, Malieton's opportunity to test bis belief came one day when an American man-of-war—sever mind which one—salied info the harbor at Apis. His determination to take the thirty-second degree in the mysteries of the great American game was satisfed to the full est extent. Among the officers aboard the man-of-war were a paymaster, a lieutenant and an asistant engineer, who had burned the midnight lamp studying poker at Annapolis and had prosecuted the study in season and out of season ever since they left that place. In a word, they were all three just about as smooth poker players as you could find in a month's travel.

"There was a trader among the white residents of Apia who was known to come to the front with a pretty stiff game, and Malietoa soon arranged through him a game with the officers. By invitation and appointment the king and his friends met the officers in the private parlors of a European, and before the svening was half gone Malietoa requested that the limit, a small one, be taken off. The old codger bad won several pretty fair jack pots and felt his importance and ability to clean up the whole crowd. Off the limit came, and for several hours Malietoa had almost pnenomenal luck, whining jack pot after jack pot. The more he won the more reckless be became, and when something was said about closing down he entered a large and emphatic protest. The game proseeded, and the healthiest jack pot of the night was on the table.

"Several hands had been dealt around when any one having expressed his was about the healthiest game ever in afternoon, will not be auffered to stand unanswered before the Imperial authorities. It cannot to a petition of Parliament, bust must go go record as the demand of one section of Parliament alcae. A proposed joint patition of Commons and Senate carried by the Senate, and if to avoid this it should be at the eleventh hour decided to make Commons outright against the senate, the first question asked on the other side of the Atlantic by the legal advisers of the Crown would be.—"Was the Senate comulted, and, if so, what action did it taken" the land the scheme go so far as to appear formidable enough to call for such a settion the Senate might with as much propriety adopt an address to her Ma exty against an emendment of the Fritish North America Act as the House in favor of it, and the accompanying reports of debates would be of such a character as to render it impossible for the Imperial authorities to interfere. There is a growing feeling on the Senate side that if an amendment of the Senate is wanted at all it is for the creation of a recond chamber in the provinces of Omendment of the Senate is wanted at all it is for the creation of a recond chamber in the provinces of Omendment of the Senate is wanted at all it is for the creation of a recond chamber in the provinces of Omendment of the Senate is wanted at all its is for the creation of a recond chamber in the provinces of Omendment of the Senate is wanted at all its is for the creation of a recond chamber in the provinces of Omendment of the Senate is wanted at all its is for the creation of a recond chamber in the provinces of Omendment of the Senate is a large and emphatic protest. In egame proceeded, and the healthiest jack pot of the night was on the table.

"Several hands had been dealt around without any one having expressed his ability to open the pot, when the king, with a look of surprise and a amile of pleasurs and triumph combined, announced that he would open it $20 worth. Every player staid. The paymaster drew three cards, the lieutenant the same number, the assistant engineer took two and the trader one. Maileton showed his blood by standing out and putting $10 more into the pot. The paymaster saw this and raised him $25, while the others staid. Then the king raised again, and the paymaster threw in $25 more. It was becoming too interesting for the other players, and they dropped out. After the king's last raise the paymaster besitated a moment, put his cigar to one side and showed $50 to the middle of the mahog-any.

a moment, put his cigar to one side and aboved $50 to the middle of the mahogany.

"The king put up the equivalent in Chilean silver dollars, the cargency of the islands, and, drawing a small each from his postest, emptied its contents before him and excitedly placed in the pot the funds of the royal treasury of Samons, amounting to $70 in silver. The paymaster's face grew serious, and he looked at his royal oppunent in a hesitating, pussed cort of way. Could this be a Samons Ah bin he had run against? Had this kingly copper colored son of a gun learned the art of poker playing from visiting traders years before and had he been playing possum all the evening? Having six or seven months' pay in his inside pocket, the paymaster decided to chance sone of it in finding out. "After a few moments of undecision he drew $579 in gold and silver from his pocket and added it to the pot, which now covered the table. Malletos gave a gasp and called for a glass of kava to steady his nerves. This he gulped down and announced that he was out of funda, requesting at the same time that the paymaster take his word for $500, but there was nary a take, the paymaster only smilling and looking firedly at the pot.

He was visited on Sunday by Mon-signour Bruches, who went out again this morning and administered the last accraments of the Church. Sir Wilfrid Laurier came down from Ottawa this morning on the Canada Atlantic train to my farewell to his old friend and colleague and refarmed to the capital by a special train. master take his word for $500, but there was nary a take, the paymaster only smiling and looking fixedly at the pot. Then the excited monarch offered to put up the island of Manono, one of the fixest in the Samoan group, against the $500. To this the paymaster consented, and a transfer deed of the property, duly signed, attested by the trader, who was a notary public, and witnessed by the other two officers, was put in the pot. Then the hing called the paymaster, who slowly laid down four aces and a five spot. luck just now. They have received notife through a legal firm of the death in Low Angeles, Oal., of Ed-ward N. and the other half to McDonald's hairs, McDonald's only beir was a brother, the late John McDonald of this town, whose widow and four sons live here.

A copy of the will is expected in a few days. Four of the late John McDonald's sons are mentioned in the will, the first being Wm. McDonald groups, of this town. The widow Mc-Irenald, of Lon Angeles, is an aged lady.

Then the ling called the paymanter, slowly laid down four aces and a five spot.

"With a look of horror and a Samoan wail of despair, his majesty exposed to view three kings, an eight apot and a deuce. Then he fell off his chair in a faint, the excitement having been too much for his nerves. Kava in copious quantities brought him around sufficiently to enable his removel to his own castle. The paymanter shoveled his money into a sack and placed it in the trader's iron anfe, but the deed for the island he carefully placed in his pocket.

"Next morning the details of the big poker game were known to nearly every inhabitant of the place, and the German and English consuls sent official communications to the American consul protesting in most emphatic terms against the action of the king in disposing of the island of Manono to ma_Aperican or to any one else, and warning the consult that unless the paymanter returned the deed for the island to the king at once they would direct the attention of their respective governments to the case.

"Here was a pretty state of affairs. The officer had, he doubt, won the island fairly, and the king's action was binding, but in the tension in which Samoan affairs were at that time the German and English governments would only too willingly have taken advantage of the circumstances as an accuse for laternational complications, ending altimately in a disastrous way to American interests.

"The facts were fully explained to the mately in a disastrons way to American interests.

"The facts were fully explained to the paymaster, and on the promise of Malicuo-that he would give the offier a number of fine mats and other Samoan articles of value the deed was returned to the king and destroyed. By mutual consent of the consula and others interested the affair was hushed up in every way and was thus allowed to die out. Malicuos took an eath that he would never again play polter."

"Yes, sir," rendrited the amiable man,

New York, July 17 .- About thirds of the care on all the lines of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, except the Names system, are running this morning.

Each car was policed by one more officers as it was sent out, with the exception of the Patemm avenue cars, which ran mearly on schedule time without any protection from the police. Only a few of the men on this road belong to the Union. The gates, Prondway, Myrtle, Third, Ralph, Nostrand, Tompkins, and Flat Bush avenue care are running on fairly good time, and the heavy morning passenger traffic was handled with very little congestion at any point.

The Two Sides.

President Rossiter, of the Rapid Transit Company, said this morning that 50 of the men who went out yesterday reported for work this morning

At the strikers' headquarters in Brioklyn, the men asserted that very irregularly. They ctaim six re-cruits this morning from among the men who remained at work yester-men who remained at work yester-day.

The company's officers are confident that they will be able to run the full complement of cars on the regular enhedule time withins 24 hours, and they aver that the strike will be over by midnight.

The Men Confident.

The Mess Confident.

Eharles W. McKenzie, chairman of the committee in charge of the strikers, and that the men were holding their own and would win. He said that every union man on the company's roads and all of the men on the namen lines were out, and that during all of lact night alevated road amployed were being brought into the union. He said that the "L" men are working at this express wish of the strikers on an soft to inconvenience the public. "

McKenzie is confident of success and and that a general tie up of the cars in Procklys would take place if the traction company failed to accode to the demands of the strikers.

Traffic Slow and Difficult.
On the Marcy, Fifth avenue and Seventh avenue roads and the Douglas and Bergent street lines, the condition of affairs was most serious. Four policemen guarded each car. but there was little headway made out say of these roads.

Several cases of trouble on these lines were reported at police head-quarters, but no serious outbreak had occurred.

Work of Rioters.

At 18th street and Fifth avenue large atoes were placed on the track and the police, motormes and conductors had a hard time clearing the way to let two care come along to the city. Four hundred &persons had congregated at this point and they houted the police and employee while they were at work. Offers of something like $300 or $489 travel pay to re-enlist were scored. Not even a commission would induce one out of 100 men among the volunteers to remain there. The chance to re-enlist was extended to the Kansas, Nelvasia, Idaho, First California, and, I think, the South Jakota and Minnassta regiments. Practically not a mast accepted the offer. I The lady brought the mirror with her on her return to town, and at her death it came into the possession of Mr. Lowdermitk. From him it was bought by a gentleman who takes great interest in such matters, but who would not like the fact of the existence of the mirror in his bouse to be known, as it would attract thousands of seekers after the curious. After parting outless large upon for the sleast the paying quite a large sum for the glass the mirror was brought home and put to the lent to mirror is oval in shape, about a foot long and is surrounded by a wooden frame two inches in width and painted a dark green. The back of the glass is coated with asphaltum and then covered with dark linen, so that the whole has the appearance of a lustrous opal. The method of use is by sitting with the mirror in one's lap and holding the glass so that there is no reflection of other objects shin ing on the surface of the glass. If the test is a success, there will appear in about a quarter of an hour a thin, cloudy mist which will slowly float over the surface, and then the images of future events will be mirrored in the seemingly fathomiess depth of the dark glass.

The gentleman who owns the mirror has never been himself successful in seeing anything, but a friend of his, a prominent judge and a thirty-third degree Mason, had a remarkable experience. He placed the mirror in his lap, and, after hour a mits floated over the sur

Mason, had a remarkable experience. He placed the mirror in his lap, and, after half an hour, a mist floated over the surface, then he saw reflected in the glass a picture of a coffin, within which was the still, white face of a dead man. At first glanes the features seemed those of the gazer, but on looking closely it was seen that they represented exactly the brother of the gentleman—a man then in perfect health. In a second the picture shifted and another face—that of a friend—appeared within the sidee of the coffin. The gentleman is two weeks afterward lost his brother, and in a short while his friend, whose face he had also seen, passed to another world.

A son of the owner was one evening looking into the mirror, when he my within a picture of a house in flames. There were the servants leaping from the purches, then returning to drag out the furniture. The glare shone around on a yard which the gaser recognized as that of his own farmhouse down the Potomac By the mail two days afterward he reserved from his housekeeper an account of a fire which had destroyed his home, and the description tallled exactly with the picture seen in the mirror.

Another man, a gentleman employed in the bureau of ethnology and well known as a mientist and linguist, has also seen many pictures in the mirror—pictures of events in his life which were afterward realized to the letter.

realized to the letter

By a student of occultism the following directions were given in a treatise on that autheot, which dealt with the methods employed in making such mirrors. The metarlat used are one glass, 6% inches by 8% inches, free from flaws and concave in alupe: a small amount of turpentine as small amount of turpentine, a small hairbrush, a box in which to case the mirror, and a half a yard of new cloth. The glass is placed in a clean, light and alry room, the materials washed perfectly clean, then the brush and the glass are wiped over with turpentine. Afterward the back of the glass is coated smoothly with a thin varnish of the applaitum and left to dry, the operation being repeated for the two following days. At the end of that time the mirror is magnetized by placing the hands above it and slowly waving them to and fro, so that the animal magnetic force may be well absorbed by the asphalitum. The asphalium is the best known material for absorption of the aure of the human body, and this is the reason for its see. The test should be made and when the mind is composed, and by perseverance the inquirer is sure to be rewarded—so say the books on magic.—Washington Post

LYNCHING IN THE SOUTH.

A Young White Woman Publicly Befends the Colored People.

Boston, Mass., July 17.—Mins Lillies Clayton Jewett, a young white woman, addressed a meeting of colored people in St. Paul's Haptist church last avaning on "Lymbing in the South," and created a summtion by offering to go to Charleston, S.C., and bring to Boston the family of the murdered postmaster, H. M. Bahar, who was tyached some time ago, for the purpose of creating asstiment in the North in favor of the Southern negro. The church was packed to the doors and all the principal polored organizations of the city were present. Scaton, Mass., July 17 .- Miss Lillians tions of the city were present.

There was great enthusiasm, and in the speeches that followed the young woman was referred to as the new Harriet Feecher Stowe, as the common who had been sent in answer to the gayers of the colored race and eulogized as the first white woman who had come out publicly as the defender of the colored people of the South who is to teing made victims of Judge Lyuch. After the meeting almost half of those in the church went to the front to meet her and to thank her and it is a long time, since there, has been such a demonstration among the colored people of Bostom.

Mr W. A. Wee e. of Lindmy, recent ly took a trip to Middant to buy horses and although he was able to find a carload of suitable animals it was with difficulty that he did so. Some time and the veterinary surgeon connected with "B" Battery, Kingston, went through many countles of this province in the searchy for good heavy howes for use for milliary purposes, and he was untile to province a sufficient number of sultable animals. The cause is said to be due to the fact that a few years ago whose electric street cars cause into use, there was an over supply of horses, and farmers have not paid enough attention to the raising of horses for a time when more would be needed, and consequently they are not able to furnish good animals mow that they are required. It is said that several farmers have devoted too much attention to raising race horses, and while they find that their efforts in this regard have generally failed, as only an occasional horse is of much up for such purposes, they have neglected wint is more important, the raising of good, heavy, animals. ago the veterinary surgeon connected

The building of automobiles for the Canadian market will some day be an capture a large part of lt. There are is said, 600 builders of motor vehicles in France, 110 in England, 80 in Germany and probably 100 in United States. The New York Evening Post is responsible for the statement that companies representing an aggregate capital of $163,000,000 have aggregate capital of $163,000,000 have been formed in the United States for the construction of automobiles, and that the sum actually innected is not less than ten million dollars. Mr. Edwin I, Rice, President of the Electric Vehicle Company of New York, wild the other day that he had nlack orders for automobiles amounting to $8.000,000. The cycler is for 4,200 new schiclest. I have, during the past few weeks, been in various toward and villages in this and neighboring countles, and I have beard a great deal of talk about the need of a railroad being constructed to connect those districts with a railroad towar, so that the rich mineral resources could reach the world's markets. There is far mord agitation about this matter in other release than there is here, although Peterborough is the natural terminiss of such a trillway. The question is now herond all doubt that north Peterborough is almost infinite in its mineral resources, and the only thing to settle it when such a railroad as is proposed is undertaken, and what towar will by connected by the railway with north Peterborouzh. The Elections Committee of the House Proceed With Their Inquiry

IN THE WEST HURON CASE

One of Mr. Forden's Questions Objected to by Dr. Russe I.

Ottawa, July 18 .- la the West Huron alection enquiry this morning befor the House Elections and Privileges Com-mittee, William Stanly, of Helmswille, ecrutimes for roll No. 5. Goderich, aware that he saw the ballets counted. Before the rolling there were 157, the manifest was 150, and the seven consequently was burned at witness' re-

James McWhinney, of Colborne, sworn, said he voted at the election at No. 4 poll. The question put by Mr. Borden, how he marked his ballot, was objected to by fir. Russell at this stage of the proceed age. It was not in the public interest that the secrecy of the ballot should be unnecessarily invaded. Without doing so they might be able to ratisfy the committee one way or the other as to whether there were irregularities or not, or at least they should try. If they proceed to ask every voter how he voted, some of them might later turn out to have voted illearnly. First let them find out from each voter secarately whether he was duly qualified, and proceed with regu-larity, stee by step. Judge Strong had decided it to be a matter of public to ley that a witness should not be obliged to state in an election case how

Mr. Powell said he was sorry Mr. Russell did not mean to apply the practice in a 'egal cars to an enquiry before a par mentary committee. Mr. Russ'l, at some length, contendad he did. Mr. Borden had examined a number of the Manttoba cases and found wit-ness after witness was asked the direct question how he voted. He read from the record showing it.

Secreey Did Not Apply

Each witness in this West Huron case had already made a declaration how he voted, so the argument of series y o' ballot did not apply. There is also a matter of public policy afacting the purity of a returning officer, and this is a main question at issue, and when he had put the case before ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Mr. Russell was not prepared to any, but the judge's diotum was distinctly against the socrepy of the ballot, even with the consent of the witness.

Mr. Helcourt, Liberal, considered the only cour. e was to investigate the deputy returning efflorm. The question how the witness voted, was irrelevant. A thousand reasons might be given for the discremancy in the ballot. There might have been a hole in the ballot box. for instance. Laughbar.

DENSEST FOREST ON EARTH.

The habitat of the redwood is peculi w.

at Present Rate of Cutting.

The habitat of the redwood is peculist. It is found only in a narrow strip, closely hugging the Pacific coast, stretching from the southern boundary of Oregon or just across the boundary—for there are perhaps 1,000 acres of redwood in Oregon—southward through northern California, nearly to the bay of San Francisco.

The closest and finest growth is in Humbold county, near the northern end. That portion in Mendosino and Sonoma counties is not as heavy or continuous, nor are the trees as valuable for lumber, as they branch lower down. The wood is, however, of alower growth, is denser and harder and perhaps more durable. The best iumber and the heaviest growth are everywhere in the valleys and on the flats. On the hillaides the trees are smaller and not so close. Nowhere is there any young growth. The youngest trees, which are found only in the northern portion of the best, are several hundred years of age.

This is probably the denset forest on earth, as measured by the amount of timber per acre suitable for the amount of timber per acre suitable for the amount of testings, but it is the great number of trees, the closeness of their stand. In a redwood forest the sun never shines—it is always twilight. You are, as it were, under the roof of a vast temple, a roof of foliage, supported by great tree columns.

The area of the redwood belt has been eastfully mapped and is, as nearly as can be estimated, 8,000 square miles, or 1,980,000 acres. The stand of timber on this area is not so easy to accertain, but may be computed thus:

	Foot.
Del Necte county	4,000,000,000
Eumboldt county	42,000,000,000
Mandocine county	20, 160,000,000
Senome county, my	1,000,000,000
	T 400 000 000
Total	19' 100' 000' 00

The annual cut by the mills is 850,000, 000 feet. At the present rate of cutting, therefore, the supply will last 800 years. In the Mendocino county there is nearly nine times as much timber on an acre as in the southern pineries. In Humbolds county, upon 98,448 acres, the average stand is 24,000 feet per acre, nearly 17 times as great as in the southern states.

There is one cause of destruction from which this tree is entirely exempt; that is fire. Containing no pitch, but, on the other hand, a large amount of water, it will not burn when green. No fire can run in a redwood forest. It is the only one of our coniferous lumber trees which is thus exempt.

to thus exempt.

Redwood is in almost universal use on Redwood is in almost universal use on the California coast. In the construction of houses little other timber is used, even as far south as Los Angeles and San Diego. It is exported as far south as Valparaino and westward to Japan and Australia. Indeed, considering its cheapness, $14 per 1,000 feet in Eureka for the best, it seems strange that it has not found its way in quantity to the Atlantic coast. Certain it is that before many years condwood will supplant the now vanishing white pine in easern markets.—National Geographic Magazine

Carlyle and the Checker Player.

James Wyllle, the "Herd Laddie," on a very wet and tempestuous day, many years ago, turned into a little roadside inn near Lochmaben. Soon afterward he was joined by a couple of strangers, the younger of whom, a burly farmer, began to boast about his proficiency on the "dambrod," as the draught board is called in Scotland. He was at once challenged by the Herd Laddie to play and consented, while the game was attentively watched by the third man, a person of rugged as-Carlyle and the Checker Player. by the third man, a person of rugged aspect. Time after time Wyllie swept the board, while the vanquished farmer fumed, swore and fairly lost his temper.

Suddenly the third party broke silence with the following warning to his companion:

"Stop, stop! Leave off, man! Can's you see that you are either playing with satan himself or the Herd Ladde?"

Wyllie smillingly acknowledged his identity. A jorum of punch was ordered, and the trio had an amicable chat, although the farmer said no more about his prowess with the checkers. But at the first opportunity he took Wyflie aside and whispered:
"That child's a relation of mine and as big a man as you are in some things. Maybe you've heard of him up in London. That's Thomas Carlyle?"

Redwood Enough to Last 200 Years It Was All the Same to the Man Who

Individuality is lost sight of in the cities. It is swallowed up, as it were, in the mob. In a village it stands out with surprising distinctness. The odd characters of the place are known to everybody, and their queer sayings and doings are told from mouth to mouth.

In acertain little town not a great ways from Cleveland there are probably as many of these psculiar people as any place of its size can beast. One of them is an ancient man who longs for the good old times that followed the war and is a firm believer in the criminal weakness of the present financial system. He is a man of considerable property, but nevertheless is conomical to an extreme degree. In fact, he was never known to spend a penny that didn't go for some actual necessity.

There is another character in the town who keeps the village general store. He is a good hearted fellow, who, after a long course of bachelorhoud, finally married. In this little town it is the custom for the happy bridegroons to set up the cigars for all the congratulating males who drop in to wish him joy. So the bridegroom in this instance had a box on the counter, and most of his patrons were regaled from it.

Uncle Jim looked as the box and looked as the storekeeper.

"What's this for?" be asked.

The storekeeper slightly blushed.
"Been gettin married."

"Who? You?"

"Yep. Me."

"An you're standin treat, eh?"

"Yep," said the storekeeper.

The old man picked up a cigar.

"How much did these seegars cost ye.

Ab?" be inquired.

"Oh," replied the storekeeper, "they cost me 'bout 4 cents They're nickel cigars."

The old man dropped the eight back in the box. Then his gaze wandered around

HE VOTED FOR STONE.

And For One of the Host Remarkable Reasons on Record.

Theodore Bolton of Henry county tells this good story "I was a strong Stone man," said Bolton, "when the ex-governor was a candidate for governor. One day while the campaign was at its hottest a Democrat from an outlying township came to see me. He called me out from my store and took me into a back alley. I thought be wanted to horrow $5 or ask me to go on his note Finally, when he got to a selected place, away from the got to be selected place, away from the got to a selected place and the selected place a pipe and said:

Campelguing With a Fiddle.

When a young man, the late ex-Governor Ogleeby worked in the old Macon tween. There he met the lawyers riding the circuit and formed the acquaintance of Judge Robbins of Springfield, with whom he studied law two years. Returning to Decatur, he began practicing in a town of 400 inhabitants. He soon became popular as a speaker. On one occasion he was making a Whig speech on one side of the equare, while a Democrat was making an opposition speach on the other side. The Democrat was fast getting the crowd when Mr. Ogleeby, who was an old fashioned fiddler and played as well as he spoke, borrowed a fiddle from a man in the crowd and hegan to play. That broke up the opposition meeting, and the Democrat, left without an audience, came over and joined the crowd that was dancing to Ogleeby's music. Campuigning With a Fiddle.

The exercises were opened in the manner followed at regular S.A. services. Adj. Albanhead was in charge. During prayer the "teas virgins" very beautifully sing, kneeding, several Salvation hymns.

Capt. Carter, of Campbellford, imperinlended the singing of the ten young girls, who readered several hymns is an exquisite manner. The ages of the virgins tanged from about ten to thirteen years. Little Christins Miller sing a solo very sweetly, a recitation with pleasing effect. Mahal Brooks sing "Do not turn me from your door" very sweetly. The centre muriter of girls sing "Jesus is Mighty to Save." Millie Bacon leading. Capt. Burchall then sing a song of his own composition. It was entitled "I used to sing the Devil's songs." The ten virgins in the meantime had left the platform and at the conclussion of the Captain's song they returned, five bearing lighted lamps, and the other carrying lamps without oil. They recited the New Testament perable of the "tes virgins," after which the five "wise virgins," sang "Yes, we are ready," and then followed a hymn from the other five. This hymn was a request for oil from the others, who replied in song that they had no oil to spare. Daptain French then sang "Behold, the Bridegrom Cometh." The five "foolish virgins" withdrew from the platform singing that they were going to meet the Master. The "foolish virgins" then came in with lighted lamps, singing that they were ready for the welding. Capt. question in the House of Commons to-day, regarding the relations between Great Britain and the Sou h African Republic, Mr. Chamberlain said that the modifications made in the franchuse law of the Tranvani lead the Government to hope that the new law may prove the basis of a settlement upon the laws laid down by Sir Alfred Milner.

The Government, however, Mr. Chamberlain added, observed that the Volksraad has still retained a number of conditions that might be incepted to as to take with one han what was given by the other. He would also be easy by subsequent legislation to alter the whole charse er of the concession: but, Mr. Chamberlain added, the Government feels assured that President Kruger, having scentled the principle for which the British Government has contended, is well prepared to reconsider any desirably hinder the full accomplishment of the object in view, and that he will not allow it to be nillified or reduced in value by subsequent alterations of the law or any act of the administration.

Havana, July 18.—The pronuncia mento recently issued in the city of Matanzas signed "Betancourt" and calling upon Cubans to prepare to hurl country the "crafty eagle" as they had removed the "haughty and hungry Spanish lion" is now believed by many to have been the production of the civil governor of Matagass. The casons for this view are not very conviscing, but Betancourt has not tively denied the authorship and it is notorious that he has expressed almost identical sentuments in the Havans cases on different occasions before American officers. He once used language closely resembling that of the "proclamation" in the presence of an (American co.one). Both officers believe it quite probable that he wro, e the appeal. If not its author, then, in their judgment, he was cognizant of it and agreed to the use of his name.

Many Cuban officers of high rank are also satisfied that Betancour, was in ecme way intimately related to the pubtication and circulation of the address to the people of Managens General Wilson, military governor of the Matungs-Santa department, will double less ask the civil governor for an explanation in case there is no denis

Several Well Known Persons Slave Seen Portentons Pictures Reflected In Its Oval Surface, Although It Will Not Work For All.

In its Oval Surface, Although it Will Not Work For Alt.

While all of us have heard in early childhood of the tales of magical mirrors, in which impossible heroes saw impossible
heroines in danger, from which said heroes
proceeded to rescue the fair maidens, yet
such things have been relegated by most of us to the region of the imagination. We regard such things as being outside of the real world of today and belonging to the real world of today and belonging to the region of myth and fable. Yet, in spite of our procade mineteenth contury, it is nevertheless a fact that a Washington gentileman is the possessor of an article which might be classed as appropriately belonging to the time of Aladdin and the wonderful lamp.

This strange acquisition is a mirror
which came from India, and in which one can see the events which the future will bring forth. That such is its power is abtexted by souse of the best known gentimen of the city, who, for obvious reasons, do not wish their manse to be mentioned.
This mirror came into the possession first of a Washington lady who was travcling in India, and, being interested in the religion of the country, took a trip to the famous temple of Alora, which lies in a rocky side of the foothilles of the Himaleya socustains. This temple is now but a ruin of jagged socks, jutting out harshy into the soft greensward that rolls smoothly down into the valley below. Above tower the wast mountains with their gittering caps of snow looking down on the pasceful tropital scene where for ages the followers of Brahman have performed their ascred rites.

The ruins of the temple stand open to the woether, and its ancient glory, which shone in such aplendor before the English came to India, is now diminiahed. But a small band of Brahman monks still kept the mcred secrets and ocremonics aliva.
Few Europeans ever penetrate this section of the mountains, but the Washington lady mounted and visited the monnactery.
While there she managed to secure possession of one of the of the s monks and reputed to possess wonderful properties.

The lady brought the mirror with her on her return to town, and at her death it came into the possession of Mr. Lowdermilk. From him it was bought by a gentleman who takes great interest in such matters, but who would not like the fact of the existence of the mirror in his house to be known, as it would attract thousands of seekers after the ourious. After paying quite a large sum for the glass the paying quite a large sum for the glass the mirror was brought home and put to the paying quite a large sum for the glass the mirror was brought home and put to the steat.

The mirror is eval in shape, about a foot long and is surrounded by a wooden frame two inches in width and painted a dark green. The back of the glass is coased with asphaltum and then covered with dark linen, so that the whole has the appearance of a lustrous opal. The method of use is by sitting with the mirror in one's lap and holding the glass so that there is no reflection of other objects shining on the surface of the glass. If the test is a success, there will appear in about a quarter of an hour a thin, cloudy mist which will slowly float over the surface, and then the images of future events will be mirrored in the seemingly fathomiess depth of the dark glass.

The gentleman who owns the mirror has never been himself successful in seeing anything, but a friend of his, a prominent judge and a thirty-third degree Masson, had a remarkable experience. He placed the mirror in his lap, and, after half an bour, a mist floated over the surface, then he saw reflected in the glass a picture of a contin, within which was the still, white face of a dead man. At first glance the features seemed those of the gazier, but on looking closely it was seen that they represented exactly the brother of the gentleman—a man then in perfect health. In a second the picture shifted, and another face—that of a friend—appeared within the sides of the comm. The gentleman in two weeks afterward loot his brother, and in a short while his friend, whose face he had also seen, passed to another world.

A son of the owner was one evening looking into the mirror, when he aw within a picture of a house in flames. There were the servante lapting from the porobes, then returning to denge out the furniture. The glass sheep and a secunt of a fire which had destroyed his home, and

By the mail two days afterward he re-ested from his historyed his bone, and the description malled exactly with the picture sies in the mirror.

Another man, a gentleman employed in the bureau of ethnology and well known as a scientist and linguist, has also seen many pictures in the mirror—pictures of events in his life which were afterward realized to the letter.

The Prevalence of Appendictum.

Burgeons admit that 75 per cent of all cause of appendictife will recover without operation, but claim that 95 per cent could be saved by operating promptly on every case as soon as discovered. This discloses a debate of great significance, for physicians are disincilized to turn all cases to the surgeon. More has estimated that there are 800,000 new cases of appendicting discovered cook year in the United States. If this is true and the surgeons are right, 40,000 of them would be rethined; morified under medical treatment. But physicians assert (and I wish I knew whether truly or not) that autopaise upon subject that have died from other discases than appendictie show old inflammatory procases about the appendix in one-third of the cases, just as old tubersuleus cloatrions are found in the lungs where tuberculosts has never been suspected. In other words, one-third of all coming to the autopay table and by inference a large proportion of the population have got well spontaneously from an unsuspected trouble which would have subjected them to a life endangering operation had they fallen into the hands of a surgeon of sufficient skill to make the diagnosis in doubtful cases, physicians record that these are the cases in which diagnosis would better net be made. Obviously the subject has not crystallized and is in process of evolution, but even the laity clamer for an operation when there is recognized tumor and poisoning from pus absorption.

A CLEVER RUSE

The Auctioneer Was, Quick Witted and Pinnily Made a Sale.

An auctioneer on East Washington street—one of those redoubtable individuals commonly termed "slick"—was the cause of a farcical scene recently that would have done credit to a burlesque show. He had been talking industriously for a long time to a crowd of interested but enthusiastic listeners.

The affable auctioneer conscientiously went through his repertory from beginning to end, but somehow the crowd did not "warm up to him—to quote his own ning to end, but somehow the crowd did not "warm up to him-to quote his own language. Finally, with a dark look that bordered on despuir, he grabbed up a well known pasteboard hatbox contain-ing about 50 spools of silk thread of dif-ferent colors. With the grace of a con-jurer he extracted five of the spools, and, arraying them in a tempting semicircle on the counter, announced that they were "to go at any prices".

But the addience, while admitting with node of approval that they were good note of approval that they were good spools of thread, displayed no marked inclination to become excited over them. Not a bid was offered.

"I'll sell 'em for 10 cents," suggested

"I'll sell 'em for 10 cents," suggested the auctioneer timidity. It was plain from the tone of his voice that he was losing faith in himself and in ill the world. There were no takers. The man of the red flag added three more spools to the semicircle. "All for 10 cents," he declared. But thread stock was far below par. The auctioneer caught up all the spools from the counter and flung them into the box with an impressive gesture. The light of inspiration flashed from his eyes.

"The whole blamed box for 10 cents?" he cried.

"The whole blamed box for 10 cents?"
he cried.

"I'll take it," was the prompt response, and a little man in a washed out overcost and wearer of red chin whiskers stepped out from the crowd with a dirty 10 cent piece in his upraised hand. The auctioneer clutched the money feverishly, and, turning the box upside down as that all the spools dropped into a basket on the counter, he handed the worthless piece of ancient pasteboard to the anxious customer. A roar of hisrious laughter rose from the crowd that was heard throughout that neighborhood.

"I don't want your blamed old box!" walled the unfortunate purchaser.

"You said you'd take it," replied the auctioneer. "I'll leave it to the crowd—didn't he?"

"I bought the spools!"

"No, you didn't! You bought the box!

"Yes!" came the answer again, stronger than ever. The red whishered manstalked indignantly from the place with the box under his arm.

"An impending explosion it was. Two years ago I was the most successful well shooter in America. I could make the oil loosen up where others had failed. The secret lay in the explosives I employed. I made them myself and had the business down fine. At that time I went to New York to figure on a big blasting contract that would have made me a pile. I failed to make the arrangement, and the very day the negotiations fell through I started suddenly for England on a similar mission.

"The question brought me to my feet and caused an exclamation of horror to escape from my lips. Many explosives undergo a ripering process, which adds greatly to their destructive power, at the same time decidedly increasing the danger at handling them. That made by me was af this character. Indeed 25 days after it was compounded it was almost certain to explode of its own volition, so to speak. Now, on the upper shelf of the checkroom of my New York hotel I had left a large grip containing a 20 pound can of this compound, the ripening of which meant destruction and death. "For an hour I was almost in a state of a frenzy, freely denouncing myself as a

"No reprieved murderer ever experienced greater joy than I did as I saw the last of the terrible fluid disappear in a oatch basin. Ten minutes later I started back from the mirror of the hotel bar, where I had gone for a 'bracer, in absolute dismay. My jet black hair had turned white as snow."

VETERANS UNDER FIRE.

The Reason They Don't Stoop When the Bellets Are Flying.

The Reason They Den't Steep When the Bellets Are Flytes.

'The temptation to stoop when under fire is almost irresistible," said a veteran. "and that accounts for so many of the wounds received by raw troops. You see, when a man happens to be hit in a stooping posture the chances are that the bullet plows right through his body from end to end. On the other hand, if he is standing erect, the probabilities are in favor of the wound being slight, anyhow not mortal. Old soldiers are wall aware of this, and while they will drop flat and hunt cover every chance they get they never stoop.

"After a soldier has been in a few engagements he learns such tricks, and, as far as the rest of it is concarned, he becomes simply a fatalist. There is nothing strange about it, for almost all his experiences appear to lend color to that doctrine. For instance, he never dodges, because he has seen men dodge and get killed when it really seemed as if they had reached for the bullet. In fact, the strangest things are continually happening, all apparently the pure whim of chance.

"I remember near Petersburg a comrade."

ing, all apparently chance.

"I remember near Petersburg a comrade of mine, as brave a fellow as ever lived, took refuge behind a little but. He was wornout under fire and wanted to get a moment's breathing space. Twenty feet in the rear and a little to one side was a pile of crossties full of wroughs iron nails. A bullet came along, splintered a tie and drove out one of the nails at right angles. The jagged iron struck my chum in the side, penetrated his kidneys and killed him.

elde, penetrated his kidneys and killed him.

"That's the blind chance of war, and after getting a few such object lessons a fellow is apt to acquire a sort of sang froid that is immensely impressive to a recruit. It isn's because he has a contempt for danger; he has merely learned the folly of trying to evade it."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

"Now, that is what I call true Bc-ton culture. Would you expect a man of that kind to make such a delicate distinction? He must have been educated at a won an soliege. When he is selling a 50 cent article, he says was in the ordinary way, with the long sound of the 'a,' but wheen he comes to a big piece of cloisonne it is varse, with the broad 'a' every time. That is according to rule. Over $10 in price you find a varse, but under that nothing but an ordinary, everyday wase."—New York Times.

The expression "crocodile tears" can be faund in almost every European language, but it is doubtful if one in a thousand of these who use is have an idea of its origin.

We are told in the Bestiary of Guillauros in Clere that when the crocodile finds an unwary traveler it devours him, but afterward weaps ever him all the rest of its life. This is very evidently the allusion is "Othello," "Each drop she falls would grove a crocodile" (1, 587).

There is another version of the fable, however, which is more often neterred to in literature, and snoording by which the crocodile sheds tears in order to allure the traveler to destruction. Shakespeare alludes to this in the passage where he tells how the mouraful crocodile.

Was It Consumption?

Doctors are often wrong.

The local doctor is an overworked individual. He hurries from a case of scarletina to a case of diabetes and from that to the amputation of a leg. He must act quickly—sometimes hurriedly. It is not strange that he makes an occasional mistake. But mistakes are dangerous and should be avoided.

atrange that he makes an occasional marke. But mistakes are dangerous and should be avoided.

Mrs. G. R. Kerr, of Port Dodge, Iowa, recently had some experience. She says:

"Last spring I was taken with severe pains in my chest, and was so weak I could hardly walk about the house. I tried several physicians and they told me I had consumption. Before I had taken the first bottle of Dr. Pierce's Colden Medical Discovery, I was very much better. I took five bottles of it and have not yet had any seturn of the trouble."

Was it consumption?

Was it consumption?

The "Golden Medical Discovery" has been said to cure consumption. It surely and infallibly cures all bronchial and throat troubles. It strengthens weak lungs and cures lingering coughs. It is bealer and builder of tissue. It cleanses and enriches the blood—regulates the heart action—pute the whole body in tune with nature.

Mrs. Kerr's trouble was probably bronchial. It was painful—dangerous if let run—dangerous in the hands of an incompetent doctor. Don't take a local doctor's word for everything. Write to Dr. Pierce. Tell him your symptoms. For over thirty years he has been chief consulting physician at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. Consultation with him will cost you nothing.

NEWLY APPOINTED OFFICERS.

aff-Captalu Burd-tt and Wife Spoke the S. A. Barrachs Last Wight.

Staff-Paptain Rurdett and wife. the newly-appointed Salvation Army officers in charge of the local corps, arrived in town yesterday and were at last night's meeting at the Barracks. The Captain is an able speaker, and delivered a very instructive discourse basing his remarks upon lea-iah 48; 16, and following verses. He emphasised the necessity of living is strict conformity with the com in strict conformity with the com-mands of Gott if we hops to possess and retain that peace which He has a rounded to His servants. Obedience is the great test of true fellowship with God, and if we let anything in-terfers with our duty to Him, and are not obedient in all respects to His laws, we cannot hope to be in possession of the peace which He sava He will impart to His true whild-ren.

Capt. Purdoit has the reputation of heins one of the most forcible speak-ers of the Salvation Army in On-ada, and in bid sermon leat night he certainly showed that this resultation was deserved.

The following candidates successfully passed the recent kindergarten examinations for amistants' certificatestrair M. Harding, of the South Cen-trair Miss M. F. Sullivan and Miss C. A. Mr. Corry, of Mewers, Corry Laverdure, contractors, met with a painful injury about eight o'clock vesterday morning at the canal. He was standing on a derrick about 20 feet above the ground, at the lock pear the Little Lake when the machine broke and he was thrown to the ground and his leg was broken. His layures were attended to by Pr. McGrath.

The following compose the team of the Peterborough Seniors in their match today with Hastings- Dobbin McCabe. Priwn or in Cally, Hughes Lewis, Boxart, King, Glover, McCabe Lincett, and McWilliams, Field Cap-Linestt and McWilliams. Field Cap-tain. Joe Begley. The Hastings team feel confident of viotory, and large erowds are expected to attend the come from the surrounding district. On the other hand one boys think they will be victorious, and certainly their recent excellent showing in the bratch with the Excelsions of Brams-ton affords great reason for their confidence.

MINING IN THE NORTH COUNTRY

Prospecting Trip Through Hallbarton

Says the Lindsay Post- "On Friday last Mr. A. Ropers, of Stirling, passed through town, on route for his home, after a two months: prosrecting trip in the County of Hallburten. His party is made mp principally Stirling people, who have formulated tock company, for prospecting different mining sections, and have se cured the services of a Californian ex-Maure. James Teller and J. T. Milne are among the promoters of this company. Mr. Rogers states that the prospection party has been fairly successful so far, and they have lo cated several mia-s. One of their hest prospects is a mica, mine. This comprises a small mountain on the Tyrell farm. They were tunite in tracing the main and cross reins, and are fully estisfied that they have struck it rich. They have already cleared away the surface, and have sunk a 16 foot shaft, and are now commencing to cross-tunnel the same. Some fine samples have been taken out, and clear, sound sheets of mica, 12x18 inches are in evidence denoting the future prospects of the mine Mr. Ropers is quite enthusiastic over this claim, and states that a couple of tons of this kind of stuff contained therein will fully repay them for all outlay up to date. The same party of prospectors later on found what they believe will prove an even better mica mine, but as they have not secured the mining claim on it they are not giving any information about it. They have located a very rich lead mine and are of the opinion that there are great deposits of lead all over the great degiosits of lead all over the northern district. Another location that his party are particularly pleased with is a phosphate bed. They have unearthed a number of phosphate amples, running in this moss from the size of a lead penell up to that of a man's arm. Mr. Rogers exhibited two or three samples and was particularly sweet on a share, clear greem specimen of phosphate, the states that if this phosphate find increases with development that it will prove a vertuble homanza to their party. On being outside homanza to their party. On heing outsided homanza to their party. On heing outsided, and that the had found a gold deposit, but admits that they have dicovered rock of gold-bearing formation but to what extent it is or is not mineralised he would not creame to state. Mr. Rogers states that the country is highly mineralised and that every farmer has one or more "mineral" on his reporty or adject thereto. Speaking of the country generally, Mr. Rates that it is cure of the greatest oraging countries in the world, and that fortunes will yet be made in that section by enterprising ranchers." northern district. One of his early freaks was the purchase of several magnifect lace highrobes which and $100 apiece and which he kept locked up in a safe during the day. Engene Field was editor of the Deurer Tribune at the time, and those lace nightrobes made him simply hysterical. He wrote column upon column about them, describing the garments in detail, with numerous diagrams depleting sections fore and aft. The dea for the Millionnice. dejitting sections fore and aft. The diagrams were hideous affairs, which Field carved out himself with a penknife on the back of old wood type. He used to describe how Tabor would forget the combination of the safe and sit up, shivering and naked, half the night trying to ering and maked, has the night trying to remember the right figures.

"Altogether he kept Denver in a roar for weeks and made Tabor so wild that one day he rushed into his office, snatch-ed the unfortunate nightrobes out of their compartment and fore them to threads. 'There, now!' he exclaimed, wiping his forehend and kicking the tat-terel fragments into a corner, 'I kope that food will be satisfied. I'll be hanged if I ain't going to get a gunny sack, that fool will be antished. I'll be hanges if I ain't going to get a gunny sack,' he continued, 'cut some holes in the end for my head and arms, and then sleep in it for the rest of my life.'

"When Tabor was appointed to the senate to fill an inexpired term of exactly 20 days. Field broke hoose again and had all kinds of fun with the old man. He declared that Tabor opposed the tariff bill on the ground that it encouraged lawlessness in the west. 'I don't know this tariff bill,' he reported the senator as saying in a speech, 'but we have entirely too many of 'em out where I live. There's Wild Bill and Pecos Bill and Billy the Kid—all no good. If you let Tariff Bill have everything to do with the custom house he is liable to steal the Atlantic ocean.' Many of the honest frontier folk took these flights of fancy seriously, and drove Tabor nearly distracted by long letters of remonstrance, urging him to read up and get posted, so as not to diagrace the state.

strance, urging him to read up and get posted, so as not to diagrace the state.
"At the expiration of the senator's brief term he circulated an autograph album among his fellow members, and the incident tickled Field immensely. He gave what purported to be a copy of the 'sentiments' inscribed in the volume by the different statesmen—such things as 'When this you see, remember me, Roscoe Conking,' and 'Sure as the most grown' round a stump you are my darling strown' round a stump you are my darling.

coe Conking, and 'Sure as the mose grows 'round a stump you are my darling sugar lump—I mean chump—George F. Hoar,' and similar nonsense, all of which maddened his victim.

"I think 'Gene Field was the only man Tabor never forgave, for in spite of his gaunt, forbidding exterior, the miner magnate was as tender hearted as a girl. He was really full of sterling qualities, and in his proper sphere he would have been anything but grotesque. One thing is sure—If every fellow he helped in secret would have joined his funeral procession he would have gone to his grave like an emperor of old."—New Orleans Times—Demonstrated.

"But your face is not scarred? Is would seem that an explosion"—

"An impending explosion it was. Two years ago I was the most successful well shooter in America. I could make the oil shooter in America. I could make the strangement, and the very day the negotiations fell through I started suddenly for England on a similar mission.

suddenly for England on a similar mission.

"Is there such a thing as high explesives ripening? asked the Englishman I was accompanying on the second day of our voyage.

"The question brought me to my feet and caused an exclamation of horror to escape from my lips. Many explosives undergo a ripening process, which adds greatly to their destructive power, at the same time decidedly increasing the danger of handling them. That made by me was at this character. Indeed 36 days after it was compounded it was almost certain to explode of its own voltion, so to speak. Now, on the upper shelf of the checkroom of my New York hotel I had left a large grip containing a 30 pound can of this compound, the ripening of which meant destruction and death.

"For an hour I was almost in a state of frenzy, freely denouncing myself as a subtimusions.

He promised to transfer me to a west bound steamer if ap opportunity presented itself, but fortune failed me, and I was obliged to cross the ocean. The Frevalence of Appendicetta.

Burgeons admit that 75 per cent of all cases of appendicits will recover without operation, but claim that 96 per cent could be saved by operating promptly on every case as soon as flacovered. This discloses a debate of great significance, for physicians are disinclined to turn all cases to the surgeon. Morris has estimated that there are 200,000 new cases of appendicitie discovered each year in the United Shanes. If this is true and the surgeons are right, 48,000 of them would be ruthlessly ascrificed under medical treatment. But physicians ascert (and I wish I knew whether truly or mot) that autopaise upon subject that have died from other diseases than appendicitie show old inflassemanory processes about the appendix in one-third of the cases, just as old tuberculous cleatriese are found in the lungs where tuberculous has never been suspected. In other words, one-third of all coming to the autopay table and by inference a large proportion of the population have got well spontaneously from an unsuspected trouble which would have subjected them, to a life endangering operation had they failes into the lands of a surgeon of sufficient skill to make the diagnosis.
